BURLESON LOSES WIRES AT MIDNIGHT

TURKS MOVE TO BUTCHER ARMENIANS

RELIEF SUPPLIES SENT BY AMERICA BARRED BY TURKS

Major Green, Who Is Directing United States Relief Work, Says Disaster More Awful Than Previous Massacres Impends.

HOOVER MAKES APPEAL TO PEACE CONFERENCE

Declared If Military Protection Is Not Afforded At Once Armenian Nation Will Be Crushed to Shame of Allies.

Paris, July 30.—(By the Associated Press.)—Turks and Tartars are moving upon the Armenians from three sides. They have cut off the American relief supplies and threaten all the remaining Armenians with extermination unless additional military protection is afforded, according to dispatches from Major Joseph C. Green, of Cincinnati, who is directing the American relief administration's work from Tiflis.

Herbert Hoover, director-general of relief, immediately submitted Major Green's message to the peace conference, which already had similar reports from other American and British observers.

Major Green, under date of July 23, sends the following from Tiflis:

"Had a long conference with the Armenian president today. The situation is worse. The Turkish army, well prepared, and Tartars are advancing from three sides. If military protection is not afforded to Armenia immediately the disaster will be more terrible than the massacre in 1915, and the Armenian nation will be crushed, to the everlasting shame of the allies.

"Relief work is impossible in the present situation unless order is restored. Cannot something be done to have the British forces in the Caucasus intervene to save Armenia?"

Under date of July 24, Major Green telegraphs:

"The Turks and Tartars are advancing in the districts of Karabagh and Alagbez. They now occupy approximately the reopened territory of Russian Armenia. Khalil Bey, a Turkish colonel, is commanding the Azerbaijan Tartars."

NEGRO IS RUSHED TO FULTON JAIL

Atlanta Negro, Arrested in Marietta, Brought to Tower When Sheriff Swanson Fears Lynching.

Charged with criminal assault upon a young white girl, Bertram Alexander, Atlanta negro, was rushed to the Fulton Tower by Sheriff Swanson, of Cobb county, at a late hour Wednesday, for safekeeping.

The negro was arrested near Kennesaw, eight miles above Marietta, and carried to Marietta. Soon after he had been placed in the Cobb county jail dozens of angry citizens in automobiles began to gather and Sheriff Swanson decided that it would be best to bring his prisoner to Atlanta.

The lights in the Cobb county jail were extinguished and the prisoner spirited away from the rear of the jail, and brought to Atlanta in an automobile by the sheriff and a deputy.

The negro, who is a student at Atlanta university and a son of Alexander C. Hamilton, of 148 Howell street, wealthy colored builder and contractor, stated last night that he knew nothing of the crime with which he is charged. He is about 21 years of age, well dressed, well-educated and intelligent.

He stated that he had gone to visit the proprietor of a hotel for colored at Kennesaw on Wednesday, and that the first he had heard of the assault was when he was arrested. He says, however, that his lawyers have told him that the criminal assault took place in Cherokee county on Monday. He denies ever having been on the scene of the crime, and says that he was not identified by the young lady who was the victim of the assault, but that the mob had gathered at Kennesaw awaiting for this identification before lynching him.

When arrested, Alexander carried a .45 revolver. He was a member of the student army training corps at Atlanta university during the war.

The negro is represented by Attorneys Harvey Hill and Herbert Clay, of Marietta.

Poetic Opposition Assists in Defeat Of Drastic Dry Law

"Come one and all,
From Chatham to Hall,
You Irish, you Scotch, or you Jew,
As you homeward roll,
Just take a bowl
Of the real old Mountain Dew."

"And you can't stop the making of this moonshine until you level the grand old mountains of north Georgia as flat as the plains of Chatham."

So spoke Senator George C. Glenn, of Dalton, in opposition to the bill in the senate to make more drastic the bone dry laws of the state. Senator Ragsdale was the author of the bill seeking to make the violation of the prohibition laws a felony.

Senator Glenn at once arose and proceeded to jump on the attempt to intimidate the mountaineers in this time honored practice. In one of the most humorous and satirical speeches yet delivered to the senate he proceeded to ridicule the measure. When the vote was taken the bill went to the happy hunting ground of all deceased measures of the upper house and proceeded to occupy a grave side by side with the tombs of the resolution to ratify the Susan B. Anthony amendment and across the way from one reserved and held in readiness for the capital removal measure.

Again mourning the sad plight of affairs in the country the senator declared:

"I would like to run across a stream
Of twenty-year-old rye
That gurgles from an ice-bound cave
In bounteous supply.

"That runs across a field of straw
That has an amber tint,
And empties in a little lake
Embanked in beds of mint.

"A reef of sugar here and there,
The little stream should break,
And juicy cherry trees drop their fruit
Into the limpid lake.

"Away from all this world,
Its busy care and din,
O wouldn't that be a glorious spot
To spend a few hours in?"

And immediately the previous question was called and with watering lips the senators snowed under the bill.

MAIL CLERK HELD ON THEFT CHARGE

B. M. Mason Is Bound Over, Accused of Stealing $3,500 in Currency From Registered Mail Bag.

B. M. Mason, of College Park, a railway postoffice clerk between Atlanta and Raleigh, N. C., was bound over to the United States district court Wednesday by United States Commissioner Carter on a $1,000 bond, charged with removing a package of United States currency from registered mail. The amount obtained was $3,500.

There were $20,000 in old and worn currency in a double bag being sent by the federal reserve bank of Atlanta to the treasury department at Washington. In the mail car Mason, it is said, noticed a bit of the currency protruding through a slight hole in the bottom of the sack and cut it larger to remove the package which contained the $3,500. The accused man has succeeded in returning $2,500 of the amount, but cannot exactly account for the other $1,000.

It was June 2 that the money was taken, but it was only this week that the trail had its end, and only Wednesday that the accused man was brought before the authorities. As the mail was registered, the regional bank, according to Joseph A. McCord, governor of the Atlanta district, long since has been reimbursed to the full amount.

The case will be tried in October in the United States district court for northern Georgia. The punishment for such an offense is a heavy fine or a term in prison, or both.

Mason is 26 years old and a man with a family. His previous record with the government is clear. The man was taken utterly by surprise when the postoffice inspectors, who worked up the case, announced to him the results of their work.

The authorities believe that the destination of the package, its source, its class of mail as well as the sight of a few bills through the tear in the mail bag, presented a temptation too strong. The accused man said that the reason why he did not take more of the $20,000 was that he feared the greater loss, as well as the bulk bulging on his person, would betray him.

BELGIAN ROYAL PAIR TO VISIT WASHINGTON

Washington, July 30.—King Albert and Queen Elisabeth of Belgium will be guests at the white house during their visit to Washington this fall, probably in October. Elaborate plans for their entertainment are being prepared by the state department, but details have not yet been announced.

MEASURE TO FORM NEW ROAD BOARD PASSED BY HOUSE

But Second Highway Bill, to Provide Road Building Revenue, Defeated at Afternoon Session.

FRIENDS OF MEASURE ARE STILL HOPEFUL

Expect to Pass Bill at Present Session, After Motion to Reconsider. Main Traffic Line Features Abandoned.

By Tom Connor.

Friends of highway legislation in Georgia won a great victory and suffered a temporary setback in the house yesterday when the first of the highway bills providing for a state highway commission of three was passed by the overwhelming majority of 125 to 26, and when, at the afternoon session, the second measure, looking to the raising of the necessary revenue for state road construction, by increased automobile license taxes, was defeated for the time being by the failure to secure a constitutional majority.

The first bill was immediately transmitted to the senate, while notice was given of a motion to reconsider the second and its friends are still very hopeful of securing its passage unamended at this session.

Slight Opposition.

After the adoption with scarcely any opposition of a number of amendments framed to meet the objections of country members that the highway commission reorganization bill might favor the preferential construction of roads connecting the leading cities of the state to the disadvantage of their constituents, the measure was passed on a show of hands vote.

A motion of Stewart, of Atkinson, calling for the yeas and nays, failed to secure the necessary one-fifth vote of the house. By a vote of 102 to 9, the bill was then immediately transmitted to the senate. This prevented further delay in the consideration of the other bills by cutting off any attempt to reconsider.

Effect of Amendments.

The main effect of the amendments adopted was to change the bill from a combination of county-seat-to-county-seat road construction and main traffic line construction to a county-seat-to-county-seat plan throughout. These amendments were by Messrs. Rogers, of Elbert, and Carswell, of Wilkinson, and were aimed at giving the back counties and border counties the advantage of good road construction as promptly as those that were on the main arteries of traffic connecting the leading cities of the state.

As the plan contained in the bill originally contemplated the connecting up of all the county seats in the state through the construction of 4,800 miles of paved highway, the objections raised by the country members were met by the whole body and the "main traffic line" features stricken. A amendment of Mr. Carswell limited each county to two improved instead of making it two for some counties and four for others as originally provided. This amenment, too, was adopted with a view to putting all the counties on an equal basis.

Measure Reconsidered.

As predicted in The Constitution of yesterday, a motion to reconsider was made when the order of unfinished business was reached renewing the fight of the day before on the issue of a board of three or of twelve. This was done by Mr. Perryman, of Talbot, author of the substitute amendment providing for an appointive board of twelve, which had been accepted by Mr. Rogers, of Elbert, in lieu of his proposition for an elective board of twelve.

Before the vote on this was taken, however, an amendment offered by Mr. Rogers, of Elbert, was defeated by a vote of 75 to 45, and an effort later to have it reconsidered was lost by a vote of 80 to 47. This amendment sought to compel the highway board to appoint an engineer from each congressional district, his remuneration to be based upon the cost of the work done. Another amendment of Mr. Rogers, which met with overwhelming defeat, provided for the commencement of work simultaneously in each county of the state.

The bill as it was drawn provides for beginning the work as nearly simultaneously as practicable in each of the congressional districts.

In speaking to his amendments, Mr. Rogers declared that he was an ardent friend of good roads and that

Brands Relatives Of Slain Soldiers As 'Uneducated'

Remarkable Letter Written by W. R. Castle, of State Department, in Regard to Return From France of Bodies of Soldiers.

Washington, July 30.—Chairman Porter, of the house foreign affairs committee, sharply denounced today a letter written to him by W. R. Castle, of the state department, saying, among other things, that requests to the war department for return from France of the bodies of American soldiers were made in almost every instance by relatives who "are quite uneducated and unthinking."

Castle, a native of Boston, and formerly with the American Red Cross, was summoned before the committee to explain the letter. Representative Connally, democrat, Texas, protested against the examination and later, on motion of Representative Houghton, republican, New York, the whole proceedings were expunged from the record, after Castle had admitted the letter was "stupid and exaggerated" and had expressed a desire to withdraw it.

Before Castle appeared General March, chief of staff; Assistant Secretary of State Phillips, and Adjutant General Harrison informed the committee that under an agreement between the United States and France removal of the bodies would not be undertaken until all of the troops had been returned home, and that conferences soon would be held with French officers to determine procedure and whether French law would prevent removal under three years.

In asking that this letter to Chairman Porter be withdrawn, Castle told the committee the whole point behind it was the desire to have the families of the dead realize that it was a noble thing to let them rest where they fell.

Asked where he got his information about the ignorance of those people, Castle said many of them lived in the mountains of the south.

TROOPS PATROL CHICAGO STREETS TO CHECK RIOTING

Situation Looked So Serious at Nightfall That Mayor Called on Governor to Use Soldiers.

Chicago, July 30.—Chicago streets tonight were patrolled by soldiers called out by Governor Lowden at the request of Mayor Thompson for the protection of life and property threatened by the race war which for four days has terrorized the city.

The state troops established a barred zone about three miles square embracing most of the negro residential district on the south side. In this zone they searched all persons they met for weapons. No one could pass in or out without military permission. The district extended roughly from 22d street to 55th street, north and south, and from Michigan boulevard to Westworth avenue, east and west.

While riots in the negro district itself had somewhat subsided, there was an alarming spread of disturbances outside. New York Central railroad officials reported all their trains being fired on.

Adjutant General Dickson, after a trip through the threatened district, declared that the situation was ominous and this view was shared by the mayor's secretary, who accompanied him.

"From what I have seen this afternoon and evening, I should judge the situation and temperament of the people is more serious than it was at this time the night before," said the adjutant general.

Negroes Ask for Protection.

Hundreds of negroes appealed for protection. Incendiary attacks upon negro homes increased through the day and night, one house being burned. Negro leaders declared that many members of their race faced starvation because drivers of supply wagons feared to enter some portions of the black belt.

Coroner Hoffman today impaneled a jury and as deaths are reported the members will view the bodies and take preliminary steps in the inquiry. Although no definite date has been set for the taking of testimony, the coroner said the inquest would be in a sort-room under heavy guard and that all witnesses, white and black, would be searched for weapons.

RAILROAD MEN ASK WILSON TO REDUCE COST OF LIVING

Brotherhood of Engineers Hold Long Conference With President Wilson at White House.

COMMITTEE SUGGESTS IMMEDIATE MEASURES

Increase in Wages Would Be Only Temporary, Say Railroad Men, While Reduction of Cost Would Be Lasting.

Salaried Man Is Hit Hardest by High Prices, According to Palmer

Washington, July 30.—Several investigations, which may have an effect on high cost of living, are under way in the department of justice, Attorney General Palmer said today. He declined, however, to indicate their nature.

The attorney general said that while economic conditions were the fundamental cause of high prices, violations of laws designed to prevent concerted raising of prices also might be partly responsible.

"There is no doubt that the majority of the people are more prosperous than ever before, farmers and wage-earners especially," Mr. Palmer said. "The man who has suffered from high prices has been the salaried man, the clerk. I wish we could do something to help him. I'm open to suggestions."

(The Constitution—Philadelphia Public Ledger Service, Copyright, 1919.)

Washington, July 30.—Union labor, at least that part of it represented by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, appealed directly to President Wilson today to take immediate action to reduce the cost of living. The president was told that this was the only means of eliminating the "vicious circle" of higher prices and higher wages in which the country has been traveling since the war.

The proposition that the workmen of the country would be more greatly benefited by a reduction in prices than periodic increases in wages, was presented to the president by Warren Stone, president of the brotherhood, and sixteen of the organization's advisory board who called at the white house.

The meeting, precedent-making both in the annals of the white house and the history of union labor, lasted for more than an hour. At the end the president was deeply impressed and made public the statement presented by the union officials and promised them it would be given earnest and immediate consideration.

Starting with an expression of opinion that the situation which confronts the wage earner as the result of present high cost of living, "is brought about mainly by conscienceless profiteering in the necessaries of life," the statement laid before the president urges that he immediately inaugurate executive action to remedy it."

Another Increase

Under the mounting cost of living, it is explained, the engineers shortly will be forced to request another increase in wages.

"But we feel," continued the statement, "that should this request be granted, the relief would be temporary should prices continue to soar. We do not feel that increasing the compensation, accompanied by greater increase in the cost of commodities of life, will produce lasting benefits to our craft or to the American citizen in general.

"We believe the true remedy for the situation is for the government to take some adequate measures to reduce the cost of the necessaries of life to a figure that the World Readjustment Waiting Upon Action Of the United States

Asserted That the Treaty Fight Is Putting the Country in Position of Blocking Return of Europe to Peace Basis.

WHILE WORLD WAITS, SENATE KEEPS UP FIGHT

Claimed That If Politics and Personal Grievances Against Wilson Were Eliminated Senate Could Agree in Day on Satisfactory Form for Ratification of Treaty.

By Robert T. Small.
(The Constitution—Philadelphia Public Ledger Service, Copyright, 1919.)

Washington, July 30.—The United States is being placed in the position of blocking virtually all steps toward a readjustment of the world, and particularly of Europe, to a basis of peace.

There are growing indications that the allied powers are waiting to see what their "associate," the United States, is going to do with the treaty before they themselves take definite action. France, it is stated authoritatively, may not ratify the German treaty until she knows what the United States intends to do with the special treaty guaranteeing immediate protection to France in the event of an unprovoked movement of aggression by Germany.

The nations of Europe—including the enemy powers—are waiting to learn if President Wilson spoke for the people of the United States in Paris, or if he spoke only for himself and his own ideals. It is certain Germany will not take the treaty seriously until she sees the manner in which it is ratified by the United States senate. Germany knows that without the whole-souled support of the United States her European enemies will not be able to enforce the fulfillment of all the provisions of the treaty.

Waiting on United States.

It is doubtful if the people of the United States themselves realize the influential role this country must play in Europe in the future, or have grasped how inextricably the treaty has interwoven the United States with the tangled affairs of the old world. The presence of President Wilson, the chief executive of the nation, made the United States the leading power at the peace table, and under these circumstances it is but natural that friends and foes alike in Europe should mark time until the United States acts.

While the world thus waits to see what the most powerful of the allied and associated group of nations intends to do before framing individual programs in support of international arrangements, the senate of the United States, now all-powerful so far as the treaty is concerned, announces in effect that the world can continue to wait, regardless of consequences, until the senators weary themselves with playing politics and until some of the senators at least even up a few old scores with Mr. Woodrow Wilson.

Eliminate politics and a few personal grievances against the president from the situation and the United States senate could agree in a single day to a satisfactory form of ratification of the treaty of peace and the covenant of the league of nations.

To Hold Up Treaty for Months.

Every one in Washington knows how the treaty fight will end, unless some untoward happening in Europe should completely change the situation. The treaty will be ratified with a few reservations or interpretations, which will not require the consent of any of the other nations, but which will make the attitude of the United States perfectly plain. These interpretations will be based upon the Root-Taft-Hughes-Hays programs, which coincide at many points and offer the basis of a satisfactory agreement.

But instead of coming at once to this inevitable agreement the senate "leaders" who happen to be the out-and-out opponents of the league, "and all its works," have arranged a program which will hold the treaty up for months to come. These leaders, including Messrs. Lodge and Knox and Borah and Johnson, know full well that all of the drastic amendments and reservations are doomed to defeat, but because they have taken a position in the matter they are going to follow it out for political reasons, and the country is to be treated to the spectacle of the senate gravely considering and gravely voting upon hun-

SUBSTANTIAL SUM SUBSCRIBED FUND FOR GRAY REUNION

In Amounts Ranging From $1,000 to $50, Leading Citizens Subscribe Nearly $7,000 at Wednesday Meeting.

GENERAL N. B. FORREST IN THE CITY TO ASSIST

Many Organizations Pledge Fullest Support to Make Confederate Reunion Here in October Huge Success.

MASS MEETING.

The general reunion committee will give a luncheon Friday at 1 o'clock to which over two hundred citizens will be invited to attend at the Capital City club, which will be followed by a great mass meeting Friday night at the auditorium, in an endeavor to complete the raising of $60,000 to defray the expenses of the Confederate veterans' reunion in October. Brief talks by prominent speakers will be made at both the luncheon and the mass meeting. During the luncheon there will be music by a band and the stirring strains of "Dixie" will not be omitted.

Atlanta got away with splendid headway in her purpose to raise $60,000 with which to fittingly receive the Confederate war veterans who will be guests of the city in October, when in less than twenty minutes prominent citizens subscribed $6,850 to the reunion fund at a mass meeting at the Chamber of Commerce Wednesday afternoon. The subscriptions ranged in various amounts from $50 to $1,000.

The sum subscribed Wednesday, together with $1,000 which the Kiwanis club contributed Tuesday unsolicited, brings the total in hand toward defraying the expenses of the reunion to $7,750, and many more large subscriptions are already pledged.

Donations of $1,000 each were added to the fund at the meeting by Asa G. Candler and G. F. Willis, chairman of the finance committee, and the three Atlanta daily newspapers announced a subscription of $1,000.

Some Subscribers.

W. G. Bryan gave $100 in memory of his father, Major John M. Bryan; W. H. White made a personal gift of $200 and subscribed $100 additional in memory of his father; Hugh B. Cobb contributed $50 and pledged $500 for the John B. Gordon

Will Be Illegal To Drink 'Dopes' It Kea Has Way

Bill to Prohibit Sale of Many Soft Drinks Before Temperance Committee—Water Drinkers, Beware!

Hearing was begun Wednesday afternoon by the temperance committee of the senate on the bill introduced by Senator Fred Kea, of the Sixteenth, to prohibit the sale in the state of any beverages containing any quantity of caffeine whatsoever and made from a patent formula. The bill, according to the author, was introduced in order to stop the sale of various well-known soft drinks.

Harold Hirsh, attorney for the Coca-Cola company, and Representative Hollis, of Muscogee, general counsel for the Chero-Cola company, appeared before the body in opposition to the bill. At the request of Mr. Brown, president of the Georgia Bottlers' association,

U. S. CONTROL ENDS OVER TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH

Burleson Issues Orders for Return to Private Owners, as Required by Resolution Adopted by Congress.

PARTING SHOT TAKEN AT POSTAL COMPANY

Burleson Says the Postal Failed to Co-operate With Him—Rate War Between Postal and Western Union May Follow.

Washington, July 30.—Government control of telegraph and telephone properties will end at midnight tomorrow night. Orders for their return to private owners were issued today by Postmaster General Burleson as required under a resolution adopted by congress and signed by President Wilson ten days ago.

Mr. Burleson, in a statement accompanying his order, said sound public opinion ultimately would determine "how this trust has been met," and that he was content to abide by the result.

Parting Shot at Postal.

Besides this reply to criticisms of his management of the wire companies, the postmaster general also took a parting shot at the Postal Telegraph company, most of the officers of which were removed several months ago because of what he termed interference with government management.

The postmaster general did not mentioned the company by name, but said that "with one notable exception, the reason for which is thoroughly understood by those who have kept informed," every wire company had given him loyal cooperation.

Under the resolution of congress directing the return of the companies' government fixed intrastate telephone rates are to remain in force for four months, unless sooner changed by state commissions, but no provision was made as to telegraph rates. Clarence H. Mackey, president of the Postal Telegraph company, in urging congress to provide for speedy return of the properties, said his company could reduce rates 20 per cent, and still earn a profit.

Rate War a Possibility.

This statement was recalled today in connection with the return of the properties and a rate war between the telegraph companies was viewed in some quarters as a possibility. Telegraph rates were increased approximately 20 per cent last March to meet increased salaries of operators and other employees and rising costs of materials.

Referring to the advance in telegraph and telephone charges, Mr. Burleson said the percentage of these increases "was markedly less than the averages of increases of rates made during this same period for other public utility services," and added that "but for court injunctions in eighteen states, instigated by state utility commissions the wire systems would have been returned to their owners without any obligation on the federal treasury because of compensation contracts."

The amount of this obligation cannot be determined until accounts for the present month are adjusted and an agreement has been reached as to compensation for companies which so far have not been willing to accept the government figures.

Wires Taken July 22, 1918.

Control of the wire companies was taken over by the postmaster general as a war measure on July 22, 1918. A wire control board and an operating board were established and various consolidations were made with a view to effecting economy in operation.

Administration of the affairs of the companies by the postmaster general led to sharp criticism in recent months and this found expression in congress when the resolution for their return to private management was considered.

In his statement today the postmaster general said his labors were "brought to an end with a consciousness on his part of having at all times administered these wire systems with justice and fairness to the employees and the owners of these properties, and in such a way as to render the best service possible to the general public under abnormal conditions."

U. S. ARMY FOOD ON SALE AT COST

341,000,000 Pounds of Surplus Foodstuffs Offered Direct to Consumers Through Postmasters of Country.

Washington, July 30.—Through the postmasters of the country the war department tomorrow will offer direct to consumers its present available supply of surplus foodstuffs, amounting to approximately 343,000,000 pounds. This surplus, consisting of canned vegetables and meats, is expected to be sold within a week at prices representing the cost to the government plus postage.

Arrangements for the sale of the foodstuffs, directed by a resolution passed yesterday by the house were made today at a conference held by Secretary Baker with postoffice officials and Representative Kelly, of Pennsylvania, author of the resolution.

Secretary Baker at the close of the conference said a price list covering the entire available surplus would be prepared at once by Assistant Secretary Crowell. This list, it was said, at the postoffice department, would be sent out to each of the 51,000 postmasters of the country and to every rural route carrier.

The postmasters and carriers under arrangements made at the conference will act as government salesmen, informing interested consumers of the prices and methods of sale and taking orders for the foodstuffs. Payment will be made by buyers at the time the orders are given the postmasters and carriers, who will issue receipts which will be redeemable in cash in event of inability to fill the orders through exhaustion of the supply.

In accordance with the house resolution the foodstuffs will be distributed by parcel post, and the prices to be quoted at each postoffice will represent the original cost of the foodstuffs to the government and the parcel post transportation charges from the nearest war department depot having the foodstuffs in storage. The prices quoted, officials said, would be considerably below the prevailing market prices.

While the amount of foodstuffs in each class has not been estimated, hearings before a house war investigating committee recently showed the value of the surplus available July 8 to be approximately as follows:

Canned vegetables, $23,000,000; corned beef, $24,000,000; bacon, $23,000,000; hashed corned beef, $10,000,000; roast beef, $20,500,000, and frozen meats and poultry, $20,000,000.

The meeting was opened with an inspiring talk by Chairman Walter P. Andrews, and he was followed in brief stirring speeches by G. F. Willis, Asa G. Candler, Governor Dorsey, Major John Cohen, Clark Howell, Forrest Adair and others.

General Forrest Spoke.

General N. B. Forrest, of Biloxi, Miss., who arrived in Atlanta Wednesday morning to assist the committees with their plans for the reunion, also spoke. He expressed himself as gratified at the manner in which the city has set about making preparation for the veterans, and offered his unlimited service to the committees.

Mr. Andrews declared that he was willing to give the reunion unreservedly of his time and effort from now on until every veteran shall have come and gone from the city in October. He praised the work of the committees that have been formed and pointed out some of the problems that must yet be met and speedily solved.

Governor Dorsey declared that bringing the veterans to Atlanta will be an occasion to be proud of and asked the chairman to call on him to help in any way possible.

Express Confidence.

A fine tribute to the men in gray was paid by Clark Howell, and he said that no more appropriate date than this year could have been selected by Atlanta to have them as her guests, many of whom offered their lives for her in the historic battles that were waged around the city in the sixties.

All the speakers were unanimous in their expressions of confidence in Atlanta's citizens to make the campaign for the balance of $60,000 one of the briefest in her history.

Forrest Adair declared that the entire sum ought to be raised in one day. A. B. Simms, vice president of the Fulton National bank, assured the chairman that the Fulton National would subscribe its share, and volunteered to see the officials of every bank connected with the Atlanta clearing house.

"The machinery of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce is at the disposal of the committee," said Sam C. Dobbs, president of the organization.

Distinguished Guests.

President Woodrow Wilson, Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels and Sergeant Alvin York, regarded as the greatest hero of the European war, will be invited to Atlanta to attend the reunion. This was decided at a meeting of the executive committee in the office of Mr. Andrews Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock. If the invitation is accepted their presence in Atlanta will bring thousands of visitors here.

At this meeting it was decided to place the names of the following presidents and official heads of patriotic organizations on the executive committee as associate members:

Committee Members.

Mrs. A. McD. Wilson, president general of the Confederate Southern Memorial association.

Mrs. William A. Wright, acting president, Ladies' Memorial association.

Miss Nina Hornady, president Daughters of 1812.

Mrs. T. T. Stevens, chairman woman's committee, War Camp Community Service, Atlanta chapter, Colonial Dames.

Mrs. Joseph Lamar, national president Colonial Dames.

Ready response from scores of men and women was accorded a suggestion from Judge George Hillyer at the annual reunion in Grant park Wednesday of the Thirteenth Georgia regiment, that they co-operate with the Atlanta committees in promising to entertain one or more veterans in their homes when they come to the city in October.

The crowd was made up largely of citizens of DeKalb county, with others from College Park and communities in the vicinity of other towns adjacent to Atlanta, and they were instant in their assurance that they would open their homes to the vets.

TROOPS PATROL CHICAGO STREETS

assigned several assistants to the work of gathering evidence. He incidated that his activities might go outside of investigation of actual disorder.

"I have heard," he said, "that through the influence of politicians and aldermen, some of the men arrested for rioting had been released when taken to the police station."

The decision to appeal to the state executive for troops to patrol the streets was reached by Mayor Thompson after a long conference with other city officials.

Rioting in Many Places.

Company commanders in the several armories for hours had been getting their men in readiness for an order to march and when the word came there was little delay in getting the troops in motion.

Before the troops were ordered out, rioting broke out at several places and police were called on to run down negroes reported in automobiles and firing promiscuously on whites.

In Twenty-fourth street, three negroes in an automobile fired at whites on the sidewalk and in the street. A white man was wounded while reading a newspaper in a barber shop, and a white boy was wounded when negroes fired at a group of children playing in the street.

Reports were also received that a number of automobile trucks filled with white men were being driven about south side streets outside the negro district trying to stir up anti-negro sentiment.

No funerals for the negro victims of the riots have been held. Negro undertakers are afraid to go to the city hall to obtain burial permits, city officials said today.

While the sidewalk about the city hall was piled high with boxes of regulation army rifles, designed for high school cadet drill, and taken by the authorities for safe keeping, a young negro with an open knife was chased through the corridors of the city hall by a number of white men.

Two Mexicans Attacked.

Among reports received by police of trouble on the south side was one that a number of white men riding in what appeared to be an army truck were firing shots along Grand boulevard, a spacious parkway. Windows in the home of a negro doctor were broken by the bullets. Other firing, with both negroes and whites implicated, was reported.

Two Mexicans were attacked by white men who believed them to be negroes, and both were seriously injured.

The police on duty at the stock yards were reinforced tonight by 500 special guards sworn in at police headquarters to protect plants where negroes are employed.

There were four deaths and a score of persons wounded or beaten in continued rioting today. The outbreaks were widely scattered. Of the four deaths, all of which were the result of shooting, two were the result of wounds received in the rioting on Monday and Tuesday nights.

Tonight the official death list for four days showed 30, of whom 17 were negroes.

White Woman Shoots Negro.

A white woman shot a negro in the side on South Wabash avenue this afternoon. She escaped unidentified.

Few negroes went to work today. The riots and the street car strike gave them double excuse for remaining home. The most seriously affected district was the stock yards, where only half the working forces reported, despite heavy police guards along the chief thoroughfares leading to the yards. The negroes evidently kept under cover, as almost none appeared on the streets and the railroads reported that there had been no noticeable exodus of blacks from the city. Reports that the 75,000 southern negroes who came to Chicago to get the high war wages had begun to drift south again, were scouted by railroad men.

NO BOLSHEVISM IN RACIAL RIOTS.

Washington, July 30.—Recent race troubles in Washington, Chicago and other cities were due solely to local conditions and were not inspired by Bolshevik or other radical propaganda in the opinion of Attorney General Palmer. Mr. Palmer said today reports to the department of justice had not shown any reason why the department should take a hand in the disorders.

"We have evidence of some Bolshevik propaganda among negroes in the south," Mr. Palmer said. "Considerable money has been spent and great quantities of literature distributed to no effect."

As "Liar and Traitor" Erzberger Is Branded By Dr. Karl Helfferich

Berlin, July 30.—Dr. Karl Helfferich, the former vice chancellor, announced that, having failed to induce Mathias Erzberger to sue him, he will enter suit against Erzberger "to prove him a liar and traitor, and to bring the truth to light."

A Berlin dispatch, under date of July 2 reported that Dr. Helfferich, writing in The Kreuz Zeitung, blamed the reichstag's peace program of July, 1917, fathered by Erzberger, for the moral collapse of the German people.

Dr. Helfferich charged that Erzberger had staged a parliamentary revolution without informing the government, and added that Erzberger's action was undertaken at the instigation of Count Csernin, then Austro-Hungarian foreign minister.

AIRPLANES USED BY ARMY OFFICERS FOR HUGE BONFIRE

Witnesses Tell Congress Probers How American Officers Ordered Burning of Planes Burned Near Toul, France.

AIRPLANES DESTROYED VALUED AT $1,000,000

Many of the Machines Had Seen But Little Service—None of the Witnesses Could Give Any Reason for Fire.

New York, July 30.—A "million dollar fire," in which 100 or more serviceable airplanes were destroyed by order of American army officers was described by several witnesses who appeared today before the house sub-committee which is investigating cruelties to prisoners and other alleged army irregularities. The hearing was conducted by Representative Royal C. Johnson, of South Dakota, and Representative Oscar E. Bland, of Indiana, republicans. The third member of the sub-committee, Representative Henry Flood, of Virginia, democrat, was not present.

The destruction of the airplanes took place at Colombey-Les-Belles, near Toul, and details of the fire were supplied by several former non-commissioned officers and men of the air service who were in the French village at the time. None of the witnesses could give any reason for the fire or tell under whose orders it had been conducted.

Witness Tells of Bonfire.

The first witness, Paul L. Lockwood, of Stamford, Conn., formerly a lieutenant of aviation in the First pursuit group, testified that upon returning to America he met a number of his colleagues in Garden City who told him that the planes had been damaged and then burned. The engines were chopped out, the witness, who estimated that the salvaged only the gas tanks and radiators being saved. While the fire was in progress, armed guards patrolled the vicinity to prevent photographs being taken, according to the witness, who estimated that the salvaged parts were worth about "15 cents each." Some of the machines, he had been told, had been flown only twenty minutes.

Detailed Men for Burning.

Alfred T. Rorer, who was a first sergeant in the First pursuit group, told the committee that while he was at Colombes-Les-Belles in May, he received orders to detail from 50 to 75 men for this work of destruction. When he left the camp to return home, he said, the work of destruction was still going on, and he saw the ruins of a number of the planes.

At the opening of the hearing, Representative Johnson announced that a cable message from General Pershing to General March, chief of staff, in which the head of the American expeditionary forces denied that any destruction had taken place, would be read into the record. The cable message was not available until after the hearing had closed and then proved to be merely a denial of a reported burning of automobiles and damage to other war material at St. Nazaire.

The investigation into the airplane fire closed the hearings of the sub-committee in the United States. The inquiry will be continued in France next month.

PERMITS TO CONTROL SHIPMENTS OF GRAIN

Washington, July 30.—The permit system devised by the railroad administration and the grain corporation for controlling the shipment of this year's record grain crop will be put into effect August 1.

As previously indicated, instead of the individual permit system in force last year, a blanket system will be put into operation at the outset. Unless it develops that this plan does not accomplish the desired purpose of regulating the flow of grain to the capacity of elevators and the ability of ocean tonnage to move it, the individual permit system will not be substituted.

WILSON WOOING G. O. P. SENATORS TO LITTLE PROFIT

Invited to White House, Republicans Tell President He Must Accept Reservations to Get the League Ratified.

JAPANESE STATEMENT EXPECTED BY WILSON

President Told Visitors That This Statement Would Go Far to Clear Up the Trouble Over Shantung Settlement.

(The Constitution—Philadelphia Public Ledger Service, Copyright, 1919.)

Washington, July 30.—President Wilson's conferences with republican senators, which he resumed today, took a new turn. Instead of the president seeking to persuade the republicans that they should vote against reservation, the four senators who called at the white house today in response to invitations urged the president to agree to reservations.

The white house visitors from the senate today were Senators Dillingham, Harding (a member of the foreign relations committee), Lenroot and Fernald.

Some of the president's callers are understood to have told him unreserved ratification was impossible, and Mr. Wilson reiterated his aversion to any change or qualification which might reopen diplomatic negotiations. Each of the senators indicated afterwards that his views had not been changed.

Wilson Fears Reservations.

Senator Harding, who is a member of the foreign relations committee, made a brief statement, saying Mr. Wilson had emphasized the possibility that senate reservations might encourage other nations to qualify their acceptance of the league.

Until today when he saw Senator Harding, President Wilson had invited to the white house none of the republican members of the committee except Senator McCumber, North Dakota, who openly is a league supporter. Senator Harding has made no announcement of his attitude in the senate, although in the committee he has lined up on collateral issues with those who oppose unreserved ratfication. As he came from the white house today he laughingly disputed a suggestion that he had been "converted" to acceptance of the covenant without reservation.

Tomorrow the president will see Senator New, Indiana, another republican member of the committee, who has indicated that he will vote against the treaty unless reservations are adopted. The other republicans with whom Mr. Wilson has appointments for tomorrow are Senators Watson, Indiana, and Keyes, New Hampshire.

Wilson Expects Jap Statement.

President Wilson told the republican senators that he is "hourly expecting" some statement from Japan on the Shantung settlement that will greatly clarify that question.

Senator Dillingham said after he left the white house that he was impressed that the president was disappointed that Japan had not already made the statement on Shantung. He said the president suggested to him that some hitch must have occurred, but that he did not know what it was.

Senator Dillingham said the president told him that he is not opposed to the principle behind the proposed reservations to the treaty, but that he believed it would be embarrassing and humiliating for the United States to have to send the treaty back to Germany and ask Germany to make concessions by agreeing to the reservations.

Senator Dillingham told the president that the treaty would be speedily ratified if the president would agree to reservations. The conference was very pleasant and it covered a wide range, said the senator.

"I asked the president a great many questions and received such frank answers that it was embarrassing at times," Senator Dillingham said.

Senator Harding said that his talk with the president had not changed his belief that reservations are necessary, but he believed there was ground for the president's position.

"The president emphasized," said Senator Harding, "the embarrassment and delays which would result from reservations on the part of the other signatories and indefinite delay would result."

The president told Senator Harding that the provisions of the treaty or the league covenant would not abrogate any American rights, because congress alone has the power to declare war and the treaty was signed with that understanding.

Senator Harding and also Senators Fernald and Lenroot told the president that there would be no delay in ratifying the treaty if he would agree to expressing the right of congress to make war and to have jurisdiction over domestic questions in the treaty itself.

"The president and I discussed very thoroughly the league of nations covenant and other phases of the treaty with respect to reservations," said Senator Fernald. "I told the president that in my opinion reservations must be made before the senate will ratify the treaty. I told him that I believed that without question there are enough votes in the senate to put reservations through and that they were essential to preserve American rights."

Senator Fernald said the president told him that he hoped the senate would not insist upon reservations, as they would bring about a very serious delay internationally and open up the whole peace negotiations again.

"Nothing that the president said, though he went fully into these matters," said Senator Fernald, "changed my mind, and I know that I didn't change his."

Six Votes for United States.

Senator Johnson, republican, of California, said that he has prepared an amendment to the league of nations covenant, providing that the United States shall have six votes in the assembly of the league.

"I am going to see to it," said Senator Johnson, "that the United States senate goes on record on the question of whether the United States shall have one-sixth the representation of the British empire in the assembly of the league of nations."

Senators New, Indiana; Watson and Keyes are the republican senators who have been invited to go to the white house tomorrow.

Senator La Follette said today that he intends to discuss the treaty at great length in the senate. He is preparing a series of speeches in which he will devote a speech to each one of the many objections he said he has to the treaty and the league covenant.

WORLD READJUSTMENT WAITING ON SENATE

dreds of offered amendments which will amount to nothing in the end, but which will cause all the other nations of the world to marvel at the ways of their mighty "associate" in the war. One senator alone has stated he would offer no less than seventy amendments during the consideration of the treaty on the senate floor.

Will Cause Uneasiness.

The fragmentary press reports of these amendments which will be sent abroad undoubtedly will cause much misunderstanding and uneasiness. The long deliberations of the senate and the offering of hundreds of amendments may make it appear to Europe that the treaty is being cut to pieces in the senate, and under such circumstances Germany can hardly be expected to show any undue haste in complying with the terms as they exist.

Probably not more than ten of the ninety-six members of the senate are in favor of this program of long delay and hopeless attempts to kill the treaty by amendment. Yet these ten determined men can carry out their program until they exhaust their own physical powers and the patience of the whole people of the country.

Thus, although a satisfactory solution is in sight—one which would command the votes of two-thirds of the republicans and all but two or three of the democrats—snow probably will fly before the radicals permit the common-sense program to be carried out.

The committee on foreign relations has determined for one thing to conduct exhaustive hearings, beginning tomorrow morning. The committee says it is going to show the world how an open ratification of a treaty can be openly arrived at. Not only will the committee conduct open hearings, as was announced yesterday, but it will consider amendments in open session and vote upon them in the open. Occasionally there may be an executive session of the committee just as judges often meet in chambers, but to all intents and purposes the consideration of the treaty from this time on will be entirely in the open.

Lansing to Be Called.

The committee has decided to call Secretary of State Lansing as a witness at an early date and to question him at great length as to the affairs of the peace conference. The decision to call Mr. Lansing is regarded as the committee's response to the offer of the president to appear before it. The controlling senators of the committee probably hope the president feels slighted. Their bitterness against him knows no bounds.

Secretary Lansing probably will be grilled as to the Shantung agreement. He is said to have signed a report adverse to the claims of Japan to the German rights in the peninsula, the paper bearing the signature of Henry White and General Bliss.

Secretary Lansing probably will be able to enlighten the committee but little as to the main discussions of the conference, inasmuch as these decisions were discussed and arrived at by the council of four, which included only President Wilson and Premiers Clemenceau, Lloyd-George and Orlando.

Bernard M. Baruch, who has been mentioned as the prospective American member of the all-powerful reparation commission, which will look after the affairs of Germany for the next thirty years, will be the first witness before the committee tomorrow morning. Mr. Baruch had much to do with the material settlements of the treaty. Thomas W. Lamont, of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., also one of the business and financail advisers of the American commission, may follow Mr. Baruch. Bradley Palmer, of Boston, who acted as adviser regarding the property provisions of the treaty, also has been summoned.

HEARINGS ARE CLOSED ON NAVAL STORES BILL

Washington, July 30.—Hearings of the senate agriculture committee on the bill of Senator Harrison, democrat, of Mississippi, proposing government regulation of naval stores marketing, were closed today. A subcommittee, consisting of Senator Smith, democrat, of Georgia, and Senators Smith, democrat, South Carolina; Capper, republican, Kansas, and Ransdell, democrat, Louisiana, was appointed for further consideration.

Representative Smithwick, democrat, of Florida, opposed the Harrison bill at today's session. He declared federal regulation of naval stores is unnecessary because of existing state regulations and rules of boards of trade, which, he said, protect the consumer.

PALE POSTAGE STAMPS GOING TO THE DISCARD

Washington, July 30.—Pale postage stamps, which came into use along with meatless Tuesdays and heatless Mondays, soon will go the way of the other departures from established usage occasioned by the war. James L. Wilmeth, director of the bureau of engraving, said today that the bureau, working twenty-four hours a day, has caught up with the tremendous demands made by the issuance of new bonds, revenue stamps and money, and that postage stamps hereafter will be engraved as of yore, instead of being produced by a cheaper printing process.

Bitter Fight Brews Over Ratification Of French Treaty

Alleged Treaty Begins Entangling Alliances and Violates Provision That Only Congress Can Declare War.

TREATY IS HARMLESS, ACCORDING TO WILSON

But Some Senators Do Not See It That Way, and It Is Claimed That Treaty Will Be Radically Amended.

Washington, July 30.—It became apparent today that there will be a bitter fight in the senate over the special defensive treaty with France submitted for ratification yesterday by President Wilson. Although most of the senators reserved judgment, it became apparent that the treaty's ratification would be bitterly contested.

Two objections about which debate is expected to center are that the treaty departs from the tradition of no entangling alliances, and that it violates the constitutional provision that congress alone can declare war. Those who base their opposition on the latter ground declare that by the promise to go to the aid of France immediately in case of an unprovoked attack on her from Germany, all future congresses would be deprived of their power to decide for war or peace whenever the treaty terms were invoked.

What Wilson Leaders Say.

To this administration leaders reply that the United States has made similar promises to go to war under certain circumstances in the past, citing the treaty by which this country guaranteed Panama's independence and the Monroe doctrine, which, they argue, gave notice that the free republics of this hemisphere would be defended against old world aggression at any cost. They also declare congress often had been bound by treaty to appropriate money, make tariff laws and exercise other powers vested in it by the constitution.

Interest in the subject was increased by today's dispatches from Paris saying that leaders in the chamber of deputies were disposed to delay ratification of the Versailles treaty until the American senate had acted on the defensive treaty. Opposition senators declared the development gave color to their charge that the promise to aid France was given in return for French support of the league of nations.

Treaty to Be Amended.

That the treaty will be amended so that it will only pledge the United States to go to France's aid, and not "bind" the United States to send an army to France in case of unprovoked aggression by Germany, which the treaty as submitted to the senate yesterday provides, was predicted today by republican senators.

Senator Knox, republican, of Pennsylvania, said that he was opposed to article 3 of the French treaty, which provides that the treaty must be submitted to the council of the league of nations, which body is required to recognize it before it could become effective and which would abrogate it.

Senator Knox said that Article III. would deprive the United States of an attribute of sovereignty, the right to enter into treaty relations with any other country, and give this power of control over treaties to the league of nations. He said the provision would never be permitted to become a part of the treaty.

Senator Knox, in discussing the French treaty, also manifested some curiosity as to the responsibility for the suggestion that the treaty-making right of the United States should be subject to the will of the league of nations. His curiosity, said the senator, was as to whether the proposal came from the president of the United States or from the French representatives.

Wilson on French Treaty.

President Wilson was quoted today by Senator Dillingham, republican, of Vermont, as saying that while he wants the senate to ratify the treaty with France in order to cement the friendship between the two nations, he does not believe that the treaty is necessary if the league of nations is formed.

Senator Dillingham said the president told him that he considers the French treaty to be only a supplement to the league of nations and that the league of nations would be entirely adequate to meet any unprovoked attack upon France by Germany.

The president said that he agreed to the French treaty, Senator Dillingham said, in order to satisfy the French people, who demanded it. The French people insisted upon it, Senator Dillingham said the president told him, as they wanted the additional protection against Germany. The president told him, Senator Dillingham said, that he considered the French treaty harmless, and that he agreed to it because he believed it was a generous thing to do.

The president urged Senator Dillingham to support the ratification of the treaty with France as he believed it would serve a good purpose in cementing the friendship of France and the United States, the senator said.

Just an Alliance, Says Borah.

Although the president has taken the position that the treaty is not properly an alliance, Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, and others maintain that it has all the force of the alliances which have been common among European nations. In the view of this group the treaty will be even more in contradiction of American traditions than article ten of the league of nations covenant under which the members of the league would "undertake to respect and preserve as against external aggression the territorial integrity of all members of the league.

In view of the administration neither article ten nor the French treaty would go further than the Monroe doctrine in curtailing the power of congress to declare war. They argue that while a moral obligation is imposed by such agreements it is left to congress in any specific case to decide before declaring war or refusing to do so whether the time has come to fulfill that obligation.

FRENCH WAIT AMERICAN ACTION.

Paris, July 30.—(By the Associated Press.)—A disposition to delay final action on ratification of the German peace treaty until the United States senate acts on the Franco-American military treaty, was indicated today by those in touch with the situation, to represent the majority view of the chamber of deputies' peace treaty committee. Former Premier Rene Viviani, chairman of the committee, expressed the opinion that examination of the treaty would be completed in time for it to be discussed in the chamber about August 11. Debate on it, it was said, probably would continue for three weeks in the chamber, and the senate, so that a vote might be taken by the end of August unless, as suggested, action should be delayed pending the United States senate's action on the Franco-American treaty.

Premier Clemenceau, accompanied by Captain Andre Tardieu, attended the meeting of the committee of the chamber of deputies which is considering the peace treaty and brought written replies to questions formulated by the committee regarding the left bank of the Rhine.

Captain Tardieu read the replies, after which there was a lengthy discussion, M. Clemenceau amplifying the replies. He recalled that the government had presented a memorandum to the peace conference setting forth at length the reasons why France should hold the Rhine bridgeheads. The document, presented February 27, was discussed until the middle of March. At that date the French government, in agreement with the allies, combined various military systems which fully assured the safety of France and which, taken one with the other, were equivalent to occupation of the bridgeheads. These measures were accepted by the peace conference and incorporated in the treaty. In addition to them came later treaties with England and the United States, guaranteeing immediate and unlimited military aid.

The premier and Captain Tardieu answering various objections raised regarding the radidity of possible German concentration and the distance of the military help of the allies pointed out that it was impossible to admit that an army reduced to 100,000 men could, even in the face of universal indifference of the world in general and France in particular, be raised to several million men, armed and equipped ready for war. The hearing of M. Clemenceau lasted three hours.

RAILROAD SHOP STRIKE IN MACON

300 Walk Out on Georgia Southern and Florida and 25 at Valdosta Follow—Demand Removal of Foreman.

Macon, Ga., July 30.—Three hundred men employed at the Georgia Southern and Florida railroad shops in this city walked out today when their demands for the removal of the foreman of the shops was refused. Later twenty-five men employed at the Georgia Southern and Florida shops at Valdosta also were called out.

Superintendent of Motive Power W. H. Dooley, of the Southern Railway system, is hurrying here from Cincinnati in an effort to adjust the grievance.

General Chairman B. B. St. Clair, of the shopmen of this city, is in Washington with other members of a national committee for a wage conference with Director General Hines.

No other shops in this city are affected by the strike thus far.

The foreman of the shops is G. C. Reddick.

The workmen said today they prefer not to talk of the nature of the grievance at this time, but they will not return to work under Foreman Reddick. At noon today a committee called on Master Mechanic C. G. Goff, stated their grievance and demanded the removal of the foreman. The trouble is said to have been brewing for some time, and a 30-day limit is said to have been given for the adjustment of the alleged wrong. The time was up today.

According to the members of the committee, Master Mechanic Goff refused to grant their demands, and in less than an hour the work in the shops was at a standstill. The shopmen say they hope for an adjustment of the situation within a few days. Efforts to locate Mr. Reddick today to get a statement as to the trouble were unsuccessful.

200 U. S. SOLDIERS WILL BRING HOME GERMAN BRIDES

Washington, July 30.—Two hundred American soldiers have filed requests to bring home German wives, Representative King, republican, Illinois, declared today on his return from a six weeks' tour of European countries and the war zone.

"Although American soldiers are not permitted formally to fraternize with the Germans," said Mr. King, "the sight of a doughboy with a fraulein is a common one."

Representative King explained an injury to his left wrist by saying that he and some other congressmen were stoned at Brest "by a Bolshevik." Others in the party were Representatives Neely, West Virginia; Goodall, Maine; McClintock, Oklahoma, and Purnell, Indiana.

VAIN EFFORTS TO STOP BRITISH COAL STRIKE

London, July 30.—An attempt to settle the Yorkshire coal strike today proved unsuccessful. The conference of owners and strikers, held at Leeds, at which it was hoped a solution of the difficulty might be reached, failed to effect an agreement.

PROPOSES TO PUT BAN ON EXPORTS OF SUGAR

Washington, July 30.—Exportation of sugar would be prohibited for two years under a bill introduced today by Representative Elliott, epublican, of Indiana. He said wholesalers were giving as a reason for failure to fill orders from sugar retailers the necessity of supplying export demand.

Contains more Turkish than any other "Turkish blend" cigarette

YOU don't want too much Turkish tobacco in your cigarette. "Too much" keeps you worrying about how many cigarettes you can smoke.

But you do want ENOUGH Turkish.

The extra large proportion of Turkish in Fatimas gives smokers that delicious Turkish taste. But blended with it is just the right selection of Domestic tobaccos, carefully proportioned to offset entirely that over-richness so characteristic of straight unmixed Turkish.

That is why—even if a man smokes more Fatimas than usual—they leave him feeling just as he should feel—fine and fit for his work.

AMERICAN IS HELD ON GRAFT CHARGE

Arrest of Davis Morris Ordered in Mexico—He Is Accused of Aiding Felipe Pescador in Looting Railroads.

Mexico City, July 30.—(By the Associated Press.)—The arrest of Davis Morris, an American, general superintendent of the express system, and Felipe Pescador, former general director of the Mexican National railways, was ordered today by the district court as the result of an investigation of railroad affairs.

Morris and Pescador were charged with irregularities in the financial affairs of the railways.

A writ of "amparo," which is a process staying further proceedings, and somewhat similar to the American writ of habeas corpus, was obtained by both men, delaying further judicial action for seventy-two hours. At the end of that time the arrests will be made unless further judicial action should change the court's course.

The investigation of affairs of the Mexican National railways followed the publication by newspapers of many criticisms on the management and allegations of irregularities.

Pescador recently resigned as director general of railways, and Colonel Paulino Fentes, manager of the Southeast railways, was appointed to succeed him July 8.

Grafting is Charged.

Washington, July 30.—Reports of graft in connection with operation of the Mexican railways have been current for some months and have reached the state department.

Felipe Pescador, who succeeded Alberto J. Pani as director general of all the railway lines in Mexico, was removed from office about three weeks ago. David M. Morris, who it is said here is a Mexican and not an American, was director of the Federal Express system. He also was removed recently from office.

A situation developed, it was learned today, by which the express system was the only organization which could get freight cars through to their destinations and therefore practically all the freight business of the republic was handled by the express company. It has been charged publicly that the express company got 45,000,000 pesos in two years and a half operation.

After the removal of Pescador and Morris, reports of graft became serious, and an energetic press campaign demanding an investigation was inaugurated, and on July 19 an investigation was ordered and the public prosecutor turned the case over to the sixth district court in Mexico City, which today ordered the arrest of Pescador and Morris.

The forms of graft charged were various, including the stripping of the cars of all their woodwork and iron equipment, leaving the wreckage on the tracks. Hundreds of these cars, it is reported, have been discovered outside of Nuevo Laredo, near the American boundary, and other hundreds in the interior.

Another form of graft alleged is that all the ties for all railroad work in the Mexican republic had to be supplied from Pescador's estate.

The railways were seized by Carranza under war powers granted him when he first came into power in Mexico and before his election as president. These powers have never been rescinded by congress and the railways have never turned in a penny to the stockholders since their seizure. The receipts have been supposed to be used as a part of the federal revenues but have not been segregated in any report made by the Mexican treasury department.

More than 151,000 tons of crude neat were produced in the United States last year, exceeding the best previous year by about 56 per cent.

MEASURE TO FORM NEW ROAD BOARD

while he sought to perfect defects in the bill as he saw them, if he could not get what he wanted, he would vote for what he could get.

Prediction Comes True.

In the debate on the reconsideration of the size of the commission issue, which was characterized by even more feeling than the day before, a bitter attack was made upon The Constitution by some members under the misapprehension that it had characterized all those who voted for a board of twelve as enemies of good roads. On the contrary that is exactly what The Constitution did not do. What it said in its account of the proceedings of Tuesday was that, while all the enemies of the good roads bills had voted for the large board, a great many who preferred a large board could be counted upon to vote for the bill on its final passage even though they were defeated on the question of the size of the board.

This is exactly what happened in the final vote yesterday. Every member who voted against the bill had either voted for a board of twelve or refrained from voting when that issue was up, while a majority of those who favored a board of twelve voted for the bill with a board of three on its final passage. It was upon this that The Constitution predicated the forecast of ultimate easy victory for the measure and this prediction was amply verified in yesterday's result.

Notable among the members who took this latter course was Mr. Rogers, of Elbert, the original propounder of the board of twelve plan in the house. He voted for the measure on final passage.

In explaining his vote on reconsideration, a vigorous defense of The Constitution and its editor was made by Representative Lindsay, of De Kalb. He declared that he held both the paper and its editor in the highest regard and that The Constitution had been the pioneer in the movement for good roads in Georgia, giving its space and spending its money freely in that effort, long before members, who were now assailing it, had developed the slightest interest in the matter.

Another roll call resulted in a severer defeat for the large board advocates than had that of the day before, reconsideration meeting with defeat by a vote of 96 to 80. While a number of members who voted for a large board the day before voted no on reconsideration, only one member changed from nay to aye, Mr. Whitaker, of Lowndes.

To Increase Pensions.

In explaining his vote, Mr. Brooke, of Cherokee, showed that only one state in the union had a board of twelve, Montana. Fifteen states had boards of three, twelve had five, three had four, fifteen had three, eight had one and one had eight.

After the final overthrow of the large board faction the bill had easy sailing during the balance of the session. Amendments proposed were either generally accepted or overwhelmingly voted down as not to require a show of hands. The committee amendments were in the main engrafted in the bill as passed.

The rules committee was unanimously granted its request to be allowed to fix the calendar of the house for the afternoon sessions of today and tomorrow. On recommendation of the rules committee, Rule No. 43 was amended so as to forbid members recommitting bills or withdrawing them from one committee to another except during the period of unanimous consents.

A bill introduced by Representative Munchew, of Bacon, would increase the pension of confederate veterans and their widows to $120 per year, payable semi-annually, beginning next January 1.

An inkling of the fight in the senate between Senators Flynt and Parker on the coastal plains agricultural station bill was observed in the house when the measure was taken from one of the general judiciary committees and recommitted to general agriculture No. 2.

Local Bills Passed.

The following local bills were passed by the house on Wednesday:

To amend act incorporating Crawfordville academy.

To amend act creating board of commissioners of Warren and Taliaferro counties.

To amend city charter of Camilla.

To repeal act establishing Jesup public school system.

To amend city charter of Jesup.

To amend act creating Jones county board of commissioners.

To amend act establishing public school system of Abbeville.

To amend town charter of Newborn.

To amend town charter of Arlington.

To authorize city of Valdosta to issue $150,000 of bonds for schools.

To authorize bond election in town of Boswell.

To provide for permanent registration in city of Cordele.

To provide for new registration in town of Newborn.

To amend city charter of Monroe.

To amend commutation road law so as to require five days' road work instead of ten.

The second highway bill on the house program known as the automobile tax license bill, was taken up at the afternoon session, and after much smoother sailing than its predecessor had at first had, finally stumbled on the rocks at the tag end of a session lasting until 6:30 o'clock and was defeated by a vote of 91 to 48, lacking six of receiving a constitutional majority. This was entirely due, it is believed, to so many of the bill's supporters having left the hall before the vote was taken.

As soon as the result was announced, notice to reconsider was given by Mr. DuBose, who was in charge of the bill, and the measure will come up for action on that motion today. A bare majority will suffice to reconsider and the bill can be advanced again on the calendar by the rules committee and acted upon whenever its friends feel strong enough to carry it, which they are almost certain to do in any full meeting of the house.

Opposition Bitter.

The bill greatly advances the license fees for automobiles and motor vehicles of every sort in order to raise the funds for the highway commission provided for at the morning session to work on.

The opposition as it first developed seemed to be very small, but it was exceedingly bitter, being characterized by amendments intended to reduce the fees charged, and when these failed by dilatory motions of every kind from Mr. Stewart, of Atkinson. Discussion of the bill served much better than that of the previous measure to develop who were the real friends and enemies of highway legislation along the lines outlined in the measures proposed.

There were seen to be two factions of these opponents. Those like Messrs. Davis of Oglethorpe, and Stovall of McDuffie, who openly profess that they are not in favor of any highway legislation along the lines suggested and others, a more numerous class, who, while claiming to be friends of the bill sought to weaken its effect by diminishing the revenue to be derived therefrom, and who finally, when all these amendments were overwhelmingly voted down, sought through an amendment offered by Mr. Wohlwender, of Muscogee, to completely emasculate the bill and force even its friends to vote it down by putting the administration of the funds to be derived from the greatly increased license taxes in the hands of the counties rather than in that of a centrally organized state highway commission. They saw in this a body blow aimed at the very heart of the bill passed in the morning and a lapse to the very system which the federal government had condemned, and under which the state had failed to receive the sums for good roads accruing to it under the federal government.

Would Destroy Effect.

The bitterest fight of the day was made on this amendment on which the ayes and nays were called. Mr. DuBose, of Clarke, in charge of the bill, divided the twenty minutes allowed him for the conclusion of the debate on the amendment between Mr. Burt, of Dougheray, one of the authors of the bill; Mr. Mundy, of Polk, Mr. Carswell, of Wilkinson, and Judge Covington, of Colquitt. All of these speakers urged that the passage of such an amendment was in direct conflict with the law enacted at the morning session, would destroy its effect and put the state right back under the old inefficient system, except that it would give county officials more than ten times as much money to waste as they have now.

By skilfully appealing to the prejudice between the large and small counties, the advocates of this amendment undoubtedly succeeded in drawing away a number of the friends of real highway legislation, but with all the attempted array of prejudice between town and country they were decisively beaten on a roll call vote by 83 to 63. A number of those who had voted with these leaders on previous roll calls left them and voted against the amendment.

Mr. Rogers, of Elbert, who sincerely advocated and believed in a twelve-man highway board, and who, at the morning session, had proposed a somewhat similar amendment in advocating the work be started simultaneously in all the counties, but who is a sincere friend of effective highway legislation, at this session now parted company with his old associates and voted against the Wohlwender amendment.

Issue Settled.

In explaining his vote he declared that he saw an effort was being made to defeat highway legislation by these amendments. The issue had already been settled and he saw nothing to be gained for good roads in an effort to upset what had already been done at the morning session.

The arguments of those who claimed that the automobile license fees in the bill were too high were answered by Messrs. Carswell, Lankford, Knight and others with the showing that the measure had been before the public and had been thoroughly canvassed for six months and yet no opposition had been heard of coming from the farmers or owners of automobiles in cities. As to the allegation made that the license fees were so high as to be prohibitive on trucks of more than seven tons, south Georgia members declared that these large trucks had done thousands of dollars worth of damage to roads in their counties in a few months' time and the highest fee was only $1,500. If the charges were prohibitive it would be all the better that they should be so.

The farmers were not willing to have themselves taxed for good roads unless these roads were protected against damage and those who did the severest damage compelled to pay at least a part of it.

What the farmers wanted, the speakers urged, was good roads, and they were perfectly willing to pay for them.

Mr. Davis, of Oglethorpe, made a speech in opposition to the tax bill as he had to the reorganization of the highway department yesterday. He opposed the bill first as class legislation, he said, and secondly, as directly contrary to the interest of the farmer in making it all the more difficult for him to secure farm labor.

Asks Labor Question.

"Where are you going to get the labor from with which you expect to build these roads?" he inquired. "Will not most of it come from the farms, depleting them of hands and making it all the more difficult and expensive for them to secure the necessary labor with which to make their crops? You will certainly hear from them when they find out what you have done for them. The man in the backwoods whom your paved highways will never reach, whose grandchildren will get no benefit from your good road legislation, will remember you when he pays five times the tax on his little automobile and finds the labor that he had depended on to make his crops off building paved highways miles away from him which he will never see."

Not in this connection but to another opponent, Mr. Carswell, who claims for himself the honor of being the biggest "rube" in the house and hailing from the poorest county with the best people in the state, raised a laugh when he directed the question:

"Isn't all the opposition to this measure coming from you fellows who are seeking to ride into office on a 'flivver?'"

The house adjourned at 6:40 to meet at 9 o'clock this morning.

FORMER NEW YORK FIRE COMMISSIONER IN CITY

Joe Johnson, Old Atlanta Newspaper Man, Returns for Well-Earned Rest.

Joe Johnson, Atlanta newspaperman twenty years ago, more recently a New York newspaper man, political and publicity expert, Red Cross man and many other things that have served to make him nationally known, is in Atlanta on his first vacation after many years of labor.

He is himself one who takes active part, a rather personal part, in New York's political life, having once been fire commissioner and later deputy comptroller of that city. His most recent and perhaps his greatest work is that of director of general publicity for the American Red Cross in Washington for more than a year. The result is that he has been recognized nationally for his efficient Red Cross work.

Mr. Johnson went to New York in the nineties, when for some unknown reason there was a great influx of young southern journalists to that center. When he left, Robert Adamson, one time of The Constitution, also went up. Mr. Johnson had been city editor of The Journal. There has been a startling parallel between the careers of these two men. Johnson was fire commissioner under Mayor Gaynor and Adamson was his private secretary. But soon there developed a great rivalry between these former Atlanta newspaper men. But it has never been of that type to mar the friendship of the two.

Adamson managed Mitchel's campaign, while Johnson was on the Hylan campaign committee. Mitchel won and then Adamson took the place of his friend Johnson as fire commissioner. Four years later Adamson ran for president of the board of aldermen, and Johnson supporting Alfred E. Smith, now governor of New York, who was then opposing Adamson, and Hylan for mayor, came back to power. Yet they are friends through it all.

He is delighted with Atlanta, having not seen her in five years, and says her changes are tremendous. He advises that Atlanta should at once begin proper preparations to meet the demands of a city of half a million people, for that is not far away. He is fond of Atlanta, but he could not refrain from mentioning New York. He especially spoke of the prohibition law there as not being so rigid as yet.

As to whether Johnson and Adamson are going to continue to be pitted against each other politically in the future, remains to be seen. For the present, with Johnson, it is "rest in Atlanta."

ALLIED SHOP CRAFTS WILL MEET TONIGHT

Will Determine Action on Recent Demand for Wage Increase.

A general meeting of the allied shop crafts will be held tonight in the Temple of Labor to decide upon what action to take regarding the demands that have been made upon the railroad administration for an increase in wages, and to consider also a possible reply from Director General Walker D. Hines concerning these demands.

Action will be taken, it is believed, upon the resolution passed June 17 by the convention of the shop crafts held in Atlanta when the delegates representing 30,000 union men working in the shops south of the Potomac and east of the Mississippi rivers declared their intention to walk out August 1 unless the demands for an increase in wages was granted.

International officers of the various brotherhoods are in Washington today, where they held a conference yesterday with Director General Hines, and it is understood that an answer will be given today concerning the demands made by the workers.

Several of the local unions have already voted upon the question of striking, and it is stated officially that the blacksmiths last night overwhelmly repudiated the resolution of the June convention, that called upon the shopmen to walk out should not their demands be met by the railroad administration. Other locals, it is said, have taken the same position, but it has been indicated that other crafts are determined to quit work on the first day of August unless Director General Hines grants the wage increase they have demanded.

GOOD ROADS BOOSTERS CONVENE IN ANNISTON

Florida Short Route Project Is Discussed Before the Meeting.

Anniston, Ala., July 30.—(Special.) Nearly 500 good roads boosters from eastern Alabama and western Georgia made Anniston their Mecca today, the occasion being the first annual convention of the Florida Short Route Highway association. The delegates to the convention came in automobiles from all the towns along the proposed automobile highway from Columbus, Ga., to Gadsden, and all have been the guests of the Anniston Chamber of Commerce.

A feature of the convention was an address by State Highway Engineer W. S. Keller at the morning session of the convention. At noon a barbecued feast was served in Athletic park and in the afternoon the route for the proposed automobile highway was discussed. Definite decision as to the route is to be made by the executive committee, following consideration of reports made by committeemen from the various counties.

Permanent organization of the highway association has been effected, temporary officers chosen at the Columbus meeting being made permanent. The enthusiasm of delegations from eastern Alabama counties was a feature of the convention. Clay, Randolph, Calhoun, Etowah and Cleburne delegations being especially eager to secure the highway and to do their part towards making it a success.

RAND SCHOOL WINS IN CHARTER FIGHT

New York, July 30.—The complaint filed by Attorney General Newton, of New York state, in proceedings instituted at the request of the joint legislative committee investigating radical activities to have revoked the charter of the Rand School of Science in this city, was dismissed today by Supreme Court Justice McAvoy. The action was taken upon motion of Samuel Untermyer after Deputy Attorney General Berger had announced he was not ready to go on with the trial of the case.

"World Very Dark," Sumter Man Wrote As He Ended Life

Lincoln K. Bagley's Death Believed Due to Mental Derangement. Wife, Suing for Divorce, Heard Shot.

Americus, Ga., July 30.—(Special.) "This world is very dark. Good-bye, Charles and all," wrote Lincoln K. Bagley, prominent Sumter county farmer and merchant, just before he ended his life today at his home in De Soto, fifteen miles east of Americus.

Bagley's suicide is attributed by those who knew him to domestic troubles, ill-health and mental derangement. Recently he was confined for a time in jail here, when an effort was made to have him committed to the state insane asylum at Milledgeville. His mental condition appeared to improve, however, and he was released without trial of a lunacy writ that had been applied for.

Bagley divorced his first wife several years ago, and although he resided in the same house with the present Mrs. Bagley, she had recently filed suit for a divorce, which action is still pending in Sumter superior court. Mrs. Bagley is postmistress at De Soto and daughter of one of the most prominent farmers in that community.

She heard the shot that ended her husband's life and hurriedly informed neighbors, who returned with her and found the note penned by Bagley upon a scrap of paper just before the fatal shot was fired.

AMUSEMENTS

Le Marie Hayes & Co.

(At B. F. Keith's Lyric.)

The new bill Thursday ushers in at Keith's Lyric is topped by LeMaire, Hayes and company, a blackface comedy organization classed among the best on the Keith circuit. Jean Barrios, in song impressions, will be a refreshing feature. Other acts include Alice Sheldon and Lucille Dalley, singing girls; Novelty Mitchells, comedy gymnasts, and Willie Hale and brother, novelty manipulators. News and travel pictures will beshown.

Change of Bill.

(At Loew's Grand.)

LeClair and Sampson, in their screaming burlesque athletic novelty, "Nearly the Strongest Man in the World," come to Loew's Grand today on the new program for the last half of the week. For an eccentric acrobatic act this offering is hard to beat and is considered one of the funniest in vaudeville. Another act that will appeal to those who enjoy a good laugh, is the offering of Moore and Shy, one a midget comedian, and the other a big, fat man. It is a knockout comedy act. Others on the bill are Golden and West in a singing and dancing oddity; Emmett and Moore, in bits of blarney, and Peggy Brooks, the "Follies" star, in character songs.

Featured on the screen is Gladys Brockwell in "The Sneak."

"Sahara."

(At the Tudor.)

"Sahara," written by C. Gardner Sullivan and acted by a cast of prominent players, is proving a real drawing card at the Tudor. The picture has an excellent plot and its characters are the real life-like characters to be found in a Sullivan photoplay.

Louise Glaum is the star of the picture and has one of her most effective roles. The scenes in the film range from the cafes of Paris to the scorching sands of the Sahara desert.

Matt Moore and Edwin Stevens are seen in support of the star.

"Louisiana."

(At the Forsyth.)

Few of her pictures have afforded Vivian Martin, the dainty and universally popular little Paramount star, with such an opportunity for dramatic depth and genuine acting as "Louisiana," her latest Paramount picture, which is to be shown at the Forsyth theater the rest of the week.

The photoplay is a picturization of Frances Hodgson Burnett's novel of the same name. This is considered one of that author's best novels and one which had a wide sale.

"Louisiana" does not concern the locale of the story, but is the name of the heroine around whom the plot revolves.

"The Dark Star."

(At the Rialto.)

Ward Crane, who plays a leading role in the Cosmopolitan picturization of Robert W. Chambers' story, "The Dark Star," featuring beautiful Marion Davies, which is drawing big crowds to the Rialto this week, was once upon a time secretary to the late Colonel Roosevelt and among his choicest treasures Mr. Crane preserves some autographed photographs presented to him, together with many souvenirs by Colonel Roosevelt.

In "The Dark Star" Miss Davies portrays the role of a girl who is presumably under the influence of an evil planet and whose life is one series of thrilling adventure. She is hounded by German secret service agents who plot her death, but who themselves are punished by fate. There is a beautiful love story which is developed in Mr. Chambers' happiest vein.

Constance Talmadge.

(At the Criterion.)

The Criterion theater is presenting Constance Talmadge this week in her latest comedy drama, "Experimental Marriage." This charming young star plays the role of a young widow who wanted to marry a handsome young lawyer, but dared not. She didn't want to lose her freedom, so she devised a plan whereby she could have both. They were to live as man and wife from Friday to Monday; on other days each was to do as he or she wished. The picture is an excellent example of what is best in present-day comedy.

Others features this week are an Outing-Chester scenic, Topical Tips, a Mutt and Jeff comedy and the Criterion orchestra of twenty pieces.

Pauline Frederick.

(At the Strand.)

Pauline Frederick, noted emotional star, is seen in a wild tumble down a steep hillside overlooking a railroad track, in an effort to stop the train and summon help for the man she has just shot in "The Peace of Roaring River," which is the headline picture at the Strand theater this week; and when the train goes on, and help has been promised, she goes on back to the little cottage, helps him get up and onto a bed, and nurses him until he finds that although he had not written her to come to his town to marry him, that she was the real girl for him after all. In addition there is the Kinogram Weekly, with timely views, and a Christie comedy.

Norma Talmadge.

(At the Savoy.)

Three sterling shows will be presented in succession on three different days by the Savoy theater today. Norma Talmadge, the queen of emotional drama, will be presented in "By Right of Purchase," a play that treats of unhappy marriage and its tragic results. On Friday little Margarita Fisher, the breezy farce star, will be offered in "Trixie From Broadway," a clever little comedy. Saturday, William Desmond will appear in a special summer attraction, the same bill, laughable Fatty Arbuckle will appear in a special summer attraction, "Fatty and the Bathing Beauties."

"Pershing's Crusaders."

(At the Alpha.)

"Pershing's Crusaders," a United States government official war film, will be offered at the Alpha today. This picture, taken by the special photographers of the war department, shows hundreds of scenes of the part taken by American troops in the war. It is of vital interest to every American, young and old. When Uncle Sam set about his war activities, he resolved to make each step preserved in history; and he did this by having motion pictures taken. "Pershing's Crusaders" is a part of this marvelous motion picture history.

PLANNING TO MODIFY 1918 WAR REVENUE ACT

Washington, July 30.—Formulation of a definite policy as to legislation modifying various provisions of the war revenue act of 1918, against which protests have been received from various parts of the country, will be discussed at a meeting tomorrow of the senate finance committee. The call for the meeting was issued by Chairman Penrose late today, following hearings on house bills repealing the soda water tax and substituting a tax of 2 cents a gallon fruit juice beverages for the present 10 per cent gross sales tax.

In addition to the two bills now pending before the senate committee, which certain republican senators regard as "pop-gun" legislation, proposals have been made in the house looking to the repeal of the luxury taxes as well as certain of the excise taxes, especially those relating to imposts on candy, sporting goods and furs. Senate leaders, it is understood, feel that the question as to how far congress is to go in this matter should be determined at once. Many senators feel that if one section of the bill is reopened, there is nothing that would prevent modifications of other provisions being taken up, which, as one senator said today, would bring a "Pandora box of trouble."

Owing to the house recess Saturday for more than a month, members of the senate committee said tonight the committee would take no final action upon the soda water and fruit juice tax bills before September, at least.

The commmittee tomorrow is expected to discuss also the question of tariff legislation to some extent, although senate republican leaders believe that it would be unwise to take any action along those lines at this time owing to abnormal business conditions. They also doubt whether any such legislation could be enacted at the present extraordinary session.

REFERENDUM ORDERED ON CHICAGO STRIKE

Chicago, July 30.—Following conference today between representatives of the 15,000 striking street railway men and Governor Lowden, announcement was made that the compromise agreement rejected by the men Monday night, when they voted an immediate strike, would be submitted Friday night for a referendum vote.

Both the heads of the companies and the union officials charged radicals dominated Monday night's meeting and prevented the rank and file from calmly expressing their best judgment.

Unless some means is found to get the workers back on the cars pending their final decision on the proposition, Chicago faces at least two more days of the strike. A referendum, if taken Friday night and resulted favorably to acceptance of the proposition, probably would be completed in time to start cars Saturday morning.

In the meantime thousands of Chicagoans must walk long distances and other thousands pay toll to the "bus men," who have jumped at the profits to be made by operating automobiles and trucks.

The second day of the strike saw four hundred business men on duty as traffic officers, filling the deserted posts of the traffic policemen, who have been on race riot duty for three days. The streets were congested with motor traffic, the steam roads continued to operate extra cars and trains, and the greater part of Chicago found ways of getting to work and business for the most part went on as usual.

No serious accident had marked the strike, nor violence worthy of mention.

Mrs. Wanderwell's Case Dismissed Wednesday; Second Trial Today

The charges of failing to abate a nuisance, she was alleged to have knowledge of, were dismissed against Mrs. Nellie Wanderwell, one of the workers of the Volunteers of America, in Recorder George Johnson's court Wednesday.

Mrs. Wanderwell was dismissed when her attorney, Alonzo Fields, filed a demurrer, containing seven points, asking that the case be dismissed, as no evidence had been produced that would warrant a case being made.

Another trial will be held Friday in the recorder's court, at which an effort will be made to make out a case, charging Mrs. Wanderwell with maintaining a nuisance.

Witnesses Not Called.

More than 100 witnesses were at the trial yesterday, but they were not called upon for testimony. The session of the court was taken up principally with arguments between the attorneys for the city and the counsel for the defense.

The trial has attracted unusual attention, due to the prominence of the organization and individuals concerned, and many spectators were present when the recorder opened the case for discussion.

No effort by the police of Atlanta has been made to force the Volunteers of America to cease soliciting funds on the streets, but Recorder Johnson, at the beginning of the affair, advised the officials of the organization to suspend all activities until the termination of the trial.

Fight Expected.

Attention to this trial was brought up several weeks ago, when Mr. and Mrs. Wanderwell were arrested on charges of disorderly conduct at their home, 96 Metropolitan avenue. Wanderwell was fined $26 in the recorder's court, and was released after paying the fine.

Mrs. Wanderwell's trial brought several officials of the national organization to Atlanta, and a big fight is expected when the case is brought up for final settlement.

CHINESE URGE DEFEAT OF SHANTUNG CLAUSE

Washington, July 30.—Appealing to the senate to refuse ratification of the articles of the peace treaty, which give Japan possession of Shantung, the Chinese students' alliance in the United States, said to have a membership of 1,500, through its president, Feng Hua Huang, gave out an open statement tonight declaring that the "American peace mission does not attempt to justify this spoliation of China, the trusting friend and war associate of the United States, on moral or legal ground.

"The only reason given," the statement added, "is that it was necessary to 'save the league of nations.'

"If the bribing of Japan to support the league of nations could be morally justified," the statement continued, "would it not have been more fair and honest to give her something belonging to the United States, say one of your states, instead of the acknowledged property of your confiding friend and war associate, China?"

NEW SHOW WILL OPEN HERE FRIDAY NIGHT

Fast Bouts Scheduled for Walk Miller's Arena.

Friday night will mark the opening of Walk Miller's new boxing arena, when twenty fast rounds and a battle royal will comprise the opening schedule. Besides the battle royal, two fast and furious six-round mix-ups have been arranged and also two four-round misunderstandings. The admission price has been set at a standard of one "iron man."

Work was completed on the ring a few days ago, and the fighters who are to clash Friday have been working out daily from 3:30 until 6:30.

The main attraction of the night will be a six-round set-to between Freddie Boore, a native son, and Marty Falk, the popular young fistic artist from Camp Jessup. These two boys have fought one fight before this, a four-round affair to a draw. Atlanta fans have seen these boys in action several times, and know it will be full of action, as both are the tear-in, rushing types of boxers, with a great deal of science mixed in. The other six-round bout will be between Young Attell and Kid York, both local scrappers, and both rugged and hardy and able to take a great deal of punishment.

Young Barnett, the 122-pound king of the Y. M. C. A. of this city, will go four rounds with Kid Nappie, while the remaining four-round argument has not been clinched as yet. The show will open with five darkies each trying to maul the other to unconsciousness.

Announcement has been made by "Walk" that his first show will start promptly at 9 o'clock and as the arena is out in the open he believes that no patron will suffer from the heat. Beginning Friday night week, bouts will be put on twice a week, on every Tuesday and Friday nights. If rain halts any of the bouts, the same will be put on the next night at the same time.

SUBMARINE SINKS IN L. ISLAND SOUND; THREE MEN LOST

New London, Conn., July 30.—The United States submarine G-2, which is listed as an obsolete craft and used for experimental work, sank with open hatches in Long Island sound, off Pleasure Beach, in Waterford, today, and three of its crew of nine were drowned. The other members of the crew, all of whom were from the submarine base here, were rescued by men from the United States coast guard cutter Acushnet, which was accompanying the submarine.

The G-2 was engaged in experimenting with depth bombs, and it sank apparently without warning. The hull has been located and salvage operations will follow. The names of the men drowned have not been given out.

The submarines N-3 and R-5, with divers, were sent to the spot where the G-2 sank and early this afternoon one body had been recovered. The submarine was in charge of Gunner G. B. Morrow.

COTTON FUTURES MEASURE TABLED

Bill Attacked by Ennis as Instrument of Gamblers. Two Bucket Shops Running Openly, Elders Charges.

After a bitter debate in which charges of corrupt legislation were made, the cotton futures act, introduced by Senator Clements of the 15th, was tabled by the senate Wednesday. This bill prescribes and regulates the laws dealing with cotton futures in Georgia and makes the state future laws conform to the federal futures act.

The bill was bitterly attacked by Senator Ennis of the 20th who declared that its passage would bankrupt the farmers of the south. "It is the most harmful and corrupt piece of legislation ever brought before a Georgia legislature and is only an effort of the bucket shoppers to reopen their gambling dens," the senator declared.

The attack was not a personal one upon the authors of the bill, the senator from the 20th brought out. "The friends of this bill do not in all probability realize its full significance," he declared.

Elders Supports Bill.

Senator Elders made a speech in favor of the bill, stating that it was absolutely straight legislation and would do more to put cotton futures on a high plane than anything that could happen. He declared there were two bucket shops in the state operating openly which this bill would destroy. In speking of the three advantages of the bill, he said: "It will in the first place make the state laws conform to the federal futures act passed August 11, 1916. Many states have already passed this bill and we should do likewise.

"Secondly—it will drive out of the state the only two bucket shops now in existence. These bucket shops at present are simply fraudulent gambling houses which have no intention of making the deliveries contracted for. And finally, it will authorize and put on a high plane the legal exchange of futures."

Senator Ennis was so violent in his opposition as to refuse the granting of a unanimous consent asked for by Senator Flynt to have copies of the bill printed and distributed to the senate. This was asked to enable the senators to study the provisions and be able to render an intelligent vote when the bill is taken from the table.

Prohi Measure Fails.

Senator Ragsdale's bill seeking to make the prohibition laws of the state more drastic was lost. It would make the violations of the bone dry law a felony and punishable as such.

Among the measures passed was a bill by Senator Dorris, of the Forty-eighth, affecting legal practice in the state of Georgia. It authorizes courts of record to make binding declarations of right and is patterned after the English law. Senator Dorris, in explaining the bill, declared that it would tend to greatly reduce legislation.

A bill introduced by Senator Ayres, of the Thirty-third, would amend the constitution to provide for the election of judges and solicitor general of the superior superior courts by the voters of their respective circuits.

HEALTH CONSERVATION URGED AT CONFERENCE

City and County Health Officers in Session at State Health Board.

The need for adequate preventive health measures properly enforced both as a means of wiping out disease and of saving the state thousands of dollars annually was the topic around which most of the addresses at Wednesday's session of the school conference of city and county health officers now being held at the rooms of the state board of health, centered.

Major Joseph Bowden, representative of the U. S. health service, after telling of the reluctance of the state legislature to appropriate $25,000 for control and regulation of venereal diseases, a sum which would be matched by the government, made the statement that there are now at the academy for the blind at Macon 37 children, born blind as a result of venereal infection, who would cost the state $10,000 in care and training.

Talking upon the types of mind among defectives, Dr. V. V. Anderson, head of the commission for the feeble-minded, declared that crime alone costs one and one-third times as much as all the educational institutions of this country. Most of the crime, he said, is committed by persons mentally abnormal, who should be taken care of in special institutions, and given special training. The segregation of the mentally unfit would prevent a vast expense from state and government funds, Dr. Anderson concluded.

Compliments Atlanta

While Georgia is behind in dealing with the two problems mentioned above, Atlanta has something to boast of in her attempt to keep down tuberculosis, according to James P. Faulkner, secretary of the W. P. Raoul foundation, who said, "Atlanta has the most efficient anti-tuberculosis organization of any city south of Ohio, employing five full time nurses and holding a daily clinic."

Dr. T. F. Abercrombie opened the conference with an address of welcome, and then turned the chair over to M. F. Haygood, who later spoke on some of the things which handicap the health officer.

An interesting speaker of the afternoon session was Miss Chloe Allen, who quoted figures showing that out of 2,000,000 men in the army inoculated for typhoid, there were only about 700 cases of the disease, showing that while the vaccine is not infallible, its results are highly satisfactory. She said that if typhoid had ravaged the army according to the ratio of the Spanish-American war there would have been 384,000 cases during the world war.

Other speakers on Wednesday were Dr. W. A. Davis, director of the bureau of vital statistics, who had for his subject "The Health Officer and his Relation to Birth Registration;" Dr. T. F. Sellars, director of the state laboratories; E. L. Webb, serologist, who discussed the technique of the Wasserman reaction for syphilis, and Ray C. Werner, who spoke on water supply.

Evening Session.

In the evening Dr. C. G. Applewhite gave a forceful address on rural and village sanitation; Dr. Bean, of the U. S. public health service, talked on the collection of morbidity reports, and Drs. Sellars and Davis made short speeches on their special branches of work.

The conference will continue on Thursday, the program being as follows:

10:30 A. M.

16. Malaria Control—Dr. Marcus Mashburn, commissioner of health, Valdosta, Ga.
17. Methods and Results of an Anti-Malaria Campaign in Moultrie, Ga.—Dr. G. M. Anderson, commissioner of health, Moultrie, Ga.
18. Physical Education—Dr. John Schreiber, commissioner of health, Thomasville, Georgia.
19. Medical Inspection of School Children—Dr. B. D. Blackwelder, commissioner of health, LaGrange, Ga.
20. Sanitary Handling of Food and Drink—Dr. R. W. Todd, commissioner of health, Brunswick, Ga.

2:30 P. M.

21. Hookworm Eradication—Dr. O. H. Cheek, commissioner of health, Dublin, Ga.
22. Sanitary Closets—Dr. T. W. Taylor, commissioner of health, Sylvester, Ga.
23. Control of Communicable Diseases—Dr. R. A. Herring, commissioner of health, Milledgeville, Ga.
24. Combining County and City Health Work—Dr. R. L. DeSaussure, commissioner of health, Rome, Ga.
25. Typhoid Vaccination—Dr. B. F. Bond, commissioner of health, Americus, Ga.

JESSUP TO REMAIN PERMANENT CAMP, EXAMS INDICATE

Indicative that Camp Jessup is to remain in Atlanta is the announcement by the civil service commission that competitive examinations will be held for more than one hundred vacancies as assistant instructors in the motor transport corps at Camp Jessup. Examinations will also be held at Camp Holabird, Baltimore; Camp Normoyle, San Antonio, and Camp Boyd, El Paso. The salaries range from $1,500 to $2,400 per year.

The civil service has sent out a request urging those who are qualified for the following positions to make immediate application, as the positions are very important in the government service and employees at present are scarce: Apprentice fish culturists, graphotype operators, addressograph operators, proof readers, physical laboratory helpers, file clerks, correspondence clerks, scientific assistants in the bureau of fisheries, dictating machine operators, and preparators in entomology.

Assyrian Catholics Will Erect Church On East Hunter Street

Assyrian Catholics of Atlanta have purchased a lot at 343 East Hunter street for the purpose of erecting a church. The purchase price of this lot was $2,350. Plans for the church are under consideration.

T. S. Najjar, 138 Whitehall street, is in charge of raising funds to pay for the lot and the erection of a house of worship and would appreciate it if friends of the Assyrian Catholics throughout Georgia would send him contributions towards defraying expenses, and paying the balance due on the lot. When completed this church will be the only one in Georgia for the use of the Assyrian Roman Catholics.

CAPITOL GOSSIP

Governor Dorsey has nominated, subject to confirmation by the senate, Joel Cloud for judge of the city court of Lexington in Oglethorpe county, his term of office to extend four years, ending December 14, 1923.

WESTERN UNION ASKS RATE CONTINUANCE

August 26 has been set by the railroad commission as the date for a hearing on the petition of the Western Union Telegraph company that they be allowed to continue the rates now in effect after the government has returned the lines on July 31.

The commission has granted permission for the telegraph company to charge the present rates until the hearing, which will be of wide interest throughout the state. Recently city council filed a petition with the commission protesting against the service which, it is claimed, is given by the Western Union, alleging inefficiency and delay.

No action has been taken in this matter, but the commissioners sent a copy of the letter to the company, asking for a reply within five days.

In asking for a continuance of war-time rates the telegraph company is following in the steps of the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph company, who, some time ago, requested the same privilege, naming twelve months as the time for these charges to be maintained. The hearing on the telephone company's case will be held on August 5.

More Fair Weather, With Occasional Showers, Forecast

"Local unpremeditated showers," to the extent of a very few minutes, visited Atlanta Wednesday afternoon. While it was raining at Five Points, West End was perfectly dry. Generally speaking the day was clear. Continuation of this fair weather for Georgia, with doubtless these "pop" showers, is the outlook for Thursday.

For the past two days the temperature has climbed as high as 89 degrees. Thursday will most likely equal this, but it is not expected to exceed it. It is the sure prophecy of the Atlanta weather chief that excessively high temperatures are not indicated.

An unusual condition of temperature was that of San Francisco on Wednesday, with 50 degrees minimum and 58 degrees maximum. That is not only a record for coolness, but a record for variance.

CAPTAIN DURANT HERE ON FURLOUGH

Captain Armand Durant, after two years overseas, has returned to the city on a furlough for ten days. He is now at home with his parents on Peachtree road.

Captain Durant graduated from Georgia Teach and Virginia Military institute. He had two years' training at the Annapolis Naval academy. When the war started with Germany he was a first lieutenant in the regular army. While in France he was with the sixth field artillery.

COMMERCE CHAMBER TO ENTERTAIN SOLONS

Extensive Program at East Lake Club in Honor of State Legislators.

A dinner, a watermelon cuting, aquatic sports and dancing is the program for the entertainment of the Georgia general assembly as the guests of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce at East Lake Country club next Tuesday afternoon and evening. Individual invitations were being sent out Wednesday by the secretary of the trade body.

For a number of years it has been the custom of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce to entertain the legislators, and usually the entertainment has taken the form of an old-fashioned barbecue, but this year it was unanimously decided to vary it. The "old-fashioned" is still retained, however, in deciding to entertain with a plate dinner and an abundance of real Georgia watermelon. It is the expectation of the solons as well as of the hosts that this will be one of the greatest entertainments of the whole annual session.

The president of the chamber of commerce, Samuel C. Dobbs, conferred with the president of the senate, Samuel Olive, and the speaker of the house, John Holder, Wednesday morning. They readily assured him that the date and plans for the occasion would not interfere with the legislative programs of either house, and that it would suit the convenience of the members generally.

Co-operating with the chamber of commerce for the entertainment of the legislators will be the Athletic club. An exceptional program of aquatic sports, including a number of stunts, will be presented for the pleasure of the guests. A number of Atlanta's best swimmers will participate. After an exhibition of difficult and unusual strokes and fancy diving, there will be dancing on the terrace of the club house.

Transportation for the legislators to and from the city will be arranged by the chamber of commerce, President Dobbs having already placed the arrangements in the hands of a special committee.

Ending Terms in Pen, Two Germans Are Sent To Internment Camp

Gustav Engler and Leonhardt Birklein, two Germans who have just finished terms at the Federal prison, were carried to Fort Oglethorpe Wednesday by two United States deputy marshals for internment. Both have been serving sentences for several years, and it is by order of the attorney general that they are interned.

The United States is not at peace in a strict legal sense with Germany since the treaty has not been ratified, and hence these men are not regarded as desirable citizens just now. They will be returned to their Fatherland, most likely though before leaving Atlanta Engler expressed himself as most desirous of becoming an American citizen and said he had no especial desire to return to Germany.

NEW EXPORT COMPANY M'CLURE TO ORGANIZE

C. W. McClure, chairman of the organization committee for the South Atlantic Export company, who was chosen Tuesday to effect the organization for the big corporation in Georgia, has taken over active control of the work, and will shortly name members of his committee from various portions of the state.

Mr. McClure will also select offices for the headquarters of the company, which has been definitely located in Atlanta. Because of the present congested condition of office space in the city, it is understood he takes at this time, but before many weeks it is declared that an entire floor in one of the big skyscrapers will be required to house that only temporary quarters will the general offices of the company and the general manager's staff of the South Atlantic Maritime company, which will also be located here.

ATLANTA'S DUTY.

The Kiwanis club has started the ball rolling toward the fulfillment of Atlanta's duty to the Confederate veterans who are to hold their annual reunion here next fall, by appropriating $1,000 to be expended in making the big convention a success.

Atlantans, one and all, must remember that the old veterans of the "sixties" are paying this city an unusual tribute in holding their 1919 convention here.

They are coming because they want to come, and asked Atlanta to invite them—which, of course, Atlanta was more than glad to do.

For the first time in the history of the Confederate Veterans' association they asked for an invitation from a city of their designation, because they were anxious to come to Atlanta.

This is a tribute to Atlanta's prestige and hospitality that means something, and it must not be overlooked.

Atlanta—glad that the honored old veterans are coming to be its guests—how owes it to them to care for them, and this the city will do in its characteristic way.

To provide the accommodations and entertainment necessary to that end will require, according to the citizens' committee in charge of arrangements, a fund of $60,000.

That amount, or more, if necessary, should be marshaled without hesitation.

The Kiwanis club has set a splendid example for other organizations, and citizens generally, to follow.

HASTEN THESE BILLS!

A number of bills to provide badly-needed legislation in behalf of public education and character development in Georgia are pending before the general assembly, and each of them should be enacted before it is too late. One of them is the bill providing for the proper treatment and education of mental defectives—a class of citizens for which our state laws heretofore have made no special provision.

Another is the bill providing for state-wide local county special taxation for public school purposes.

Another, one calling for the creation of a commission to combat adult illiteracy.

Still another providing for the consolidation of financially weak and financially strong counties in matters of public education in order to equalize the burden of school support and to give all children an even chance with all other children.

Another is the bill providing for the codification of all of the school laws in the statutes of Georgia.

Of this group of commendable measures, the first has passed the house, and is pending in the senate; and the second has passed the senate and is pending in the house. None of the others has been voted upon by either house.

If voted upon, it is not reasonable to doubt the enactment of any one of these bills; but there is grave danger that one or all of them will fail of enactment if action upon them is deferred until the closing days of the session, which inevitably—in keeping with precedent—will be featured by a congestion of pending measures and unfinished business and general legislative confusion.

These bills are all of vital significance.

Their enactment this year is made all the more important by reason of the fact that the decennial federal census is to be taken next year, and it is to Georgia's interest to go down in the records for the next ten years with as commendable educational ratings as possible.

The legislature will be remiss in its duty to Georgia if it lets this session pass into history without action having been taken upon this progressive educational development program; and it is to be hoped that each of these measures will be placed upon the calendars of the respective branches of the general assembly and set for consideration at the earliest date possible.

FREE LIBRARIES.

Everybody in Massachusetts can walk to a free library and get nearly any book they want to read.

In Georgia only 368,602 people can do this, for we have only 24 public libraries.

Estimating our population at only 2,000,000, that leaves quite a lot of Georgia folks with 365 bookless days in every year.

Among these bookless Georgians are, of course, the 80 per cent of our people who live in the country. These people of rural Georgia need books just as much as do the people in Massachusetts and would enjoy them just as much.

They can have good books come to them if the state will supply the library commission with some money upon which to operate.

Wisconsin is a state of farmers like Georgia, but Wisconsin does not let her country people lead bookless lives. Wisconsin people cannot all walk to a library like Massachusetts people, but a library can come to every one of their rural communities from their state library commission.

Georgia needs to work along both lines. Our people should be encouraged and stimulated to establish more public libraries, and each library should, in every case, serve not only its town, but its county, as is being done in Crisp and Ben Hill counties.

The country people come to the central library in these counties and collections of books go out from the central library to remote parts of the county.

We have 24 public libraries in Georgia. We should have nearer 124 county serving libraries.

Forty-three towns in Georgia have over 2,000 population. Every one of these could maintain a county serving library.

Fifty-nine Georgia towns have between 1,000 and 2,000 population. Even these towns could maintain county serving libraries with the aid of the traveling libraries of the state commission.

When the library commission has a working appropriation from the state all these things can be brought about.

Then, too, the parts of Georgia which are too sparsely settled to maintain even a county serving library can have their book needs met by good selections of books traveling to them back and forth from the capital.

A bill is now before the legislature providing for an annual appropriation of $6,000 for the work of the library commission. This bill should pass.

MANY MONEY CROPS.

The Albany (Ga.) Herald says that reports from the farming districts in that section indicate that "cotton is in a bad way, due to unfavorable weather conditions, and the boll weevil and its pesky tribe."

The Herald says that time was when such a situation would have spelt disaster to the farming interests of that section, but—

"Times have changed, and in nothing have there been more striking changes than in the agricultural methods of the section. There might be a complete failure of the cotton crop without disaster, though no one would be so foolish as to maintain that the total loss of a cotton crop would not entail a serious economic loss. The difference between past times and present is in the great number of money crops now as compared with the one that formerly was depended on."

It is merely another notable instance of the diversified crop plan "to the rescue!" Bad weather and the boll weevil may seriously damage the crop; but there are acres of other crops to fall back on—crops that keep the farmers' bank account up to high-water mark.

It is pointed out that these crops—such as corn and small grain, potatoes, peas, peanuts, velvet beans, hay, watermelons and the products of the fruit trees—are "converted into cash as fast as they are carried to market."

But above all is the money-making hog crop of southwest Georgia, for—

"This year the hog crop of that section will pour hundreds of thousands of dollars into the pockets of the farmers, and more and better beef cattle will be sold than ever before."

That's the biggest part of good news from all other sources of home supply when cotton doesn't come up to expectations. As our Albany contemporary puts it: "It's a great thing for a section when all its eggs are not in one basket."

The alleged "buttermilk jag" must be fatal, since an exchange declares that it doesn't leave a "morning after."

Last Laughter Best, Says Mrs. Cheatham

Editor Constitution: During the debate in the Georgia legislature on the federal suffrage amendment, the opponents of woman suffrage had one substitute for argument which they all frantically shouted, that Georgia, the pivotal state of the south, would take the lead in rejecting the federal suffrage amendment and would be followed by a solid phalanx of southern states.

Before their vote is one week old Arkansas, a state as truly southern as Georgia, has ratified the federal amendment by an overwhelming majority. Arkansas has declined to follow the lead of those statesmen who pretend to represent Georgia.

In fact, the lead of the south had already been taken by Texas, the first southern state to act on the federal suffrage amendment. On June 28 Texas ratified, and her action was followed in a few days by Missouri. So, out of the twelve states that have already ratified the federal amendment, the south can boast three.

The same dire predictions about the negro vote now being made in regard to the suffrage amendment were uttered just as vociferously against the amendment providing for the direct election of senators. But the forebodings of those statesmen who would meet 1919 facts with 1865 arguments have not materialized. The great men of 1865 did not go back half a century for guidance.

Georgia, by rejecting the federal amendment, will probably be the only state in the union to say that its women are not fit to vote.

Before the present legislature convenes again in June, 1920, there is but little doubt that Georgia women will have the right to vote through the action of other states than our own.

The debt of gratitude, which we owe our friends in this legislature, will never be forgotten. And our enemies may not be so elated over their short-lived victory when they remember that he who laughs last laughs best.

A VENDER OF DREAMS

(For The Constitution.)

He stood upon the corner in the city's crowded place
Selling his pale white lilacs from distant country lanes
With the tan of April sunshine all fresh upon his face—
Dealing in God's own treasure to help his scanty gains.

"Come and buy the lilacs, I'm selling dreams today,
Fresh from the fields of Paradise, with dew upon them yet.
They will take you from the city to meadows far away,
Where once their April coming you can nevermore forget."

* * * * * *

Then some one bought his lilacs, some one dressed in silks and laces
And took them where the sick ones lay, amid their grief and pain—
And then, behold! the light of joy came back upon their faces,
To see God's promise of the Spring in lilac blooms again.

From the Man of the Street's Viewpoint One Great Domestic Problem Overshadows All Others

By JAMES A. HOLLOMON.

"To him that hath it shall be given!"

Members of the United States senate, most of whom are rich and many of whom have retired to this great deliberative parliament primarily as a convenient and respectable place in which to clip the coupons from their corporation bonds, or indorse their dividend warrants, are more interested, perhaps, in the league of nations, or in capitalizing the "mistakes" of opposing political parties, preparatory to next year's national campaign, than they are in meeting the problems of living for the American consumers—

Members of the lower house of congress, some of whom are rich and most of whom are at least "comfortable" on salaries and perquisites, and the home incomes from their business or professional connections, are not materially concerned, possibly, by this problem that so bitingly confronts the great majority of our people—

The average business man, the banker, the merchant, the real estate operator, the captain of affairs, in any branch of trade or industry, is not in touch by the pinch of circumstances, possibly, with this situation that is grinding the very lives and hearts, if not the souls, out of the salaried people and the wage-earners—the great majority-throng—who are brought face to face with the prices for living necessities that are inadequate to incomes, even at the increased scales that have been granted—

* * * *

Human Preservation Is the Big Issue Now.

But I am here to tell you, my friends, the big "issue" that concerns the average man of the streets today is the issue of human preservation.

When a consumer is confronted with living expenses that are necessary to conserve the health and comfort of his loved ones, not counting himself, that are in excess of his honest capacity to meet them, then the "issues" of internationalism and party and abstract domestic affairs are swept away with the force of an uncontrolled torrent.

The more acute issues that deal with the body and soul of the individual by the inalienable rights of the supreme law of self-preservation take precedence.

You know it and I know it!

There is no argument about that.

The paramount problem in this country today is the problem of living—

And something must be done, and done with an iron hand, and done at once, to stop profiteering, and to stop one set of individuals, abetted by the power of money and greed, from living, like leeches, off the blood of others.

If something isn't done, then the law of desperation may prevail—unfortunate as that eventuality will be.

* * * *

Reign of Law Based Upon the Opinion of Man.

The greatest words that ever fell from the lips of man, and I say it unreservedly, were those of President Wilson in his Fourth of July oration at Mount Vernon one year ago. He referred then to the great principles of law and order and democracy that were impelling our khaki-clad boys to victory at Chateau Thierry and at St. Mihiel; but the words are applicable today in this great battle of righteousness—the battle for fair and honest treatment to the seventy million men and women and children in America who are "consumers" in the accepted sense of the term.

Mr. Wilson said then—

"What we seek is the reign of law, based upon the governed and sustained by the organized opinion of mankind."

The consumers of this nation ask for no more and no less.

Give them protection from the blood-sapping tyrants who are profiting upon their bodies and souls!

Justice demands it, expediency demands it, the future welfare of the greatest nation the sun shines upon demands it.

* * * * *

Law to Meet This Condition Necessary.

What can be done?

Don't tell me that this wonderful nation cannot stop it.

Don't tell me that Georgia cannot stop it within her own bounds.

No reasonable man expects the prices of commodities today to be on a basis of pre-war prices.

No reasonable man fails to take into account the changes in raw material conditions, the higher prices paid to labor, the thoroughly justified high prices for all the necessities of food and raiment as compared to those of three or four years ago; but there is not a man in Georgia who does not know also that many of the more essential commodities are obtainable only at prices unjustified by the laws of supply and demand; and unjustified on any pretext of justice and equity, even if granted by law and license.

The fact is the law must be framed to the necessity.

I know that Governor Dorsey feels keenly his responsibility in this matter. He feels with his great heart of hearts that something must and should be done, but he is powerless to do anything under the present Georgia statutes.

Only yesterday he wrote to Attorney General Walker and placed the matter squarely and vigorously before him.

* * * *

Governor Dorsey Asks Attorney General.

I quote the governor to the attorney general—

"Since publication in the papers of yesterday and today that the governors of Ohio and other states are taking steps to investigate the high cost of living, I have had many inquiries, especially from the newspapers, as to whether or not Georgia was going to do anything.

"I have replied that from my reading of the news articles it appeared that the steps being taken in other states were under laws, and so far as I knew there was no law that would permit the governor or any other agency in Georgia to make such investigation.

"I would thank you to let me know if I am correct, and if not, I would be pleased to have you cite me to whatever laws would authorize the governor or any other agency to take the matter up, or will warrant the governor in calling upon any other department or agency of the state to proceed with such investigation."

In response the attorney general advised that so far as he knew the only law on the question is embodied in section 707 of the criminal code of the state, which section reads as follows:

"Any person who shall commit the offenses known to the common law as forestalling, regrating, or engrossing may be prosecuted and punished as for a misdemeanor." Code, section 707.

Under the common law "forestalling" consisted of buying up necessaries on their way to market, or contracting for the control of anything coming toward the market, or even of holding out inducements to producers to raise their prices or to withhold their commodities from the market.

"Regrating" consisted of buying up necessaries after they had reached market with intent to resell in the same market at an enhanced price, or even the contracting for the delivery of goods in advance of the market with like intent.

"Engrossing" was the most comprehensive of these offenses, covering all buying of necessaries at markets or elsewhere with intent to sell again, and especially much buying of this sort with intent to control the market.

This statute has not been resorted to since the civil war. It is probable that the legislature might strengthen this law by providing machinery for its enforcement.

Unless there is an enforcement law supplementary to this old statute it is a dead letter, and the governor is powerless.

Read Swint's Bill And Study About It.

In this connection let me call attention to a bill that was proposed at the last session of the legislature by Representative Swint, of Washington county. I will publish here the full text of the bill so that legislators may be thinking about it in connection with some action that I know this assembly, in the course of reason and justice, will take. It follows:

A bill to be entitled an act to prohibit unfair methods of competition in this state; to create and establish a trade commission for said state; to constitute the railroad commission of said state as such trade commission; to provide for the powers and duties of such trade commission, and for other purposes.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Georgia, and it is hereby enacted by authority of the same, that from and after the passage of this act, unfair methods of competition in business, trade, or commerce, by the use of any method in competition which hinders or prevents normal results ensuing from the free operation of the competitive principle, are hereby declared unlawful.

Section 2. The railroad commission of said state is hereby constituted the trade commission of said state; having general supervision over such business, trades and commerce, and with the powers and duties hereinafter prescribed.

* * * *

It Would Prevent Unfair Competition.

Section 3. Said commission is hereby empowered and directed to prevent persons, partnerships, or corporations, except banks and common carriers, from using unfair methods of competition in such businesses, trades and commerce.

Section 4. Whenever the commission shall have reason to believe that any such person, partnership or corporation has been using any unfair method of competition in trade, business or commerce, and it shall appear to the commission that a proceeding by it in respect thereof would be to the interest of the public, it shall issue and serve upon such person, partnership or corporation a complaint stating its charges in that respect, and containing a notice of a hearing upon a day and at a place therein fixed at least ten days after the service of said complaint. The person, partnership or corporation so complained of shall have the right to appear at the place and time so fixed and show cause why an order should not be entered by the commission requiring such person, partnership or corporation to cease and desist from the violation of the law so charge in said complaint. Any person, partnership or corporation may make application, and upon good cause shown may be alowed by the commission to intervene and appear in said proceeding by counsel or in person.

* * * * *

May Issue Order To Cease the Methods.

If, upon the hearing, the commission shall be of the opinion that the method of competition in question is prohibited by this act, they may issue an order requiring such person, partnership or corporation to cease and desist from using such method of competition. Said commission, in the conduct of such hearings, may continue the hearings from time to time and at such places as said commission may deem best.

Section 5. That in the enforcement of its orders and decrees the said trade commission is hereby given and granted all of the powers in relation thereto heretofore given and granted to the said railroad commission for the enforcement of its orders and decrees; and such powers as have been heretofore conferred upon said railroad commission for the enforcement of its orders and decrees are hereby confered upon said trade commission for the enforcement of its orders and decrees in relation to such unfair methods of competition in trade, business or commerce.

Section 6. All laws and parts of laws in conflict with this act are hereby repealed.

* * * * *

Anderson of Jenkins Asks Investigation.

Representative Anderson, of Jenkins, has proposed a resolution for the creation of a joint committee which shall be empowered to conduct throughout the state a complete and thorough investigation of "all matters pertaining to the high cost of living, especially the present food situation."

The commission will have power to travel over and investigate all places and enterprises in the state; to compel the attendance of witnesses and otherwise adduce such evidence as it may desire, with the further power of punishing for contempt.

That is all right as far as it goes. There should be "investigations," but my observation is that they are usually strung out through an unreasonable period, with one chance in a hundred that tangible and timely relief is even finally granted.

Action! That is the demand of this day and hour!

In all sincerity, mind you—

This is no time or occasion for appealing to prejudices, or for capitalizing the "hardships of the great common people," and all that kind of political demagoguery.

It is a business proposition of justice that confronts us. That is all there is to it.

Every workman is worthy of his hire. Every merchant is worthy of his profit. It is not right that the stamp of profiteering should be placed upon those who are guiltless; it is not right that retail dealers should carry the burdens of illegitimate practices on the part of guilty manufacturers or middlemen; it is not right that innocent manufacturers should be charged with the sins of retailers.

* * * *

I don't know where the trouble is. I do know that no honest, legitimate business is going to flinch from the enforcement of fair and reasonable regulations that at least protect the consumers without working injury to the producer or dealer.

Again let me say—

The greatest problems of this country today are those domestic problems that deal with the health and comfort and happiness of our own people—the problems of humanity at home.

In the name of a just God, let's deal with them also while we are dealing, in the spirit of democracy and righteousness, with the more abstract and less acute problems of humanity abroad.

It Doesn't Do Much Good to Prescribe; They Never Take It

Thanks Constitution For Encouragement Of Weekly Press

Editor Constitution: While I represent the whole state press—daily and weekly—in my capacity as president, I at the same time realize that primarily the organization is for the benefit of the weekly papers and for that reason I am writing you this letter to thank you for the article in Monday morning's Constitution, "The Country Weekly."

As you put it, the daily and weekly occupy different fields entirely.

Naturally, as a publisher of a weekly I have argued to the national advertiser that we are as necessary to his advertising schemes as are the larger dailies.

I believe that the large advertiser makes no mistake in using both, and neither the daily or weekly enhances its field by fighting the other, but on the other hand, each cripples the other.

Calls on Legislature To Act on Lynching

Editor Constitution: Every citizen of Georgia should be thankful that at such a time as this you are speaking with no uncertain sound against the crime of lynching and calling upon the state legislature to pass a law that will prevent it.

It seems to me that few persons have a full view of the enormity of this evil, and how officials can connive at shielding those guilty of it, instead of running them down and bringing them to court, goes beyond any idea of right and wrong I can conceive of any sane man to entertain.

Thank God there are churches and individuals helping to bring about a better condition between the races. Now let the legislature act.

One Year Ago Today in War

Onondago Indians of New York declared war on Germany.

General von Eichhorn, German commander in the Ukraine, assassinated.

United States postoffice department took over all telegraph and telephone wires.

Bolo Pasha, the Judas of His Generation

BY NEWELL DWIGHT HILLIS.

The other day, when the executioner tied a black cloth around his eyes, bound the hands of Bolo Pasha, and the rifles cracked, the blackest career of modern times was brought to a just end. Bolo Pasha was the hired agent of Germany. Pretending to be a devoted lover of France, contributing generously to the French loans, and the French Red Cross, this traitor was a German spy, in receipt of enormous sums of German money. He lived in a palace in the heart of Paris. He dwelt, as it were, under the very eaves of the French house of deputies. He gave dinner parties at which the French government officials were guests. He had German dictographs concealed under the mahogany table, behind the paintings on the walls, or hidden under the rich tapestries. Having woven a vast web of intrigue, Bolo Pasha stood in the center of that web, like a big spider that runs along the silken threads to feed upon victims caught in its meshes of death.

Dr. Hillis.

When the French servants in Bolo Pasha's Paris house went into military service, this traitor advertised for older men who by reason of some physical frailty were exempt from war. A well-trained servant answered the advertisement. This man seemed to be an ideal butler. He said nothing about the fact that several years had passed since he had given up his position in the secret service branch of the French police. Within a few days this ex-detective was horrified to discover that Bolo Pasha was a German agent, receiving messages, and from time to time sending messages through the lines. In his alarm the butler went to his old friend, the chief of police of Paris, and the chief sent him back, charging him to give Bolo Pasha plenty of rope, and simply to watch everything that he did, that they might finally catch his backers—the men who were "higher up." That butler discovered the most amazing and terrible things. Once a German secret agent came to see Bolo Pasha. Berlin had already sent a message that this German agent knew too many things. Conceding his patriotism and his love of the fatherland, Berlin also said that a man who knew so many things about Germany might unconsciously reveal some event, and Bolo Pasha, therefore, was instructed to do away with this faithful agent of the kaiser. One day this butler saw his master drop a little white powder into a glass and within half an hour afterward that German agent, who was a friend and his guest, was in the throes of death.

Despite his protestations as to the murder of other men, the French authorities ordered the butler to "do nothing, but watch everything" that Bolo Pasha did. Finally, obtaining a little knowledge there, they learned all about Bolo Pasha, with the names of his confederates, the servants who obeyed him, and the upper lords whom Bolo Pasha obeyed. Up to the very moment of the traitor's arrest, he was meeting French business men in the morning, driving in the afternoon in the park, spreading banquets for the evening, spending money like water. No feast was too expensive for his income, no food too costly for his purse, but all the time the lines were closing in about him. Everyone knows the story of that iron cell built by the inquisitors. When the door was locked behind him, the prisoner found that the cell was ten feet square; the next day he thought he noticed that the cell seemed smaller, scarcely eight feet square; the next day the walls had come closer together, seven feet square; and then the victim realized that the iron walls were closing in and that ultimately he would be as it were in a coffin, standing upright; after which would come the crushing pressure of death. Not otherwise was it with Bolo Pasha. The day come when officers put handcuffs upon his wrists, carried him to a cell, and then he wakened up to realize that the messages he had sent had never left Paris, that the French government had his code, the names of his spies, the formulae of his poisons, a list of his backers, and fellow traitors in France, in England and in the United States. Today only a few men know about Bolo Pasha. But when the censorship is lifted, and the war is over, the full report of this traitor's machinations in New York, London and Paris, in Rome, Vienna, and Constantinople, will amaze and horrify the whole world.

Health Talks---By William Brady, M.D.

X-RAY AND SKIN CANCER.

The treatment of cancer in regions get-at-able from the surface with the X-ray is fairly satisfactory in many inoperable cases and in cases already operated on. The X-ray has a distinct value as a preventive of recurrence in the scar after the removal of cancer, as a remedy which may alleviate symptoms and bring about a change which renders an inoperable case ultimately operable, and finally as a cure of many cases of epithelioma or skin cancer.

In a recent number of the American Journal of Roentgenology Dr. G. M. MacKee gives the results of X-ray treatment of a large number of cases of epithelioma. Among 222 cases treated there were 201 "clinical cures." In six instances no benefit was produced by X-ray. Among 154 cases "clinically cured" and observed for periods varying from six months to more than five years twenty-four suffered relapses.

Nineteen of the twenty-four patients who had a recurrence of the cancer were again treated with the X-ray and seventeen of them recovered. Of the patients who failed to recover from the relapse after resumption of the X-ray treatment, two were cured with radium (as were also two of the first group who were not benefited at all by X-ray); and two were cured by operation.

In five cases there was a second relapse or a recurrence of the cancer within a year after the second recovery, and in four of these patients the cancers disappeared for the third time under X-ray treatment; only one patient failed to respond either to X-ray or radium treatment.

It should be remembered that epithelioma or skin cancer is the least malignant, slowest-growing, and most curable of all types of cancer. For the more malignant or poisonous type called carcinoma, such as commonly occurs in the stomach or in the neck of the womb and sometimes about the skin, lips, tongue, etc., the X-ray is far less helpful and indeed only to be used to follow up operations, in cases where the cancer is get-at-able with the X-ray.

As for skin cancer, this is the type of cancer which the quack boasts of curing with his local applications, caustics, arsenic pastes and similar agents. True, a considerable number of more or less permanent cures of skin cancer are obtained in this way, but speaking with personal subjective experience of the knife, when I develop a skin cancer it will be the steel for mine, because I like to be safe and comfortable and save all the money I can. After the carving, then a little X-ray to kill off any invisible microscopic cancer cells that may be lurking in or about the wound or scar.

Cancer cells or "seeds" are quite invisible, by the way, unless you have a microscopic eye. That is why nobody can give assurance that no cancer cell remains after the removal or destruction of a malignant mass—nobody but old Father Time.

WINBURN FAVORS CLOSEDUNDERPASS

President of Central of Georgia Declares There Will Be No Opposition to Closing of Forsyth Underpass.

President W. A. Winburn, of the Central of Georgia railroad, announced Wednesday afternoon that his company would make no objections to the closing of the entrance to the underpass under Forsyth street viaduct, thus removing the last obstacle that was thought to have stood in the way of this improvement. Nothing remains to be accomplished except to get the legislature to adopt the charter amendment which will give the city the power to close the thoroughfare.

The right-of-way and the tracks of the Central of Georgia are crossed on the south side of the underpass, while those of the Western and Atlantic railroad are on the north. The consent of the state road was indicated by Murphey Candler in a statement last Friday, in which he declared that there would be no objection to the proposed improvement on the part of the state. Mr. Candler's announcement, with that made Wednesday by President Winburn, of the Central of Georgia, gives assurance that the project will not be opposed by the two railroad companies affected, and it is believed the city will seek at once to have the legislature adopt the charter amendment which will give Atlanta the right to close the underpass, and will begin the work of closing the viaduct openings as soon as the necessary legislation is passed. The charter amendment being a local bill, it is thought that it will not be opposed, especially since both railroads affected have signified their willingness to the improvement.

Denied Rumors.

President Wiburn was in Atlanta Wednesday, and while in the city was in confe rence with R. R. Otis, of Otis & Holliday, industrial agents of the company. Mr. Otis brought to the attention of the Central of Georgia president. the matter of closing the Forsyth street underpass, setting forth the great traffic congestion in the city because of a shortage of cross-town arteries, and Mr. Winburn immediately declared that rumors to the effect that the Central of Georgia would oppose the improvement were not true, and that the r oad would be highly favorable to the closing of the underpass.

"We not only are not antagonistic to the plan," said Mr. Winburn, "but we believe this improvement should be accomplished. The openings in the Forsyth street bridge are not only impediments to traffic, but they are eyesores which should be removed. The openings to the underpass are no good to the Central of Georgia railroad," continued Mr. Winburn, "because they are seldom used by teams and trucks, the approaches being too steep."

Mr. Winburn also indicated that no change in the property would be necessary, as egress from the business houses that have basements near the viaducts could be provided without great trouble or expense.

Amendment Held Up.

The first official action taken on the plan to close the Forsyth street underpass was when the city council adopted a resolution asking for a charter amendment giving the city the right to close the underpass.

This amendment when brought before the committee on municipal government was held up temporarily because of the fact that Railroad Commissioner Murphey Candler had not had sufficient time and opportunity to examine into its provisions.

Mr. Candler had previously stated that the state might oppose the improvement, as the property of the Western and Atlantic railroad was affected. Subsequently, however, he gave out another statement in which he declared that he would favor the charter amendmen bill if the following provisions were added to it:

"Provided further that the rights of eminent domain or power of condemnation shall never be held or construed to apply, relate or to affect in any manner any property right or interest of the state of Georgia, or the use or the enjoyment thereof by the state, or by any one holding under the state as tenant, lessee or otherwise."

Guard Against Precedent.

This addition to the bill, it was understood, was proposed by Mr. Candler in order to confine the case to the Forsyth street viaduct and in order to prevent a precedent being set for further condemnation proceedings.

The charter amendment backers have made no statement with reference to including the Candler provisions in the bill, but it is believed that the concession will be made in order that the measure may be pushed through the committee and brought up for adoption by the legislature.

Property owners on Forsyth street are backing the project to close the viaduct openings, and it is understood that those who have basements and occasionally require the use of the openings have also consented to the improvement. Alternative ingress and egress to the business houses under the viaduct will be provided on the north side of the driveway by the side of the Journal building from the underpass to Wall street, and on the south side, teams and trucks can get out by driving through the property of the Central of Georgia to Madison avenue and the foot of Alabama street.

A meeting recently held by a number of business men, at the instance of the mayor, appointed a committee to confer with the railroads with reference to closing the underpass, as it was then thought that objections would be brought by the companies affected. Hollins Randolph was made chairman of this committee.

To Help Solve Problem.

The closing of the underpass entrances that lead down from each end of the Forsyth street bridge will aid greatly in solving the present congestion problem that has grown so acute since the work started on Whitehall street, and it is expected by property owners and realty men to become a potent factor in the development of Forsyth street, which rapidly is taking its place as one of the busy streets of the central retail section of the city.

Forsyth street viaduct is 43 feet wide at each end and the underpass openings are 20 feet wide, making the space allowed for street cars and other vehicles on each side of the openings only about 11 feet.

The openings have formed an obstacle to traffic for some time, but since the Whitehall street paving has been under way and all street cars and many other vehicles that used that street under normal conditions are now passing over Forsyth street bridge, the congestion has become increasingly acute.

The work of closing the underpass, it has been stated, will require but a short time.

WAYCROSS TO ISSUE INFORMATION LIST

Waycross, Ga., July 30.—(Special.)—The Waycross Chamber of Commerce, through its committee on industrial surveys, will begin a campaign this week to ascertain what the city has to offer as stock in trade and what it hasn't already got that it should have.

The different raw materials, the facilities for handling same in manufacturing them into finished products and the facilities and cost of marketing will be tabulated. The matter of labor, its cost, character and supply will be investigated, and included in the report of the committee.

The availability of suitable sites for manufacturing enterprises, cost of same, kinds of factories needed, concessions by the city and individuals to induce manufacturers to locate here and inducements offered by the financial institutions of the city will all be reported on. When the work is completed there will be information available on almost every subject that pertains to city development that will enable the prospector and investor to know Waycross's resources and assets as well as her liabilities.

FLINT RIVER FLOODS CUT OFF AUTO TRAFFIC

Americus, Ga., July 30.—(Special.) The Flint river is at flood stage as a result of recent heavy and continued rains in this section and motorists find considerable difficulty in traveling between points on two sides of the stream. The handsome new steel and concrete bridge recently erected on the Vienna road is useless because of lowlands forming a portion of the approach being flooded and the ferry, formerly opated at Murray's, has been abandoned.

On the Dixie highway between Americus and Macon the old bridge over the Flint is under water, while the new bridge, in course of erection, cannot be used. E. J. Eldredge, coming to Americus yesterday from Macon, was compelled to abandon his car at Montezuma, while traffic between Americus and Vienna is entirely suspended except by rail. The Huguenin ferry is still in operation, but the approach on either side of the river is both difficult and dangerous.

MRS. JETER CLEARED OF WHISKY CHARGE

Augusta, Ga., July 30.—(Special.) Mrs. Beulah Jeter and her husband were exonerated yesterday when they were arraigned in connection with the illicit distillery found in their home at the time of the pistol duel when Charlie Cheeks and G. W. Taylor were killed.

It was established to the satisfaction of the commissioner who conducted the investigation, that Cheeks alone owned and operated the still, and that he compelled Mrs. Jeter to co-operate with him at the point of a pistol. Mrs. Jeter's husband knew nothing of the still. The accused man and woman were discharged.

AMERICUS SPEAKERS FLY TO DUBLIN MEET

Americus, Ga., July 30.—(Special.) Joseph Perkins, secretary of the Americus and Sumter County Chamber of Commerce, and Frank Lanier, prominent Americus capitalist, went today from Souther field to Dublin in two airplanes, piloted by Lieutenant Colonel Rader and Lieutenant Alfred W. Vance, officers at the training station here.

The two men went to Dublin to attend a municipal celebration there, Secretary Perkins delivering an address. Colonel Rader also spoke on enlistment in the air service. The party returned here this afternoon, making the trip from Dublin, an airline distance of 100 miles, in little more than one hour.

Perry Court.

Perry, Ga., July 30.—(Special.)—City court convened Monday for trial of 51 criminal cases. Only three additions to chaingang were made, the others paying the alternative fines imposed. The calendar was nearly cleared by pleas of guilty and nol prosses.

FAVORABLE REPORT FOR TAX REFORM

Amendments Committee Acts Favorably on Tax Reform Bills, But Legislature Will Not Act on Measures This Season.

While the tax reform bills drawn by the state tax commission were without a record vote passed out of the constitutional amendments committee yesterday afternoon and will be reported favorably in the house at an early date, it was with the understanding that they would not be taken up for action at this session.

This plan was adopted with the full consent of Representative Arnold, of Clay, author of the bills. The measures provide for revolutionary changes in the state's taxation system, and it is believed by those who prepared them that they will open up sources of revenue in Georgia that have never previously been touched.

They will be high up on the calender at the next session, and the possibility of their enactment will be greatly enhanced, it is believed, after their features have become better known to the people. It would gain no time whatever to act on them at this session, as they could not possibly be voted on until the next general election, which will be in November, 1920.

Would Gain Time.

It is not unlikely that the sane course may be taken with all other constitutional amendments that have been proposed this year. By doing so time would be gained for the enactment of pressing legislation which could be put into immediate effect.

Another constitutional amendment recommended by the house committee yesterday on the same terms as Mr. Arnold's bills was that of Mr. Johnson, of Bartow, which provides for an increase of the tax rate above five mills for school purposes only.

Appropriations O. K'd.

A tax measure proposed by Mr. Arnold, already favorably reported by the ways and means committee, and which he hopes to have placed on the calendar at this session, is what is known as the inheritance tax bill. Mr. Arnold believes that this measure will add $20,000 to the state's revenue next year.

Several bills were favorably acted on at a brief session of the appropriations committee yesterday afternoon. One provides for an appropriation of $7,160 for improvements needed at the Georgia Training School for Girls; another gives $20,000 to the department of agriculture as a deficiency appropriation for cattle tick eradication. A bill providing for $2,000 to install a better heating apparatus in the capitol had been drawn, at the suggestion of the governor, and the committee had authorized the chairman to make a favorable report on it before it was introduced in the house yesterday.

RETAIL GROCERS SAY FOOD PRICES ARE UNWARRANTED

Based on a communication received Wednesday from the Atlanta Retail Grocers and Butchers' association, in which they declared that present conditions do not warrant such high prices of food, the mayor sent requests to R. I. Barge, president of the association, and J. P. Eve, secretary, inviting them to his office at 10 o'clock this morning for a conference.

It is considered most likely that the mayor will transmit the letter of the association to council next Monday and perhaps ask that body for a councilmanic investigation of food prices.

The letter to the mayor follows:

"Honorable James L. Key,

"Mayor of Atlanta, City Hall, City.

"Dear Sir: We notice of late that a great deal is being said in news items printed in the daily press on the subject of 'Profiteering.' This subject is very close to the pockets of the people.

"Everybody agrees that prices on everything are abnormally high; in fact they are beyond all reason.

"We do not believe that present conditions warrant such high prices. If these prices on the necessities of life, food, clothing, fuel or other necessities are the result of speculation, profiteering, gambling in stocks or in any other unlawful means we believe nothing should be left undone to bring the perpetrators to justice. With this end in view, therefore, we, the Atlanta Retail Grocers and Butchers' association respectfully extend to your honor our association—collectively and individually—to be used in any way you may determine.

"Trusting that we may be able to serve you if needed, we are,

"Very truly yours,

"THE ATLANTA RETAIL GROCERS AND BUTCHERS' ASSOCIATION.

(Signed)

"R. I. BARGE, President.

"J. P. EVE, Secretary."

COLQUITT FARMER SERIOUSLY HURT WHEN MULES BOLT

Moultrie, Ga., July 30.—(Special.) J. N. Carver, a prominent Colquitt county farmer, was seriously injured yesterday in a runaway while he was en route to Moultrie driving a pair of mules to a wagon. He was attempting to brush a fly off of one of the mules, stepping down on the tongue to do so, when the animals became frightened and dashed off, their owner falling down between them and the wagon.

When picked up by a man who was coming to Moultrie in a car, Mr. Carver was covered with blood and unconscious. He was dragged a considerable distance and was kicked by one of the mules.

Bogus Collector Works Here, Posing As U. S. Official

For the past several days a man describing himself as employed by the United States government has been busy in Atlanta collecting subscriptions on pledge cards for the Salvation Army. This announcement was made late Wednesday night by E. Y. Carke who directed the campaign, and who is in charge of collections for the entire south for the Salvation Army.

"Salvation Army workers recently informed me that some one without authority was collecting subscriptions," said Mr. Clarke. "I ordered an investigation and Brigadier A. W. Crawford, in charge of the Salvation Army for this district, reported to me yesterday that this mysterious man had collected many pledges.

"The collector, from all reports, was well garbed and seemed to have fake pledge cards. He would tell the person he was talking to that he was in the employ of the United States government for the collection of Salvation Army pledges. For the benefit of those who have pledged most liberally to the cause, I want it understood that only the Salvation Army workers in uniform and with proper credentials are authorized to make collections on these pledges. All others are bogus."

The matter has been reported to the police who have been given a very good description of the man who has been misrepresenting himself. At this time it is impossible to say how much money he collected in this district.

General Forrest Discusses Plans Of Gray Reunion

General Nathan Bedford Forrest, of Biloxi, Miss., adjutant chief of the Sons of Confederate Veterans, son of the famous Confederate cavalry leader, who arrived in Atlanta Wednesday to assist the various committees in their preparations for the annual reunion of the Gray in October, stated that he has been in conference with officials of the railroad administration in Washington and that they have assured him of a one-cent rate, applicable to the railroads from coast to coast to the veterans who come to Atlanta for the great Gray gathering.

GEN. NATHAN BEDFORD FORREST

General Forrest will confer with members of the executive committee at their meeting this morning at 11 o'clock. Getting ready for such a large occasion in so short a time as is before Atlanta is a task of some magnitude, he said Wednesday. The committees cannot afford to make mistakes, he pointed out, because they will not have time to go back and correct them, as other cities have done who have consumed twelve months in preparation. He declared that he proposed to take off his coat and work with the committees day and night if necessary.

Some twenty reunions have been attended by General Forrest, the plans for a number of them being worked out largely by him. He has data in his possession of these past reunions and knows just how to plan and where to plan for such occasions.

Speaking from his past experiences General Forrest said that the veterans would want to take their meals in an encampment, where they can mingle in the company streets as they did in the army, and reminisce with one another about the years of the sixties.

As something of what an extensive organization it will require to look after the welfare of the old soldiers, he asserted that when the reunion was held in Washington in 1917, special trains each bearing a large percentage of old soldiers, pulled into the station every eight minutes for 24 hours.

A complete card system for solving the housing problem will be presented to the committee by General Forrest.

CHIROPRACTIC BILL FAVORABLY REPORTED

Senate Committee Votes 4 to 2 in Favor of Licensing Chiropractitioners.

The chiropractic bill of Representative Wohlwender, which has already passed the house, was ordered favorably reported by the senate judiciary committee No. 2 following a heated hearing held Wednesday night in the Kimball house. The vote on the measure was four to two, as follows: For—Clements, Elders, Fowler and Dixon; against—Lundsford and Cureton.

The bill, which would license chiropractitioners in Georgia, was opposed by many of the most promfnent physicians of the state on the grounds that the bill would give state sanction to a host of men who were far from being capable of administering to the ills of their fellow-men. Chiropractitioners on the other hand put forward the argument that they made no claim to being physicians but could, by their system of massage and manipulation of the joints, cure many cases which had failed to yield to medical attention.

H. G. SWANSON DIES WHILE SERVING U. S. AT SIBERIAN POST

News has been received here, through the postoffice department at Washington, of the death of H. G. Swanson, of Fairburn, Georgia, who died in Siberia, July 17.

Mr. Swanson was a well-known employee of the railway mail service with headquarters in Atlanta. In February, 1918, he volunteered for foreign service and was sent to France to help untangle the overseas mail service there. When this branch was taken over by the government he returned to the states and resumed his former duties on the Atlanta & Montgomery line. Early in September of last year he was appointed postal agent to the United States forces in Siberia, and arrived at Vladivostok in November. He has been stationed at several different points along the Trans-Siberian railway, serving for several months at Lake Baikal. He was expecting an early release to come home when death overtook him.

Mr. Swanson leaves a wife and two children, who live in Fairburn, one brother, Will Swanson, of Montgomery, Ala.; three sisters, Mrs. Wallace Streater, of Washington, D. C., now in France; Mrs. W. C. Thornton, Columbus, Ga., and Mrs. Harvey Long, of Comer, Alabama.

ALLEGED BANK ROBBER FACES TRIAL MONDAY

Columbus, Ga., July 30.—(Special.) J. C. Moore, alleged vault blower of a number of banks in this state, including the Ball Ground institution, will have a trial at Carnesville Monday on a charge of breaking into the Bank of Carnesville.

Attorney Hicks Fort will leave for Carnesville Monday to represent Moore. Moore is now held in jail at Athens in connection with one of the several alleged hauls he is charged with having made.

Several small children playing in the yard of the home formerly occupied by Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Moore, the former charged with several bank robberies while the latter is under arrest in connection with large Liberty bond thefts, today found a pint bottle containing a quantity of nitro-glycerine and a gold watch. The children were playing in the yard when the flask and watch were found. The explosive was turned over to the police while the watch was given into custody of T. Hicks Fort, Mrs. Moore's attorney.

OKEFENOKEE FOR A NATIONAL PARK

Sweat, in Resolution, Asks Congress to Take Over Great Georgia Swamp Abounding in Wild Life.

A joint resolution, introduced into the huose by Representative Sweat, of Ware, if carried into effect, would probably accomplish more to preserve the wild life of America than any other measure that could be proposed.

After pointing out that the Okefenokee swamp contains more of the primeval wild life of America than any other section of the country, and that its resources both in birds and fresh water fish are of unending interest to naturalists, it memorializes congress to enact legislation whereby this great area of 700 square miles, now largely a wilderness, with its fauna liable to extinction, might be taken over as a national reservation with a view to preserving the wild life it contains.

Judge Sweat's Resolution.

The resolution follows:

A joint resolution memorializing the congress of the United States to enact appropriate legislation whereby the Okefenokee swamp in the southern section of the state of Georgia may be made a national park reservation, and for other purposes.

Whereas, The Okefenokee swamp, located in the southern section of the state of Georgia, containing an area of about 700 square miles, in which the St. Mary's river and the famous Suwanee river and story take their source, and in which there is found so much to attract the sportsman, as its hammocks and jungles teem with wild animals and game of every description native to North America; its lakes and creeks and rivers abound in fish, and its open forests ring with the music of native bird life; and,

Whereas, No place in all the southeastern section of the United States offers more to the student of wild life than this swamp, here preserved because of its inaccessibility remains much of the primeval life of America. No place in all the southeastern section of our country in that vast area bounded on the north by the Potomac and Ohio rivers and on the west by the Mississippi, contains so many different species of birds as are native to this swamp; and,

Game Still Abounds.

Whereas, Here in tangled leaf and wild flower live a great many of our songsters who have escaped the destruction that awaited them elsewhere. Here, too, are some of the largest of our birds, going up the scale and reaching the largest eagles in this section. Here are found a few species that practically are found nowhere else; and,

Whereas, In this jungle also remain much of our wild game; here the bear and southern lynx can be found, the only place in this territory in which black bear exists, except in some few canebrakes in isolated spots along our great rivers; and,

Whereas, No section is so rich in its attraction to the student as this section, and here he can reap the satisfaction of seeing many species of both bird and animal life in fairly abundant quantities that are extremely rare if not almost extinct; and,

Whereas, The swamp is equally as rich for the careful student in the study of fish life; here are found a very great variety of our fresh water fish. In fact, in a narrow compass of waters are found more varieties than in any other similar area. The fish that inhabit our still waters of sluggish habits here live and thrive in long lagoons and lakes. Here again, points the waters as they meet to make the head of both the St. Mary's and Suwanee rivers form an ideal spot for the life of some of our game fish; and,

Whereas, In all the northwest and in the southwest sections of the United States great areas have been purchased and set apart so that the people there might have a place in which to go to see the life that has disappeared forever from the plains and forests and mountains of the far west, the national government is having purchased seven great parks to carry out this work; and,

Nature's Natural Sanctuary.

Whereas, Here in the southeast no friendly hand has been held out to help in preserving for future generations the wild life that once existed in this section of the United States; nature herself worked hard and furnished here a natural sanctuary. Commerce has come in now and the axe of the lumberman is heard all throughout the swamp and the coverts for game, the dense jungles in which birds and animals hide themselves from danger will disappear unless protected, and the great forest, jungle and swamp which forms the headquarters of the two great rivers will disappear unless steps are taken to preserve same.

Therefore, the house of representatives of Georgia, the senate concurring, do resolve:

First—That our senators and representatives from Georgia in the congress of the United States be, and they are hereby memorialized to have the congress enact appropriate legislation whereby the Okefenokee swamp may be made a national park reservation.

Second—That duly certified copies of these presmbles and resolutions be immediately transmitted by the secretary of state upon the passage, approval and filing of same in his office, to each of the senators and members of the house of representatives from this state in the congress of the United States.

VERDICT IS EXPECTED IN PARK CASE TODAY

Defendants Presented No Witnesses or Statement Wednesday.

Zebulon, Ga., July 30.—(Special.) The sensational trial of J. S. Park and his brother, Ollie Park, who are charged with the murder of Rad Jones and J. A. Melton, near Molena, on May 26, was continued over to Thursday and will again be resumed Thursday morning at 8 o'clock.

Indications are that the case will go to the jury Thursday afternoon and a verdict during the course of the day is very probable. The trial continues to be the center of widespread interest here and great crowds are in attendance.

The state concluded the presentation of its evidence in the case at 3 o'clock Wednesday. The defendants presented no evidence, nor did they make a statement. Attorneys were making their arguments late Wednesday. The evidence in the case is purely circumstantial and the people are divided on the question of guilt.

Jones and Melton were killed from ambush on the Flint river just after they got into their boat to go fishing, Jones being shot in the back of the head and Melton in the face. When they failed to return at dinner their friends from Molena made a search for them and their bodies were recovered from the river. Rewards were offered by friends of the dead men and by the governor for the apprehension of the guilty parties. Detectives took up the matter and the arrest of tthe Park brothers and their being lodged in the jail at Zebulon followed on July 1.

Attempted Robbery Of Gas Meter With Ice Pick Is Charge

"All Hawkshaws aren't dead yet," said Officers Hudson and Fain Wednesday as they brought in J. H. Ward, a negro ice wagon driver, who is alleged to have attempted to break open a gas meter at the home of Mrs. Paul Jones, at 91 Loomis avenue. Ward gave his address as 28 Mechanic street.

According to the officers making the arrest, the negro entered the house and attempted to break open the meter with his ice pick. Instead of the meter opening per schedule, a hole was punched in the section containing the gas, and when it began to escape the negro became frightened and beat a hasty retreat.

When Mrs. Jones came home she smelled the escaping gas and notified the gas company. The broken meter was discovered and the police were called to make an investigation.

Ward was in the vicinity of the attempted burglary when the officers arrived and he was placed under arrest.

The negro, gas meter and ice pick will face the recorder this morning.

SAVANNAH TO GET ROUTE FROM WEST

Responsible Western Capitalists Interested in Direct Rail Line, If Freight Rates Can Be Equalized to Ports.

Savannah, Ga., July 30.—(Special.) President C. G. Edwards, of the Savannah board of trade, today received a new communication of a series of similar tenor from reaponsible western parties who have in contemplation the establishment of a railroad line direct from St. Louis to Savannah, the southeastern port point, if equalization of rail freight rates can be effected from the west to the south Atlantic seaboard.

Shippers of the west realize that Savannah is nearer than New York, and express a desire for equitable transportation to port for the opening of South American and Cuban trade as well as general overseas commerce.

NOW ASKS DIVORCE, AFTER DEFENDING HUSBAND AT TRIAL

Moultrie, Ga., July 30.—(Special.) Interest has been revived in the Hiers-Carden murder case, which was one of the most sensational ever tried in Colquitt county, by the filing of a divorce suit against Will Hiers by his wife, Mrs. Carrie Hiers. Hiers, who was convicted of manslaughter in connection with the death of his father-in-law, is now serving a fifteen-year sentence in the penitentiary and the papers were served on him in the chaingang.

At his trial Hiers gave as his reason for the killing of Carden wrongs his wife had suffered at her father's hands. The woman bore out his story and stood by him against all of her relatives during the long trial, but now she is asking for a divorce, giving no other ground in her petition except that her husband is serving a sentence following his conviction of a crime involving moral turpitude. Hiers was convicted nearly three years ago.

Savannah Exchange Expects First Bale Not Before August 1

Savannah, Ga., July 30.—(Special.)—The Savannah Cotton Exchange does not expect the "first bale" of this year's Georgia cotton crop to appear in this market before August 1, though this annual event is now more than a fortnight overdue. Unusually bad weather of unusual duration and steadiness is given as the reason for the delay of the auctioning of the first bale of the year on the floor of the Savannah exchange.

Interchangeable rubber heels have been invented that can be attached to shoes and replaced when worn by means of metal fasteners permanently installed.

MISSOURI FARMER SUFFERED FOR YEARS

"For twenty-five years I have been looking for something to relieve my troubles, and I believe I have found it at last in Tanlac," said Richard Oldham, R. F. D. No. 1, Platte City, Mo., recently.

"Yes, sir, I have so much faith in Tanlac," continued Mr. Oldham, "that I have come all the way from Platte City, a distance of twenty-five miles, to get me another bottle. All these years I suffered terribly with indigestion in its worst form, and my stomach was in an awful condition. Just as soon as I would eat anything I would bloat up with gas and there was such a tightness in my chest that I could hardly get my breath. Why, at times even a drink of cold water would seem to set me on fire inside, and often I would turn so faint and weak that I could hardly do a thing. I would go for two or three days without eating a thing. I just felt miserable all the time and although I tried everything I could hear of I would only get a little temporary relief.

"I have taken only three bottles of Tanlac so far, and the way I have improved is simply wonderful. My appetite is fine and I am not troubled now with indigestion, and I am getting better right along every day."

Tanlac is sold by all leading druggists.—(adv.)

And So They Were Married

(The Apartment Next Door

BY HAZEL DEYO BATCHELOR

(Copyright, 1919, for The Constitution.)

CHAPTER XX.

When the meal was half over, Ruth said suddenly, "I wonder if that man is still about?"

"For heaven's sake, are you still worrying about that?" Scott said scathingly.

"Go out and look, Scott, will you?" Ruth asked without answering his question, "and try the Whitmores' door again."

"I will not. What's the use of doing that? Either Rita is out or she doesn't want to see us."

"Oh, you will admit that last possibility," taunted Ruth. "Well, I'm going to see, anyway. The thing is on my nerves."

Ruth tiptoed to the door and opened it suddenly. She did it all so quickly that the person who was standing in the hall leaning over the banisters had no time to draw back. It was Rita, in a kimono and with her hair all wild about her face as though she had pushed it back any number of times. Her eyes were wild and her face chalky white. Ruth had never seen her look so badly. Gone now were all her pretty airs and graces, the fascinating little manner that she adopted otward all men was forgotten. She was just a woman now, terrified by some imminant danger.

Rita drew back almost to the partly opened door and looked at Ruth.

"I wanted to see if he were still out there," she whispered finally.

"Why didn't you answer the telephone?" accused Ruth.

"I couldn't, I was afraid he would listen and hear me talk."

"What is it, Rita, tell me. He's gone, I'm sure of it. Let me help you, won't you?"

Rita looked fearsomely down the stairs and then turned back to Ruth and beckoned her into the apartment. Ruth drew back. Somehow she hated to go in there. This mystery that surrounded the Whitmores had somehow erected a barrier between the two families, and yet Ruth felt ashamed of this feeling and forced herself to follow Rita into the darkened place. The Whitmores' apartment had always been dimly lighted. Rita loved dim lights, she affected that kind of atmosphere, but tonight the place looked chill and dark. Ruth involuntarily shivered. Her voice dropped involuntarily to a whisper as she said to Rita:

"Are you alone? Where is Dan?"

"He's out of town."

"But I saw him this morning," Ruth burst out.

"He left this afternoon."

"When will he be back?"

"He isn't coming back."

Ruth, who had dropped into one of the big chairs, started up and exclaimed involuntarily repeating after Rita, "He isn't coming back," in incredulous tones.

"Rita, what do you mean?"

Rita's fingers were clenched in her lap, her knees as she sat there shook convulsively and her teeth chattered. She lighted a cigarette and tried to smoke it, but she was so nervous that it almost dropped out of her fingers

Ruth jumped up. "See here," she said in her comforting matter-of-fact tone of voice that she had used with Alice. "You're all upset, and I'm going to fix you some hot milk. Here, let me fix you up here on the couch."

"Oh, no I couldn't lie down," Rita protested.

"Well stay here a minute just till I can beat the milk for you." And Ruth with the knowledge born of many evenings spent with the Whitmores hurried out to the kitchen, found the milk in the top of the icebox, poured some in a pan and lighted the burner.

When she carried the steaming cup in to Rita, she found the girl still huddled up in a chair.

Ruth stood over her and insisted that she drink every drop. Every time that Rita would attempt anything, Ruth would silence her until finally with a sigh Rita handed her the empty cup and saucer. A faint pink had come into her face, and she seemed less tense. She was eager to talk.

"I've got to leave before morning," she burst out.

"What do you mean."

"I was simply waiting for that horrible man to leave so that I could get away," Rita explained in a half whisper that was awful. "Will you stand by me Ruth, will you help me?"

What awful thing was this that Rita meant by her half confidence? What could she mean by this prayer to stand by her and help her? Again that chilling doubt made Ruth hesitate.

"Let me go and get Scott," she suggested eagerly," he will know just what to do, and we'll both help you Rita."

"No, no," Rita implored, catching at Ruth who had turned to go. "I don't want you to tell Scott, you must promise me that you won't tell any one."

(Tomorrow, Ruth helps Rita to pack without knowing why.)

Converted to Suffrage While Opposing Issue

BY ISMA DOOLY

Sam Small, noted journalist and publicist, who is spending a few days visiting his relatives and countless friends in the city, is very much interested in the status of the woman suffrage question in Georgia, and in the registration of Atlanta women to vote in the forthcoming white primary.

Asked about the attitude of certain men, apparently intelligent and progressive about all other lines except the justice of women having the privileges of citizenship, Mr. Small remarked that some men will not be convinced against their wills, and some will never acknowledge defeat in an argument. They have a mistaken idea that closing their minds to reason, or not acknowledging that there is something they do not know, is a mark of masculine strength or intellect.

"I have always enjoyed the way in which I was converted to woman suffrage," said Mr. Small, "and I am delighted that I may call myself one of the early workers in the cause, after being once violently opposed to the principle.

"At the time of the meeting of the National Prohibition association in 1888, when the question of whether or not the woman suffrage plank be put in the national prohibition platform, I was appointed by the association to represent the cause of the opponents, while that great woman, the late Frances Willard, was to espouse the cause of woman suffrage.

"The debate began at the morning session early, and lasted until after 3 o'clock in the afternoon, without a recess for luncheon. I started out bravely with every tradition and sentiment I could think of, in opposition to the suffrage plank being put in the platform. I discussed it as I thought rationally, then emotionally, and sentimentally, but in every issue she proved the weakness and fallacies of my argument.

"I talked about it from the standpoint of expediency, not failing to stress the dangers I saw ahead racially and otherwise, but when it came to the issue of the justice of it she had everything on her side and I had nothing on mine. I argued, but she successfully refuted every argument until finally about 3 o'clock I realized that she had everything on her side; she had proven her every point, and I was honestly converted to her way of thinking.

"I leaned across the table, extended my hand to her and said: 'Frances, you are right; you have convinced me that you are right. I am with you from now on, and we will fight for woman's suffrage together, and I have never failed the cause."

Then Mr. Small predicted that the Susan B. Anthony amendment will be ratified, and that national suffrage for woman is assured.

"And with this national participation of women in affairs of state and importance we are going to see a new era for the better, in every phase of our civilization," said Mr. Small.

"It is going to bring a dignity, a balance to our system of government, and it is going to reform many departments of American politics.

"I have seen the good work going on in those states where women have suffrage, notably in California.

"Instead of the voting power lowering the standards of women, it is going to raise the standards of men.

"It is already bringing up the standards of town politics, where women vote from the atmosphere of the saloon and the livery stable, to the home where the woman citizen is. She is a voter. She and her tastes and her standards must be respected, and she must have a voice in what the issues of the town are.

"In the halls where public questions are discussed, now, it is a hats-off atmosphere, and a coats-on atmosphere," said Mr. Small.

"The polls where men and women vote today is a safer place than many postoffice buildings, where men and women go without question. You know what I mean."

Then Mr. Small paid his respects to the men who talk about their protection of women by keeping them away from the polls, when they unhesitatingly take them to certain kinds of cabarets and dance halls, and through the crowds which so often frequent that great American sport, the baseball game, and I recalled as he spoke seeing women shoved in the crowds which do frequent such places where women go unhesitatingly, though some of them shrink from voting.

Mr. Small is honest enough to confess that he is converted, and there is no doubt about it, that there are many men who not only will not be converted against the will, but who arenot brave enough to acknowledge that at last they do see the justice of women having the rights of citizenship.

Chamber of Commerce Establishes a Class In Foreign Trade

A class in foreign trade has been established at the chamber of commerce for the benefit of all manufacturing firms in Atlanta. Charles E. Robertson, secretary of the trade body, announced the class under their auspices Wednesday.

Dr. Guy King, foreign trade secretary for the chamber of commerce, will direct the class. Each manufacturing firm is invited to send one of their men to the class. It is of no expense, and companies who are counting on South American trade are especially urged to send a salesman.

The movement for the class is the aftermath of the talk and visit of Matthew Hale, president of the Southern Maritime association and of the Southeastern Export company.

Nearly forty men have already signified their intention of taking the course. It will in no sense be a regular night school. The class will meet at the Chamber of Commerce probably only one evening a week. Principles of foreign sales, trade routes, customs and allied subjects will be discussed. In time representatives of the department of commerce from Washington will be invited to address the men. Men who are interested to the extent that they desire to know Spanish will not find it given in this class, but those in charge will direct those interested in Spanish to accessible classes.

Jordan-Huntoon.

Recently word was received in Atlanta of the marriage of Miss Frances Jordan, formerly of this city, to Lieutenant Commander Frank C. Huntoon, U. S. N. Mrs. Huntoon is an actress and model of exceptional attainments, being the girl on the famous war risk insurance calendar, selected from a collection of 22,000 faces.

The marriage occurred in New York Saturday. The bride is only 19, and has announced that she expects to continue her career on the stage in the autumn as well as her work as a model for artists and illustrators.

Some few friends in addition to relatives attended the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. Edwin Keigwin. Mrs. B. F. Jordan, the mother of the bride, gave her away. The bridesmaids were Misses Helen and Marie Jordan, cousins of the bride, and Miss Violet Bell, one of the most graceful dancers in "Chin Chin." Miss Victoria Ober, daughter of the late Charles K. Ober, of Atlanta, was the chief bridal attendant.

The best man was the brother of the bridegroom, Lieutenant Jay Huntoon, U. S. N., a recent graduate of the United States Naval academy. The bride's brother, Mr. John Fleming Jordan, just home from France, served as usher.

For two years Mrs. Huntoon has appeared in New York and other cities in "Jack o' Lantern," with the famous actor, Fred Stone. She has posed for many of the paintings and drawings of both Harrison Fisher and Howard Chandler Christy. She informed her wedding guests that she was already engaged to appear on Broadway in a new theatrical production the coming season.

Lieutenant Commander Huntoon is the son of Mr. John Huntoon, of Rock Island, Ill. In 1915 he was graduated from the United States Naval academy, and during the war was executive officer on the U. S. S. Bailey, a destroyer, which operated for more than a year in European waters.

To Keep Skin Fresh and Fine These Heated Days

It would be much better for the skin if little cream, powder or rouge were used during the heated term. Mixed with perspiration, dust and grime, these things are anything but beautifying. Ordinary mercolized wax will do more for the complexion and without giving an oily, streaked, spotted or pasty appearance. It is the ideal application for the season, as it not only keeps the pores clean, but daily removes particles of scarf skin which have been soiled by dirt or weather. By constantly keeping the complexion clear, white, satiny, it does more toward perpetuating a youthful countenance than any of the arts or artifices commonly employed. One ounce of mercolized wax, obtainable at any drug-store, will completely renovate the worst complexion. It is applied at night like cold cream and washed off in the morning. There's nothing better for tanned, freckled or reddened skins.—(adv.)

Four Days More of the Great Sale of

ORIENTAL RUGS

FOUR more days and the intending buyers of Oriental rugs would have lost the greatest opportunity to secure these beautiful rugs at such low figures. The 15% discount that we are now allowing on our present prices will, in fact, bring the price of our rugs to about 50% cheaper than what the public will have to pay in the fall.

The scarcity of the Oriental rug is so acute that before the busy Fall season arrives there will be an increase of at least 40% on all rugs.

We are sacrificing these rugs in order to keep the wheels of our business turning for this slack season. Many people have already taken advantage of this great opportunity, and there positively is only four more days left when you can reap the full benefit of this offer.

The Charmed Life of Miss Austins

A NOVEL OF ORIENTAL LURE

By SAMUEL MERWIN.

(Copyright, 1919, for The Constitution.)

Edith told her. Miss Eavesby knit her brows; then drew another pillow in behind her and leaned back against it. Edith, concerned, looked at the thin face, usually gentle and smiling but now keen, almost sharp, with a set to the mouth and a light in the blue eyes. For the first time she observed that Miss Eavesby had only the thinnest, faintest of eyebrows. "And yet," thought Edith, "she is beautiful."

"So they're at it again," mused the missionary. She looked up and soberly studied the girlish face before her. "I don't quite know what to say—"

"If it's about uncle—?"

"I'm afraid it is." She hesitated again. "But perhaps I'd better tell you."

"Please do. What are they at again?"

"Well, suppose you look there in the middle bureau drawer—over to the right. Oh, just rummage things around! Now bring me that fat red portfolio. The whole story is in there somewhere." She drew thick bundles of papers from the various compartment and strewed them about the bed. "Here, this one. I translated them myself—all the petitions of the 'Gentry and People of Shansi.'" She smiled faintly. "Though perhaps 'petitions' isn't just the word."

She glanced over the document, and sighed. "Why do the foreigners have to come in and stir it all up again—this dreaful business—just because they are greedy for more, and more, and more! We missionaries come from Christian lands and try to teach the Gospel of our Christ to these yellow people, and then our leading citizens follow us and use the power and intelligence that is the birthright of civilization to rob them of all they have!"

The blue eyes were flashing now; and there was a spot of red on each cheek.

"Oh, well," she added, rather sadly, "you won't like to hear me say these things."

"Please go on," said Edith softly. "I want to understand."

"Well, fifteen years ago a European company—the Shansi syndicate, it was called—got a concession granting them the 'sole right' to work the best coal and iron mines of Shansi. They got it in the usual way, bribery at Pekin. Native companies were prohibited from setting up modern machinery or competing in any effective way. The province all but rose in arms. Listen to this. It sounds quaint, as I've translated it; but, oh, they meant it!

"'The people of Shansi must hold to their mines till death, as Li Pai Jen committed suicide on account of the mines, and about him we can only think with grief and sorrow and tears; yet if the government and officials still unrighteously flatter the foreigners in their oppression and flay the people robbing them of their flesh and blood to give those to the foreigners then some one else must follow Li Pai Jen and throw away his own life by bomb throwing and so repay the syndicate!'"

The little missionary was sitting up very straight now. Her voice had deepened in timbre. Her eyes blazed with militant spirit. And Miss Austin sat fascinated in the stiff chair beside the bed, her young nerves tingling with a responsive thrill. "Oh," she was thinking, "how wonderful to believe in anything as much as that!"

Miss Eavesby quieted a little. "We beat them," she went on. "After ten years of pressure and maneuvering the syndicate gave it up—pulled out. But they left a wreck behind them, a wreck of our work and our hopes. There aren't two other provinces in all the eighteen that hate foreigners and, yes, Christianity, as Shansi hates them. In nineteen hundred they killed a hundred and eighty of our people—every white man, woman and child that was in the province at the time. They nearly did it again in nineteen-seven. We had to start all over then, for the third time, teaching them that Christianity doesn't mean greed, bribery, plunder. We've had to be so very, very patient. And now they're at it again, working through the new government, taking advantage of the unsettled conditions. Blumstein has never stopped watching Shansi. He wants that wonderful anthracite coal and the iron. The great civilized Christian world wants that iron and coal. They will bribe, steal, murder, they will devastate a people, but they want that iron and coal."

She threw back the bed clothes and swung her feet around, a frail little woman in a night gown, sitting on the edge of the bed. Her feet groped their way into the slippers that stood there side by side.

"Oh, please," Edith murmured, "you mustn't tire yourself! Please lie down again."

But the little missionary merely reached for a wrap and drew it about her shoulders. It was a Japanese scarf of crepe silk, a soft gray in color, fringed at the ends and exquisitely embroidered with trailing wistaria blossoms, also in gray. Then she smiled gently, and replied:

"No, dear. I must get up and dress. I can't lie abed here, now with Simon Blumstein in T'ai Yuan. I'm sorry to be inhospitable. Oh—" the blue eyes began flashing again—"Oh, if I only had some money! With five hundred dollars I could beat Blumstein."

Miss Austin's eyes widened. "You could beat him?" she repeated, wondering.

The missionary compressed her lips and nodded. "I could do it. If I had the money. It's a matter of new petitions and runners and traveling expenses for a dozen workers and a big meeting at T'ai Yuan. Yes, a meeting will do it. And such things cost some money, even in China. And of course I can't be active myself. Mr. Harbison won't let me. He says I'm worse than having dynamite around. He is afraid of trouble. They're all afraid."

She had been staring out the window as she spoke. Now she turned and looked at the rather bewildered face of the girl before her.

"I'm afraid I run away with you, dear," she said gently. "I forget that you don't know these people as I do. But it is so absurdly simple, if we could only contrive to finance it. Everything is confused now, since the revolution. The people are tired, and poor, and worried. And they don't know about it. Without leadership they will do nothing; and all those who might lead are fixed. It is not so different, my dear, from our home public; only worse—and they are incredibly poorer and more timid. . . . Blumstein has got the officials, of course, here and at T'ai Yuan. They have his money and the promise of more; and they'll let him do whatever he can on his own, just so long as he doesn't stir up trouble. But they won't back him in a crisis. They can't. If we can only stir up his trouble for him those canny old mandarins will have to be with us or lose face. . . . Oh," she sighed, "with a little money, a little leadership, a little organization, posters on all the highways for a hundred miles out of T'ai Yuan, a big public meeting, one more mighty effort—just to make it look as if the people are still guarding their rights. . . ."

She flung out her thin, white arms in a gesture of intense but despairing nervous energy, compressed her thin lips again, and got to her feet.

Edith sprang up and took her arm. "What are you going to do, Rhoda, dear?"

"Get into my clothes—write some letters—pack up."

Edith knit her brows. "But—but anyway you can't go to T'ai Yuan now."

"No, not until morning, worse luck. But I can't lie another minute in that bed."

"But, Rhoda, dear, if you haven't the money what good would it do?"

The little missionary steadied herself by the foot of the bed and looked at Edith. "I don't know," she murmured; and there was a hoarseness in her voice. "Every instinct I have drives me to go. But—I wonder." She sank into a chair and fixed her great eyes on the wall before her. "Cooped up in the mission—unable to do any outside work myself—unable to employ others—" She pressed her hands to her temples. "I don't seem able to think clearly. Here is my fifteen years' fight going to nothing before my eyes—and somehow I'm failing to meet the emergency!"

Miss Austin moved slowly to the window, and looked out (with eyes that say very little) at the wet tennis court where two hinese youths in blue robes were lanquidly knocking a ball back and forth. She was stirring with indignation against her Uncle Frank. Why need he mix himself in this miserable exploitation of a weaker people. Then in a flash it came to her that the business of life, to which he was so passionately devoted, was precisely that—exploiting weaker people. He had talked enthusiastically, between platitudes, of the wonderful "opportunities for development" in Shansi. Now suddenly she knew what he meant. He meant bribery, stealth, sharp dealing in the letter of contracts, diplomatic trickery—in his heart a serene faith in the superior ultimate right and might of thirteen-inch guns and fourteen-inch armor plate from home.

HOME COOKING

By MRS. M. A. WILSON

A Picnic Supper.

Warm days soon bring the longing for the country and now that school days are over for the summer season mother may easily prepare for picnic supper in one of the nearby parks or at the outskirts of town, just where the country and city seem to meet. In this way the children will enjoy an afternoon in the open and at the close of the day, for nearly all business places are closing at 5 o'clock, the business folk can join you and then you will have several hours of good daylight.

One farmer on a direct line with the cars from the city has made a specialty of permitting families to picnic in his woodlot. He charges them fifty cents per day and this charge gives them the privilege of the water and use of a small house where they can make tea or coffee. He usually has four or five families there every afternoon. Most of the folk in the country are glad to allow you water for drinking purposes.

And now to prepare the supper. For a change from the usual foods let us plan a menu entirely different from the usual foods and for a choice select from the three menus below:

No. 1.

Olives
Liver Loaf
Stuffed Tomatoes with Cabbage Salad
Bread and Butter
Nut Gingerbread Water

No. 2.

Coleslaw
Deviled Tongue Sandwiches
Vegetable Salad
Bread and Butter
Peach Turnover

No. 3.

Sweet Mixed Pickles
Pork Pies
Potato Salad
Bread and Butter
Fruit

Now purchase for a family of six: Paper drinking cups, paper plates and paper napkins and take along a large old tablecloth to use for a cloth. Wrap these separately into one package for one of the children to carry. Now prepare the butter by placing it in a wide-mouthed one-half pint jar, adding:

One level teaspoon of mustard.
One level teaspoon of paprika.

Beat to thoroughly mix and then seal and place with the bread, which should be at least one day old to cut satisfactorily, or the bread may be buttered at home, cut very thin and folded, each slice to form a sandwich. Place the food in boxes which have been lined with wax paper.

For a party of six you will require a kettle holding about one gallon in which to carry the drinking water. Do not take this water from an unknown source—rather apply to a farmhouse for it. Great danger exists in using water where the source is unknown.

Do not go to the trouble of making either lemonade or tea; good cold water with the meal—al fresco fashion—just about fills the bill. Those who feel that they must have their cup of tea may regale themselves with this potent beverage upon their return home.

Liver Loaf.

Cut one-half pound of liver into small pieces and place in a saucepan. Cover with boiling water and cook for fifteen minutes. Remove the pan and drain well. Now put the liver and

Two onions,
One green pepper,
Four branches of parsley

through the food chopper, adding one-half cup of bread crumbs to remove the mixture from the chopper. Place in a bowl and add

Two cups of prepared stale bread,
One well-beaten egg,
One cup of very thick cream sauce,
One-half teaspoon of thyme,
One and one-half teaspoons of salt,
One-half teaspoon of paprika.

Mix thoroughly and then pour into weel-greased and floured pan and bake in a moderate oven for forty minutes. This loaf should be one day old to cut nicely.

To prepare the bread: Soak a sufficient amount of stale bread in cold water to soften. Place in a cloth and wring dry and then rub through a fine sieve to remove the lumps. Use five level tablespoons of cornstarch to one cup of milk to make the sauce.

Stuffed Tomatoes With Cabbage Salad.

Prepare a coleslaw mixture, using a small head of hard cabbage, adding

One grated onion,
One green pepper, minced fine.

Then cut a slice from the top of firm tomatoes and with a spoon scoop out the center. Fill with the prepared cabbage and dust the top with paprika and wrap in wax paper.

Deviled Tongue Sandwiches.

Either lamb or pork tongue may be used for this. Wash the tongues in plenty of water and then place in a saucepan and add

Faggot of soup herbs,
One onion,
Two cloves.

Bring to a boil and cook gently until tender and then let cool in the liquid. Now remove the skin and put through the food chopper, adding

One large onion,
Two green peppers.

Place this mixture in a bowl and add

One teaspoon of mustard,
One and one-half teaspoons of paprika,
One and one-half teaspoons of salt,
One tablespoon of Worcestershire sauce.

Mix thoroughly and then use.

Vegetable Salad.

Cut cold-boiled corn from three ears of corn and then add

One cup of cooked lima beans,
One cup of coleslaw,
One onion, grated,
One green pepper, minced fine,
One-half cup of thick mayonnaise dressing.

Mix well and then fill into crisp nest of lettuce and wrap in wax paper.

Pork Pies.

Have the butcher remove the bones from three-quarters of a pound of pork chops. Now cut into pieces and put through the food chopper with

Two onions,
One green pepper,
Four branches of parsley.

Put three-quarter cup of bread crumbs through the food chopper after the pork and seasoning and place the whole mixture in a bowl and add

One teaspoon of salt,
One-half teaspoon of white pepper,
One-half teaspoon of sweet marjorum,
One-quarter teaspoon of thyme,
Two well-beaten eggs,
Three-quarters cup of thick cream sauce.

Mix thoroughly and then line deep individual pie plates with plain pactry. Divide the above mixture into six portions and place in the pies. Wet the edges with water and cover with a top crust that has three smash gashes to permit the steam to escape. Brush with water and bake in a slow oven fifty minutes.

These delicious old English meat pies are very attractive to serve for picnic suppers.

Soldier Listed As Dead Attends School at Athens

J. H. Wilson's Wife Had Received First Payment of War Insurance When Husband Arrives at Home.

Athens, Ga., July 30.—(Special.)—Taking the rehabilitation course at the Georgia State College of Agriculture is an ex-soldier who is officially catalogued in the war department as dead. J. H. Wilson, of North Carolina, is the soldier and his "death" occurred in the following manner:

While going "over the top" with his command he was severely wounded, separated from his company and taken to a hospital. As he did not appear when the command had reformed and his whereabouts could not be ascertained, Wilson was officially listed as dead.

The wounds which he received were of such a serious nature that Wilson was incapacitated for further service and was consequently invalided home; but on the records of his company, which had been forwarded to the war office at Washington, he was still listed as "dead." His wife had been notified of his death and had already lost all hope of ever seeing her soldier husband again on earth. In fact she had already received the first installment of his war risk insurance and had spent the most of it for her needs.

One can easily imagine the joy that was in this wife's heart when she saw her husband coming up the walk to their humble little home in the mountain region of North Carolina. Such a homecoming few of our heroes of the world war have experienced and it is needless to add that the fatted calf was killed and the homecoming of the one long reported as dead was celebrated with much rejoicing.

ALLEGED AUTO THIEF HELD ON $1,000 BOND

D. L. Phillips, alias Hugh Payne, 23 years old, was arrested Wednesday by Officers Brannon, Webb, McKibbin and Malcolm on charges of having stolen an automobile from the Atlanta Taxi company, and was bound over Wednesday afternoon by Recorder Johnson on a bond of $1,000, charged with automobile larceny.

The Atlanta police have been on the lookout for Phillips for almost a year, and have had many calls from other cities to arrest him. He is alleged to have stolen an automobile in Birmingham and others in several towns of this state.

He gave his home address as Chattanooga, Tenn., and stated that he was a chauffeur by trade.

He went to jail when a bondsman could not be found.

THIRTY-SIX DIVORCES GRANTED WEDNESDAY

Thirty-six divorces were granted in Judge Pendleton's court Wednesday out of the 300 cases to come up this week on the undefended suit docket. Most of the charges were of cruel treatment.

Lane Lewis accused his wife, Mrs. Kate Lewis, of having been so disagreeable that they were forced to leave their boarding place. He also stated that his wife employed a detective to follow him, which caused him to lose his job.

Mrs. Lewis accused her husband, Robert Bartles, from whom she was granted a divorce, would come home between 1 and 3 o'clock and insist upon her getting up and pressing his clothes.

SPORTS — CRACKERS TAKE SECOND PLACE

Edited By Leslie Rawlings

Frankmen Speed On Winning Twin Bill From Chicks; 9-2, 2-0

Locals Run All Over Weakened Adversaries In First Game While Ray Roberts Pitches One-Hit Contest for Supremacy in Second. Sensational Fielding and Real Baseball Explains Victories.

With Johnny Suggs taking the first game 9 to 2 and Ray Roberts pitching a one-hit game to win the second encounter, 2 to 0, the fast flying Crackers climbed into second place in the league standing at Ponce de Leon park Wednesday afternoon, trimming the Memphis Chickasaws until there wasn't much left of them to trim.

Pulling sensational plays, one-handed stops, running back handed catches, and speedy infield work which fairly made the eyeballs smoke to follow them, the locals scooted over the Chicks in such a fashion that it made those who remembered the early season jinx which the Chicks carried for Atlanta, smile to think of it.

It was more than an auspicious opening for the Crackers to pull upon reaching home. It was one great, big, howling success from the time the homelings pried things loose in their half of the first inning until the last out was made at the end of the seventh frame, the last of the second encounter.

A crowd estimated at 5,000 persons welcomed the youngsters home and with Outfielder Miller playing in right field, and, by the way, putting up a more than creditable performance, things were more than well with the Frankmen.

Didn't Enjoy Himself.

The only person at Poncey park who didn't enjoy himself thoroughly was Bill Brennan, who was hit by so many foul balls that he almost had to be carried off the field in two instances, and remarked, at the end of the show, that he had just about as soon be sparring partner for Jack Dempsey as stay behind the bat through the first game.

There wasn't much use of the Chicks playing the first game, taking into consideration the way they played it. Then, too, it would have taken a combination team, made up of the best players the major leagues have everr known, to stop the Crackers with Goodbread pitching.

The locals belted the ball all over the lot, and whenever some poor Chick would connect with it, a sensational stab or running catch by one of the Atlanta fielders would rob him of glory with the hit almost chalked up on the board.

The Memphians made the mistake of starting off things with too big a rush, because that just made the Crackers fight that much harder and play that much faster when they had their part of the inning. The Chicks scored two in the first of the initial frame, but that was their last look at a run or anything like it until the second game.

Manda singled in the first and Carroll was given his base on balls. When F. Griffin lammed out a double to far left, both scored.

Stenographers Needed.

The Crackers came back with a rush and it came very near requiring the use of three or four score pads and a couple of stenographers to keep up with them.

Galloway was walked to start things off, and Damrau hit to Christenbury, who threw wild to first for an error, two on. Herndon sacrificed, advancing both runners a bag, and Sammy Mayer grounded out, Christenbury to Griffin. Ivy Griffin singled through second, scoring Galloway. On the second error by Christenbury, Dykes was safe and Damrau scored, Dykes racing to second. Miller singled through second, Dykes taking third. Then, while Goodbread held the ball in his hand and slumbered, Dykes stole home and Miller stole second. Higgins popped to F. Griffin, who dropped the ball for one error, then picked it up and tried to knock Harry Fletcher out of the Kiwanis club box for the second error, while Miller raced home. The inning came to an end when Johnny Suggs popped to Christenbury.

The Crackers scored again in the second. Galloway again started things off, but this time it was with a crashing double to left. On a sacrifice by Damrau, Dykes took third, and when Herndon singled to center, he scored.

Goodbread went a little bit better until the seventh inning, when the locals again counted one. Mayer singled to left; took second on a sacrifice by Guy Griffin; third when Dykes singled, ad scored on a single to center by Bob Higgins.

Not content to let well enough alone, the Crackers came across with two more runs in the eighth. Damrau took first when he was hit by a pitched ball and Herndon singled. Both runners advanced a bag on Mayer's sacrifice and Ivy Griffin came through with a well delivered double to right, which scored both Damrau and Herndon.

An Exciting Battle.

The game was full of sensations and was the kind the fans like to see, with both teams awarding the bill for all they were worth. In spite of the fact that the Chicks only counted twice, they were responsible for 11 hits, the tight fielding of the Crackers keeping them from stretching their hits into runs and Johnny Suggs keeping the binyles pretty well scattered.

In the seventh inning, F. Griffin hit to Dykes and was thrown out clean at first to Ivy Griffin, but Umpire Brennan called F. Griffin

Twenty Vivtories Out of Twenty-Four Games Played Would Do Credit to Any Club—Real Spirit Shows.

Called C. Frank at his domicile last night and the portly pilot of our kid marvels is some satisfied man, but he's careful—mighty careful—and he's not going to make any of those hoodoo statements, although he was just plumb tickled over the twin victory registered by his nine against Cy Barger's outfit Wednesday.

The fact that at last, even though they don't keep the place but one day, the Crackers have nosed Little Rock out of second position, is enough to make our chubby clansman tickled, and the way they played ball and have been playing ball during the last three weeks has ticked every fan and loyal supporter in the city of Atlanta.

In every war there are drives, but it has been many a day since the Southern league battle has witnessed such a concentrated and consistent attack as that which the locals launched and have kept going against the fast-flying league leaders.

Worthy of Mention.

Twenty out of twenty-four is some record, and especially is it worthy of mention when you stop to consider that out of the twenty-four games played and the twenty won, eighteen of those contests were away from the Cracker wigwam.

Mildly calling attention to all these facts and pointing with pride to the way things are running with the Atlanta bunch, Cholly has a right to be happy, and he is one man who can sit back in the old easy chair and say to the world that he has done it himself.

When his hectic race for John Martin's pennant got under way Frank was the man who announced that he was going to shatter precedent in the league and band together a club of youngsters, a 100 per cent patriotic outfit, which would give the first division contestants a run for their money.

Most of the other pilots in the league shook their heads, and at times when the little machine was going badly the fans shook their heads and said it couldn't be done, and shouldn't have been attempted.

The Crackers know they are playing good ball, but, even though they know it, they are not going to get overconfident, and are going to fight every inch of the way just as hard as it is possible for them to fight.

What They Think.

As one of the boys said in the clubhouse Wednesday, before the Memphis double-header, "Yes, the whole club is playing good ball. There isn't a one who isn't in there fighting just as hard as he can. We all boot 'em sometimes, but we are going to come back just that much harder to make up for it when we do, and there never was a bunch of fellows that pulled together and worked for each other like this gang."

It can be safely said that Frank has established a precedent in baseball, for this circuit anyway. He has shown that the time has come when young blood can do more for the grand old game than all the high-priced players it would have been possible to get from the outside.

It's a little too early to make predictions, but if the Crackers don't win the 1919 pennint there is going to be a slight suspicion in the minds of some of the other clubs that they have been in the race, and that counts a whole lot, taking into consideration what the Atlantans have been up against.

Carl Mays Is Traded.

Boston, July 30.—Pitcher Carl Mays was traded by the Boston American League club today to the New York Yankees in exchange for Pitchers Allan Russell and Robert McGraw.

AIN'T IT A GRAND AND GLORIOUS FEELIN'? :: :: :: By Briggs

J. Douglas Edgar Is Canadian Champion, Winning Over Bob Jones and Barnes, Breaking Course Record, 72 Holes---278

Druid Hills Professional Brings Dominion Championship to Atlanta With Wonderful Record—Bobby Runs Second, the Two Georgians Outdistancing Classy Field. Greatest Golf Triumph of Year for Local Man.

Hamilton, Ont., July 30.—(Special.)—Not content with capturing the international match, one of the American invaders won the Canadian open championship here today so there are very few golfing honors remaining in the dominion with the departure of Uncle Sam's players. For the next year the Canadian open championship will remain in Atlanta, Ga., Douglas Edgar, of the Druid Hills Golf club, of that place, winning the title today when he finished ahead of the classy field entered in the quest for the championship with a remarkable score of 278 for the 72 holes. His was one of the most remarkable games ever played on any golf course in America, his score being 10 strokes better than par figures of the Hamilton course for four rounds. The best previous world's record for an open championship was 283, which was made last week by James Barnes when he won the western open championship at Cleveland, Ohio. His nearest competitors were Bobby Jones, the youthful Atlanta phenom, James Barnes, and Karl Keffer, the Canadian star, who were tied for second place with a mark of 294, 16 strokes behind.

Edgar's remarkable playing today stamps him as one of the greatest golfers on the American continent. He played brilliant golf last week on the western open championship and had he had any breaks he would have finished higher up.

A Championship Course.

The course of the Hamilton Golf and Country club at Ancaster is considered the championship course in Canada, so that there is nothing to detract from Edgar's wonderful play. The exhibition he gave on the final round when he finished the 18 holes in 66—3 below the course record—was truly an amazing one.

He worked like a perfect machine. From tee to fairway, from fairway to green, thence to the cup, he made birdie scores with almost monotonous rapidity. Only a couple of bad putts coming home prevented him from scoring a 64.

Yesterday Edgar finished the 36 holes in 143, which placed him 6 strokes in the lead.

This morning he forged ahead again, going over the course in 69. He was traveling at top form, and he looked a sure winner unless he fractured a leg.

A huge gallery started out with the southern "pro" when he began his final round this afternoon, with W. J. Thompson, the Toronto amateur, who at the close of the third round was tied with his brother, Nicol Thompson, for second place.

After an inauspicious first, which he took in 5, Edgar played the second, a 450-yarder, in 3, being 2 under par. This feat he duplicated at the fourth hole. At the sixth he holed out in 2. At the turn he had the remarkable score of 32. The tenth hole was taken in par, and the next was a bird 4.

Twelfth in Three.

The Englishman took the 340-yard twelfth in 3. From the thirteenth teeing ground he drove to the green and missed holding a 30-foot putt by inches. On the fourteenth he drove nearly 250 yards, played a beautiful niblick to the green and holed out a 10-foot putt. On the fifteenth he played a running shot to the green in his second and missed a 35-foot putt by a foot. Playing an iron against a heavy wind, Edgar missed the green in the 165-yard sixteenth, the ball rolling into the rough. He made a fine stroke, but failed to hole out a 10-foot putt, and dropped a stroke.

The seventeeth hole, one of 500 yards, saw one of the most remarkable plays seen in the tournament. Edgar's 315-yard drive pulled into the rough, and the ball chanced to drop upon a bad lie, which caused it to bounce farther into the rough. Undismayed by the bad lie, he made a mighty 225-yard drive which landed the ball dead on the green. A bad putt neutralized this wonderful play. Edgar romped home with a bird 4, amidst the enthusiastic applause of the gallery.

Although eclipsed by the spectacular play of the Georgia pro, the trio who tied for second place all put up great exhibitions. Bobby Jones, the boy from Atlanta, Ga., had the honor of leading the amateurs. Throughout the tournament he was engaged in a sensational duel with the holder of the open championship, Karl Keffer, of Ottawa.

At the first round yesterday Bobby led with five strokes, but at the end of the 36 holes yesterday the Canadian champ had effaced this advantage and was leading by one up.

This morning Keffer scored a 72 against Jones' 75, but by virtue of a great spurt in the final round Jones turned in a card of 71, equalizing the score, 145 apiece.

Pirates Protest Gabe.

Pittsburg, July 30.—The Pittsburg National league baseball club announced tonight that it had protested the first game between the Pirates and Cincinnati, played in Cincinnati last Sunday. The Reds won the game, 5 to 3.

The Pittsburg club cites that during Sunday's games in Cincinnati it was necessary to establish ground rules, giving a runner only two bases in event the ball went into the crowd, and that Umpire Rigler allowed Groh of Cincinnati to score from first base on a wild throw into the crowd.

Tennille Wins Rubber.

Tennille, Ga., July 30.—(Special.) Tennille made it two out of three from the fast Fitzgerald team here this afternoon by defeating them, 1 to 0. It was a pitchers' battle between Bedgood and Fox, the former getting better of the breaks. Bedgood struck out ten and gave up three hits, while Fox fanned six and allowed only six hits. Waynesboro plays here Thursday and a record-breaking crowd is expected. Tennille, 2 runs, 7 hits, 1 error; Fitzgerald, 0 runs, 3 hits, 3 errors. Batteries—Bedgood and Irby; Fox and Lyle. Umpire, Sheppard.

Football Prospects Are Bright at Auburn With Veterans Back

Mike Donahue at Old Post—Old Men Returning From War Swell the Ranks—Plainsmen Have Heavy Line.

By Gene Hinton

The Alabama Polytechnic institute, better known as Auburn, will show a revival of interest in football next year, which coupled with the formidable array of old "A" men returning to school in the fall, bodes evil for all teams who think that Auburn will be a soft snap.

At Auburn last year, the same conditions were contended with as fell to the lot of practically every other college of any size in the country. This condition was brought about by the S. A. T. C. This organization, though no doubt an excellent one in its line, was not very conducive to the football enthusiasm and spirit, which has characterized Auburn for the last twenty years. The students were not allowed to see the team practice on account of tthe daily drill, which, coupled with the fact that the eleven was green, inexperienced and light and in former years would not have been considered a representative Auburn team, did not take any great amount of interest in the games.

This fall, however, all Auburn is planning to "come back" with a vengeance and reassert the Plainsmen as one of the strongest, if not the very strongest football eleven in the south.

It was not ever thus. Once upon a time, the Auburn team was dreaded by all who were forced to buck up against it. In 1913, in possession of a really great football team and one of their last of that variety, the Plainsmen won the championship of the S. I. A. A. in a walk and swept the entire south before them in their triumphant march. This team might also call to mind that memorable contest with the Carlisle Indians, then a powerful football machine, on Grant field, when, after four quarters of the most furious fighting ever seen here, Auburn emerged the victors by the score of 7-0. Up until 1916, unless we are very much mistaken, Tech had beaten Auburn exactly three times out of twenty years, not a record to shout over, and this year the Plainsmen are going to make an earnest endeavor to add another win to tthe lengthy string of victories.

May Vets Return.

Besides the last year's team, which put up such a wonderful, though a losing fight, against the Yellow Jackets on Thanksgiving last, will be returned many of the old tried and true veterans who were instrumental in keeping Auburn in the swim for the last three years or so.

Pete Bonner, the sorrel-topped tackle, who has played his heart out for the Orange and Blue for three years, will, in all probability, be back at his old place. This announcement alone is enough to bring joy to all Auburn's followers, for Pete is in the game from the first whistle until the last. All the south knows him as a clean and gritty sportsman.

Emmett Sizemore, the gigantic guard, will again be seen at that position, and his bulk of 230 pounds will be a tower of strength to the line. Caton, who centered so brilliantly in 1917, will be back at the snapper-back position and like Rogers, who handled the position so acceptably last year, will be shifted over to tackle, his original position. Duck Samford, another Lilliputian of some three feet girth, and with a displacement of something like 220 pounds, will fight hard for a guard's berth. He was in school last year, but at the start of the season was laid low by an attack of the flu and could not participate in a single contest. "Big" Warren, of weight about 245 pounds, will no doubt find a place somewhere in the line. Warren never did look on football as anything but a joke, but after a spell in the army, he is seeing the more serious things of life, and a great gridiron future has been predicted for him.

That about finishes up the line,

SUPERMAN COMING TO GEORGIA TECH

Frank Jahovac, Star Backfield Man of Pittsburg, Is Lined Up for Golden Tornado in Coming Gridiron Battles.

Pittsburg, Pa., July 30.—(Special.) Frank Jahovac, the sturdy Pittsburg football player, who became prominent in scholastic circles while at Indiana normal, is headed towards Georgia Tech. He stated today that he would probably enter the Atlanta educational institution, and if he does it goes without saying that Georgia Tech will acquire a backfield man who will be of invaluable service to the Atlanta collegians.

Hereabouts Jahovac is considered one of the greatest ground gainers on quick plays off tackle and inside the guards in the country. He has also earned great commendation from football authorities all over the country for some of his spectacular runs. However, it is at line plunging that he shines.

Teamed with a fast change of pace runners like Tom Davies and Jimmy Dehart, Jahovac would be a star of the first magnitude.

Jahovac is a stockily put up fellow. He is about 5 feet 9 inches, but has the torso of a wrestler with almost the utter absence of a neck. His head appears to set flush on his shoulders, and so far he has been invulnerable to serious injury.

Playing with an army team, made of mediocre players two years ago, against the University of Pittsburg, Jahovac gained more ground than any player had ever done before or since. He should be a wonderful player with Georgia Tech.

BABE RUTH STARTS FOR WORLD RECORD

Red Sox Marvel Has Equalled American League Work and Now Starts for New World Homerun Honors.

Boston, July 30.—With the American league record for home runs equalled by his sixteenth circuit clout of the season in yesterday's game with Detroit, "Babe" Ruth, the Red Sox crack batsman, today set out for a new league mark.

Swinging three bats while awaiting his turn at practice, this morning, Ruth said he felt confident of exceeding "Socks" Seybold's American league record, and added that "Buck" Freeman's world record for the major leagues of 25 home runs would be the particular aim of his batting ambition for the rest of the season.

Ruth's long-distance hitting has scored runs on every grounds in the American league this season. His total of the year is considerably greater than 16, the spring training season having been marked by one series of six consecutive home runs off his bat. American league pitchers appear at a loss to stop him, the big pitcher and outfielder having made scoring drives off balls knee high and over his head alike.

Not to pull any of this "I told you so stuff," but just take a look at the old standings this A. M., and realize, brother, that those Crackers are now reposing in the second position. They will only be reposing until 4 o'clock this afternoon, when they will again start climbing by taking the third and last game from Cy Barger's Chickasaws.

It's sort of a shame to treat old Cy like we are, because he is a dandy fine fellow, but, then, everything is fair in baseball and love and war, and these Crackers bring forth a little bit of all three during the course of one short afternoon.

Bill Brennan says he had just about as soon be one of Jack Dempsey's sparring partners as to umpire another game behind the bat like Wednesday afternoon's. Bill was going groggy and casting the old sponge about every inning because it seemed like every foul tip in the game was making a bee line for his Adam's apple.

D'ja see those catches our young captain pulled off along about where you generally tie your shoes? What more can a man expect of a captain of a team than a man like Sammy!

Atlanta's pitchers don't have to work very hard. No matter how many hits they give up the locals always manage to go him one better and get that many and then more off the opposition.

Ethel and Fred were in a box at the game Wednesday and Ethel fell in love with Dan Boone. Fred says he's off for life now sure enough.

Milady of the Purple Ink might mothave been at the game, but the one with the pink hat was there with a vengeance. Know what I mean?

Charley Frank is about the best natured man in the south at the present time, but we can still faintly remember when he wasn't.

Like to be in New Orleans tonight after those Pelicans read the box score and preach a little sermon entitled, "Smile, damn you, you're next!"

Harry Hatcher was at the game yesterday and Bill Brennan was going to chase him out of the park until Harry sympathized with Bill when the latter got hit. If the last decision Bill hadn't agreed with Harry's way hadn't agree with Harry's way of thinking he would have told Bill he hoped the next one killed him. Such is the fan.

M. Blake had a great time on his trip with the team. Anybody can have a good time with that bunch of youngsters, according to M. B.

Bob Higgins has been fooling us. He's not more than 16 now.

William Miller made his debut with the Crackers in right field Wednesday and the fans gave him a good reception. From the way Brother Miller stands up to that plate and swings everything but his last season's rifle shows that he knows a little something about that old game of hit, and he fields 'em well, too.

A woman is always trying to tell you how much you have missed when you don't do to suit 'em. The only rub to the thing is that nine out of ten times they are right.

Wonder what President Logan, of the Mobile club, has to say at present. If it wasn't for Atlanta and Charley Frank the Southern league never would have discovered that youngsters are better ball players than veterans of the Spanish-American war. Watch 'em all come around next season.

FOOTBALL PROSPECTS BRIGHT AT AUBURN

and now to the backfield, where the worst of the trouble lies. "Moon" Ducote's fling at professional baseball leaves an abyss in the Auburn backfield that probably won't be filled for years to come. Ducote is without doubt one of the greatest footballers in the country, and was equally as strong in defensive work, having started his career at end, as he was on the offensive, which is saying quite a good deal.

At quarter this fall, the Plainsmen will have a youth who in 1917 was considered one of the most brilliant field generals in the south. This young man is Herman Trapp, who, combining great natural ability in running a football team with wonderful work from a more mechanical standpoint, will call signals for Auburn.

Big Fullback Coming.

"Harkey" Revington, the plunging fullback, and one of the fiercest tacklers the south has ever seen, will probably be seen at his old post, and will divide the position with "Monk" Hughes, both of whom were members of the 1917 eleven. The truth of the matter is that "Harkey" has to be supplied with a running mate, for there is no telling when he will knock himself out by the viciousness of his tackling.

Creel and Kirkwood, who won "A's" in '17, will probably return to the fold in the fall, and should make somebody extend themselves to the limit for two half-back positions.

At end, only one old man will be returning. This is Gibson, whose play against Ohio State, when the western champions were held scoreless for four quarters, will long be remembered.

This list includes only those veterans who are practically certain that they will return to school, and the ranks will probably be swelled in the fall by several more.

Of last year's team, the following men will return: Rogers, center; Wynne, guard; Lollar and Erwin, tackles; Pruitt and Ollinger, ends; Howard, quarter; Scott and Stubbs, halves, and Shirling and Bullock, fullbacks.

Mike Donahue will again be at the helm in the fall, and he will be ably assisted by "Boozer" Pitts, one of the greatest centers the south ever saw, who will coach the line work mainly. "Tick" Tichenor will also probably be back and will lend his hand to the developing of a formidable scrub team to give the varsity a healthy scrap.

ATLANTIC STEEL WINS CITY LEAGUE PENNANT

Lefty Parker Whiffed 12 Batsmen for Wednesday's Victory.

The Atlantic Steel team Wednesday afternoon copped the pennant in the City league race by defeating the Commodore Feds in a well-played game, shutting them out, 3 to 0.

Coombs, on the mound for the Feds, twirled air-tight ball and allowed the heavy-hitting Steel Makers only three safeties, but they made them all count and got them when they were needed.

"Lefty" Parker did the "putting them over" for the winners and gave up only one hit—whiffing 12 men and had the losers eating out of his hands from start to finish.

The Steel team has one more game in the City league, which will be played Saturday, August 2, at the steel plant, against Inman Yards. Then comes the championship series with the winners of the pennant in the Commercial league, which will be played as soon as the Commercial league schedule is finished—and which will determine the real city champions.

It is also probable that a series will be arranged between the Steel Plant and the winners in the Bankers' league. The Steel Plant team claims the city championship by reason of winning the City league pennant, as the City league is the strongest league in the city—and is ready to defend its title at any time against any team which lays claim to the city championship by winning the pennant in any of the other local leagues.

FIGHTERS WILL ARRIVE HERE ON AUGUST FIRST

Herman and Hahn Will Train at a Local Club.

J. Hume McDonald announces that he has received letters from the managers of Pete Herman and Bernie Hahn, who are to meet here on the night of August 6, stating that the two will reach Atlanta on the first day of August, and will do some intensive training here for the bout.

The managers state that the two boxers are in very good shape right now, but both will do some hard conditioning for a week before the fight, the result of which should be that the two will be in the very pink of condition when the gong sounds.

Levy writes from the Hahn camp that Bernie is developing a wonderful punch in his right mitt. This member has been very feeble from the first time that Bernie showed here, and if it is improved in hitting power as much as Levy states, he should be able to do a lot of damage to Herman. Bernie has a great left, and in his fight with Ritchie here, used that lunch hook to great advantage, peppering the Chicago boy in the face at will.

The fighters after reaching Atlanta will pitch their training camps at "Walk" Miller's new boxing club, and every afternoon may be seen in action from about 4 until 5. As the new boxing show can only seat 400 people when filled to its capacity, an admission fee of twenty-five cents will be charged for the exhibitions.

"Mac" has arranged the preliminaries for the big bout and contain some good features. They are as follows:

As a starter to the carnival, Mac is trying a new stunt. The feature will be a battle royal between five blacks, the feature lying in the fact that they will be blindfolded. This mill might be called "The survival of the fittest," and in the event that the last two darkies are unable to find each other, their blinds will be removed and they will be told to go to it. If they don't fight, they get no money.

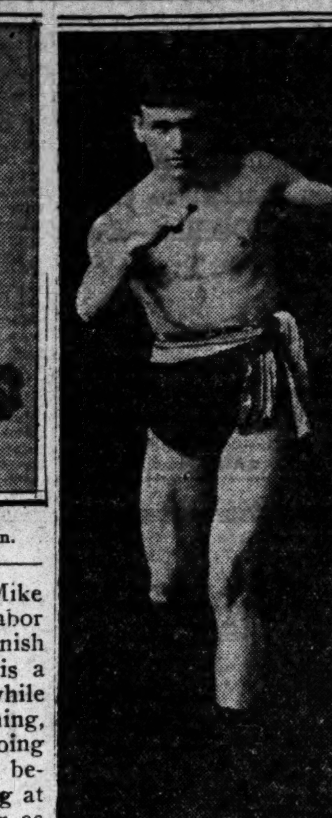
In the second bout of the evening, Gus Pash, a soldier at Camp Gordon, and Kid Karst, of Fort McPherson, will tie up in a six-round mill. Pash is reported as being a tearing-in, slugging type of fighter, and as local fans know the ability of Kid Karst as a clever boxer, this bout should be very interesting.

In the semi-windup, Young Abe Attell, a local boy, who has fought scores of fights here in the past, will mix it for six rounds with Batling Avera, who has just returned from France, having served in the army "Over there." While in the army, Avera participated in twelve and in these mills he did not receive a single verdict against him. A few were recorded as draws but the great majority of them went in Avera's favor. This go should be a hummer all the way through, and will fight at 135 pounds.

Tickets for the bout are on sale at Chess' place and the Rex Billiard parlor.

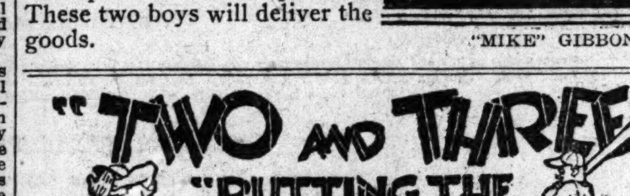
Two Mikes to Do Battle

"MIKE" O'DOWD, The Middleweight Champion.



"MIKE" GIBBONS.

Mike Gibbons and Mike O'Dowd will clash on Labor Day, and this ought to furnish a real quarrel. Gibbons is a careful sort of boxer, while O'Dowd is of the rushing, plunging type, always going into action, while Gibbons believes in the idea of picking at an opponent and receiving as little punishment as possible. These two boys will deliver the goods.



LOOKS LIKE BOOTS ARE GOING to be 25 smackers a set this winter, with no chance of the shoe salesman splitting a pair.

SNAPPY SUITS FOR YOUNG DEMOCRATS will be 200 iron boys a copy. Twenty-five chips for a pair of kicks is plenty velvet. Two hundred bills for full-dress overalls is twice plenty multiplied by six.

IF THE MANUFACTURERS GO through with it they will have us paging the same tailor who dressed Adam. Those birds must think we were born with a silver shoe horn in our mouths. They've been chirping overhead charges for the last five seasons. With shoes stepping up to a two-bit note a pair, looks like they are also sticking in some underfoot charges.

AS WE BUZZED BEFORE, when kicks reach $25 per two, we will lace 'em up with Yale locks instead of shoestrings. Looks like anybody can afford to rattle around naked next winter.

EVERYTHING ELSE BEING EQUAL, which it never is, we would state that the public is a fine hand-picked bundle of goofs. Their cup of nearbeer and other griefs runneth over. Lincoln said you couldn't bilk the folks all of the time, but that was before they poked the stem and key winders up an hour. Now old George Public gets hyped all the time, and also overtime.

NOT SATISFIED WITH SOAKING US ostrich prices for canary eggs, blimping the rent to a million and short-changing infants out of their milk, the profiteers are going to trim our trimmings. Soon have the public so dizzy that it will flatwheel around forging beer checks. Don't mind paying for stuff twice and getting it twice, but hate to kick in twice and only get it once.

FIGURING ON 200 BERRIES an outfit, the coat and vest will total 150 medals. That makes it $50 for the pants.

THERE AIN'T A PAIR OF SUSPENDERS made strong enough to hold up $50 worth of pants. You said it.

THE TAILORS ALSO THREATEN to make gents' clothing form-fitting, which will scare the bow-legged and knock-kneed guys into submission, but still leave enough straight voters left over to swing the works republican next fall.

TWO BABY GRANDS FOR ONE SUIT OF CLOTHES is going to make the measurements a lot different. The flat-chested citizen who used to carry his B. R. in his inside vest pocket will be more flat-chested than ever. There will be two waist measures. One with your 200 in your trousers pockets and a smaller measurement without the 200.

MAKES A GUY LONG FOR THE SOUTH SEA ISLES, where they crease their trousers east and west instead of north and south. They say it takes nine tailors to make a man and only six pallbearers to carry him out. Showing that one of the two is a much-overrated industry.

CHARGING 25 MARKERS for a pair of bunion cases is sweet stuff compared to eight times that amount for the wrinkles in a Palm Beach suit. There hasn't been much of a boost in male millinery yet, but you can't tell what will happen after a bird gets his carcass parked in a 200-bills suit. Liable to step right out and order a pink opera hat with an ostrich feather on the running board.

DON'T KNOW WHAT THE WORKING MAN will do when clothes get into the luxury column. Have to follow the Bullsheviki stuff and try to grow a suit right on his chin.

Lesson 58.

Various Kinds of Bunts.

The bunt, as originally conceived by Dicky Pearce, consisted of dropping the ball dead as closely in front of the plate as possible. In the days of the "dead" ball this style of bunting continued to be the most used and, in fact, it is today the only true bunt, although there are vaiations of the same style of hit.

Probably the most widely used of these variations is what is known as "the swinging bunt." This is not a true bunt, but really a swing at the ball with the bat swung slowly and gripped so lightly that the bat scarcely overcomes the momentum of the ball and rolls it slowly down the infield, preferably toward shortstop or second baseman with just speed enough to prevent the pitcher from fielding it.

Another bunt which has found popularity is the "force bunt" which was originated by "Little" Butler, who at one time promised to become one of the greatest of all players, but who had the misfortune to mutilate his throwing hand by holding onto a cannon firecracker too long one Fourth of July. This bunt was really the same as that now known as the "drag" bunt, the ball being poked, or dragged, toward first base, being pushed hard enough to drive it past the pitcher, but so slowly as to force the second baseman to come forward at top speed to field it. This style of bunt is even more popular with very fast left-handed batters than is the push toward third base. The third baseman in almost every instance is on the alert to field bunts and if he gets the jump on the ball he will throw out the runner even on the most perfect bunts and, with the runner on first, he will throw out the runned at second in more than 50 per cent of the cases.

In the push or drag bunt the hit is a certain sacrifice if the ball is pushed past the pitcher and such slow rolling balls are the most difficult of all for a second baseman or a shortstop to handle. Infielders make a greater percentage of wild throws in fielding this kind of a ball than any other, and a wild throw to first on such a sacrifice bunt means that each runner may advance two extra bases and very frequently the runner going from first can score before the ball is retrieved.

HAYS BEING PRESSED TO RUN FOR GOVERNOR

Washington, July 30.—Some of the republican leaders in congress say they are apprehensive of the pressure being brought by Indiana republicans on Chairman Hays, of the republican national committee, to accept the nomination for governor of his home state. They are bringing a counter pressure to bear on Chairman Hays on the ground that his services should not be given to one state exclusively, but that he should continue his work for the party nationally.

safe, claiming that Suggs had interfered with him while running to first.

A beautiful one-handed stop by Griffin in the third inning, a running catch by Sammy Mayer in short center, a beautiful stop by Damrau in the eighth, and speedy work by Galloway, Dykes and Griffin were as usual the features of the first encounter.

In the second game, Handsome Ray Roberts not only made things humiliating but he rubbed it in when he allowed the Chicks to get only one measley little hit and shut them out, 2 to 0.

Roberts and Higgins were the choice of Manager Frank for the second battle, while Cy Barger sent Foster and Bischoff in as his battery.

Atlanta got away to a good start in the first inning, when Galloway was walked, took second on a passed ball by Bischoff, and when Foster threw to catch him off second he was hit in the back with the ball and took third. Damrau struck out and when Herndon grounded out on a fast play, Christenbury to Griffin, Galloway scored.

Foster was pitching a tight game and the locals failed to score again until the fourth frame, when Captain Sammy Mayer started the ball to rolling by singling to center and taking second when the centerfielder let the ball get away from him. Griffin advanced Sammy on a sacrifice and on another passed ball by Bischoff, Mayer sped home.

The two runs with four hits and no errors was Atlanta's record in the second party while Memphis got one hit and two errors.

Pels Divide Header.

New Orleans, July 30.—Nashville and New Orleans divided a double-header here today, the locals winning the first 2 to 0 and the visitors taking the second 5 to 2. Roberts, in the first game, pitched masterly ball, while Hodge weakened in the fourth and sixth and allowed a run in each session. In the second game Lee blew up in the fourth, walking three men after four consecutive singles had been made. The first game, nine innings, was played in one hour and fourteen minutes.

Birmingham, Ala., July 30.—Birmingham defeated Little Rock in a weird exhibition which was halted in the fifth inning by rain just after the visitors had taken their turn at bat. Sigman was pounded hard while Robinson and Ledbetter were easy for the locals. With Brottem on third Bacon attempted to steal that base, sliding almost into his teammate.

"Yes, father! What is it?" she answered, through the midnight stillness.

"Just tell your young man to be careful and not trip over the morning milk when he goes!"

Yes; S. S. S. Is Purely Vegetable Nature's Safe Blood Treatment

Known for 50 Years as the Best Remedy for Rheumatism, Catarrh and Skin Diseases.

Scientists have discovered that the forest and the field are abundantly supplied with vegetation of various kinds, that furnish the ingredients for making a remedy for practically every ill and ailment of mankind. Medicines made from roots, herbs, and barks which Nature has placed at the disposal of man are better than strong mineral mixtures and concoctions. Mineral medicines work dangerously on the delicate parts of the bowels by eating out the lining membrane, producing chronic dyspepsia and often entirely ruining the health.

S. S. S. is made entirely of gentle-acting, healing, purifying roots, herbs and barks, possessing properties that build up all parts of the system and cleansing the blood of the germs that cause Rheumatism, Catarrh, Sores and Ulcers, Skin Diseases, and all disorders of the blood. It cleanses the entire system and it is permanent. Get S. S. S. at any drug store today. It is a standard remedy, recognized everywhere as the greatest blood antidote ever discovered. Closed very steady.

New York, July 30.—After having weakened values 300 points, or $15 a bale from the high levels of the season, the bear movement in cotton was abruptly checked today and a covering movement developed which ran prices up over $7 a bale from the low point of the morning.

The market opened easy and 95 points lower on August, with other months 32 to 47 points lower, influenced by very weak cables showing a decline equal to 180 American points, and continued favorable weather and crop advices from private sources.

On the decline the trade was a good buyer and it developed later that spinners picked up a good part of the cotton offered during the day which made contracts extremely scarce. At the lowest levels of the morning October sold at 33.08 and December 33.25, or 67 points under the previous night.

The rally was started from this level by the weekly weather and crop bulletin, which failed to confirm the bearish crop ideas current in the past two days. It referred to a good deal of shedding, boll weevil damage and poor fruiting and was the signal for heavy buying which grew in volume as the afternoon progressed until just before the close October sold at 34.36 and December at 34.54, final prices being only a shade under this and from 55 to 70 points net higher with the tone strong.

Several private crop condition reports were issued during the day, of which two noted slight improvement over last month, the others showing a loss. Of the ten such reports thus far issued the average condition is 69.2 compared with 70.1 last month.

Liverpool and the south, with Wall street, were the largest sellers early in the day, and it was the opinion near the close that the market had been quite thoroughly liquidated.

SPOTS IN NEW YORK.

New York, July 30.—Spot, steady; middling, 34.80.

NEW ORLEANS SOARS UPWARD FROM DECLINE

New Orleans, July 30.—A strong advance on covering of the short interest and buying for long account featured the trading in cotton today, following marked weakness in the early session. From a net decline in the early trading of 58 to 74 points, the market rose to a net advance of 60 to 67 points and closed 60 to 65 points net higher.

The opening was lower and during the first hour of trading much pressure was felt in response to the pronounced weakness displayed by the Liverpool market and to the continued favorable weather over the belt. Lowest levels were reached following these forecasts of dry weather for practically the entire cotton region.

The weekly crop accounts from the government were considered mildly bearish, but did not bring out fresh short offerings. Instead early sellers went to realizing their profits and they found they were trying to buy covers on a market bare of cotton. Bullish traders were quick to seize their opportunity and they swelled the demand with the result that a very strong market developed. The demand continued to the close, which was toned very steady.

SPOTS IN NEW ORLEANS

New Orleans, July 30.—Spot cotton quiet and unchanged. Sales on the spot, 472 bales; to arrive, none. Low middling, 28.50; middling, 34.75; good middling, 34.75. Receipts, 2,844; stock, 371,082.

Liverpool Cotton.

Liverpool, July 30.—Cotton: Spot, quiet; prices weak. Good middling, 21.31; fully middling, 20.81; middling, 20.21; low middling, 18.46; good ordinary, 16.81; ordinary, 16.28; sales, 4,000 bales, including 3,800 American. Receipts, 3,000 bales; no American. Futures closed unsettled; July, 20.46; October, 20.71; January, 20.86; March, 20.81; May, 20.73.

PROFESSIONAL VIEWS ON COTTON SITUATION

New York, July 30.—Special.)—The continuation of yesterday's liquidation, due principally to the disappointing cables from abroad, occasioned a decline early of about 70 points. When October reached close to the 34-cent level trade interests, both foreign and domestic, became buyers and the demand from this source brought in recovering of contracts resulting in a quick recovery and final prices were about 60 points above yesterday's closing. The weekly weather report was not as favorable as the trade expected. The south continues to sell hedges on the advances.

J. W. JAY & CO.

NEW ORLEANS LETTER.

New Orleans, July 30.—(Special.)—Surprising strength was developed by cotton today following the wide declines during the first hour of trading, which were the result of sensationally poor Liverpool cables and a very good weather map, combined with predictions of continued good weather. Following the reading of the weekly crop reports from the government, which were mildly bearish, early sellers went to realizing, and they found little cotton for sale. Bullish traders seeing the predicament of the shorts, came in with a fresh demand, and prices rose fast, the improvement being maintained to the close. From a net decline of 58 to 71 points the market went to a net advance of 60 to 67 points. Heavy rains in the belt: Wilmington, N. C., 1.32; Brinkley, Ark., 1.10; Mena, Ark., 1.24.

DUGGAN & BOUDEN.

New York, July 30.—(Special.)—Cables this morning were very much lower than due. Private dispatches ascribed the decline to the better weather which has led to expectations of a bearish bureau and has prevented the calling of cotton by Manchester spinners who are led to expect lower prices here. The market met demand from the domestic trade on the decline, which prevented a full response to the decline abroad. The weekly wather report proved not to be as favorable as expected, and in the early afternoon the market had fully recovered the initial decline and was back to last night's prices. It is likely, however, that there will be another period of lower prices before the reading of the bureau on Friday, as the weather south is favorable and local sentiment is still rather bearish.

HUBBARD BROS. CO.

New York, July 30.—(Special.)—Sensationally weak Liverpool cables this morning were not fully responded to in our market. On the contrary, we expect comparatively strong on further liquidation and the growing bearish confidence. Prices were lower early today. Upon strength being displayed, shorts became nervous and sharp covering set in with quotations rising sharply above last night. The weekly weather report was unfavorable in the main. In many instances where growth has been rapid it was at the cost of fruiting, and the plant was complained of as being sappy and shedding. Boll weevil were reported as doing considerable damage. The bureau report on condition will be published August 1, at 11 o'clock.

Heavy Rains—Arkansas: Brinkley, 1.10; Mena, 1.24. North Carolina: Wilmington, 1.32.

Summary for the Cotton Region States.

New Orleans, La., July 30.—Temperatures were slightly above normal, except in coast sections and western Texas, where they were nearly or slightly below normal. Showers occurred in Louisiana, Mississippi, Arkansas, North Carolina and parts of Texas and central Florida. Special reports from Montgomery district are missing.—Cline.

Summary of Weather and Crop Conditions in the Cotton Belt for the Week Ending July 29, 1919.

Washington, D. C., July 30.—Normal temperatures prevailed generally, except that it was below normal in the western part of the cotton belt, and moderate to excessive rainfall occurred in most localities, particularly in the eastern and southwestern portions. The progress of cotton was mostly about the average, except in some localities where there was too much rain. The progress of cotton was satisfactory in central and northern Texas, but the crop deteriorated in the east and near the coast, while generally good progress was made in Oklahoma and satisfactory progress in Arkansas. The progress of cotton was poor to about the average in Alabama, and growth considerable in Georgia, where the crop is too rank. Some damage occurred in the Carolinas by flooding, but not serious. Cotton is shedding rather extensively in Texas and portions of southern Alabama, and the crop is fruiting poorly in Georgia. Weevils prevail quite extensively, and the damage ranged from considerable to rather extensive in many southern localities. The weather was generally favorable for other crops in the southern districts, except where there was too much rain.—Marvin.

Synopsis of Weather and Crop Conditions in Georgia for the Week Ending Tuesday, July 29, 1919.

Atlanta, Ga., July 30.—The past week was very unfavorable for agricultural interests. Excessive rains occurred during most of the week, except near the close, over practically all of Georgia, except the northern and especially the northwestern portion, which caused much damage to crops generally; lands were badly washed in places; moderate floods occurred in most of the rivers, with flooding of bottom lands and some loss to lowland cotton and corn, though not extensive. The soggy condition of the soil prevented all farm work, even the gathering of crops in the field, such as melons, ready to be marketed. The amount of sunshine was very deficient and the temperature moderately low. At the close of the week—Monday and Tuesday—a tendency to fair weather set in, with higher temperatures and abundant sunshine. Corn, though generally a fair crop, was injured by excessive precipitation, especially late corn in tassel; fodder pulling was delayed. Sweet potatoes are vining vigorously, but would be benefited by sunshine. Pastures and meadows are very good, but haying has been impossible so far. Sorghum and sugar cane made excellent growth. Melons are ripening in the north. Cotton is poor in the southern division, fair in the middle, and good in the northern division. Growth during the week was rapid, but the plants are sappy and not fruiting well. Complaints of shedding of squares and bolls are very numerous, and boll weevils are doing great damage. The crop was ruined by the excessive rains in many southern localities. It continues fair to excellent in the north.

xHighest yesterday. ‡Lowest for 24 hours, ending at 7 a. m., 75th meridian time, except where otherwise indicated.

NOTE—The "state of weather" is that prevailing at the time of the observation.

xMinimum temperatures are for 12-hour period ending at 7 a. m. this date.

C. F. von HERRMANN, Meteorologist, Weather Bureau.

Cotton Seed Oil.

New York, July 30.—Cotton seed oil was lower under scattered local selling and lack of outside support. Shorts were practically the only buyers. Final bids were 15 to 22 points net lower. Sales, 2,400 barrels. Prime crude, nominal; prime summer yellow spot, 28.00; September, 27.90; October, 26.80; December, 25.00.

The market closed steady. Spot, 28.00; August, 27.85; September, 27.90; October, 26.80; November, 25.40; December, 25.00; January, 25.00; February, 25.00; March, 25.00. Sales, 2,400.

Coffee.

New York, July 30.—The market for coffee futures was generally lower today with the exception of July, which advanced 50 points on covering by belated shorts. The opening was 1 to 2 points higher as a result of firm cables and support from commission houses and Brazil, but after September had sold at 22.35 and December at 22.15, reactions occurred under Wall street selling and scattered liquidation which forced December down to 21.75. From this level slight closing rallies occurred on covering, and renewal of bull support, with the close 4 to 20 points net lower. September, 22.20; October, 22.10; December, 21.90; January, 21.85; March, 21.85; May, 21.85.

Spot coffee steady; Rio 7s, 23¼ to 23½; Santos 4s, 30 to 30¾. There were fair sales of cost and freight and spot coffee, including Victoria 7s and 8s, at 23¼ London credits, and offers of Santos 4s at 31½ and 5s at 32, London credits.

Early cables reported an advance of 150 reis in Rio 7s and a decline of 1-32d in exchange. Santos 4s were up 500 reis, but futures were unchanged to 100 reis lower. Receipts at the Brazilian ports, 23,000; Sunday receipts, 10,000.

Federal Reserve Board Session Causes Severe Price Decline

BY R. L. BARNUM.

(The Constitution—Philadelphia Public Ledger Service. Copyright, 1919.)

New York, July 30.—Prices of live stocks opened up this morning on the statement of the United States Steel corporation which was made public yesterday after the close of business and which was more favorable than had been generally expected. However, around 10:30 word was flashed from Washington that the federal reserve board was again going into session to discuss the Wall street loan situation and immediately prices began to decline. Today's decline was the worst that has been experienced since a week ago last Monday when the reactionary movement started on the collapse in foreign exchange.

While the meeting of the federal reserve board was commonly given as the explanation for today's decline in prices in banking circles it was being quietly whispered about that the committee of the stock exchange on business conduct had passed the word to a number of stock exchange firms recently very active in the market to reduce their loans.

Borrowings At Large Level.

This action on the part of the stock exchange officials was brought about by the knowledge that the federal reserve board at Washington now has in its possession a mass of first hand information dealing with Wall street's purely speculative borrowings. That these borrowings are now at the largest level on record is a matter of common knowledge.

In a statement widely published in Wall street today, Bernard M. Baruch was quoted as defending stock market speculation on the ground that it equalized prices and enabled corporations to find a market for their securities in raising needed working capital. Doubtless the federal reserve board can add to this accepted argument in favor of speculation. Nevertheless, there is not a member of the board who does not know that there is a point past which speculation in the stock market can not go without hurting general business. That point is passed when the stock market is using funds that should be employed in general trade. General business will need every dollar that can be raised for weeks and weeks to come. Hence speculation in stocks must temporarily take a back seat or else come a cropper.

Wall Street Gossip.

Wall street was notified today that the shares of the new American Ship and Commerce corporation had been admitted to the unlisted department of the Philadelphia exchange. Much interest is being displayed here in these and the old outstanding Cramp shares. A number of inquiries have been received as to whether or not it was best to turn the old shares in for new ones.

A comparison of today's stock market prices with those of five years ago when the European war started shows some very striking changes. U. S. Steel was then selling at 51⅞; Central Leather 28; United States Rubber 45¾; Crucible 15¾; General Motors 58⅞. The railroad stocks five years ago were selling not very far away from the present prices. At that time Atchison was quoted at 89⅜, Southern Pacific at 84⅞, Union Pacific at 113½ and New Haven at 51.

According to dispatches from Chicago, 100,000 western railroad employees are preparing to make demands for an increase of 10 per cent in wages. The railroads have not yet recovered from the wage increase of last year, despite the unprecedented rate increase of 1918. It is barely possible, therefore, that in coming back for higher wages at this time the railroad employees may add to their education in the matter of public sentiment. Public sentiment against the high cost of living and profiteering is growing very rapidly according to the Washington dispatches. To make matters worse in the high cost of living, the administration could not do anything much more effectively than to start another circle of railway wage and rate increases. Railroad men have carefully worked up figures to prove that an increase of 10 per cent in the freight rate on shoes from Boston to Chicago only adds something like .0015 of a cent to the selling price of each pair of shoes. But the ultimate consumer knows better. He knows that before a pair of shoes reaches him there has been an increase in the leather, thread, strings, boxes, coal and other items that directly and indirectly go into the finished product. He also knows that the manufacturer and retailer add a margin of safety over and above the actual increase in their transportation bills. On any one single commodity an increase of 10 per cent in freight rates branch out in all directions.

Trade Will Decline.

Max May, one of the best posted foreign exchange experts in this country and head of the foreign trade corporation, in commenting on today's new low record for francs said that our foreign trade will decline in proportion to the declines in exchange. He said that the decline in exchange had already gone to such an extent that trading with England, France, Italy and other European countries had been seriously affected.

A new stock was introduced on the curb market today at an opening price of 38 and then advanced to 40. This same stock was offered by the syndicate at $12.50 per share but just who got the stock under the syndicate offering is not known. The advertisement calling attention to the issue stated that the stock had all been sold at the prevailing price of $12.50 per share and that the advertisement appeared only "as a matter of record."

The money market continues a mystery. Transfer being called every day and brokers are being forced to bid from 7 to 8½ per cent for time money and there is little to be had at even that high rate. Conservative traders are taking cautious views of the situation and are making their commitments accordingly. For sometime it has been the belief in the "street" that the rich man could not sell because of the high taxes he would have to pay from his profits. Nevertheless some very heavy liquidation has been going on during the past ten days.

BETTER WEATHER MAKES CORN FALL

Need Rainfall Prospects Causes Market to Close Weak at Decline—Oats Lose and Provisions Vary.

Chicago, July 30.—Many showers and a prospect of numerous others did much today to bring about lower prices in the corn market. Except for July, which showed a net gain of 1⅜ cents, the market finished weak, at 1¼ cent to 2⅝ cents net decline, with September $1.95⅛ to $1.95⅝ and December $1.68¾ to $1.69. Oats lost ¼ cent to ½ cent. In provisions the outcome ranged from a setback to 45 cents to 50 cents advance.

Fresh moisture supplied to parts of Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas and the northwest tended materially to relieve the condition of the corn crop. Selling of corn was thus from the outset given considerable impetus, which was soon added to by an official forecast of further showers scattered over a wide territory.

Later, the government weekly crop report received a generally bearish construction. Houses with country connections did most of the selling. The only pronounced rally was confined to the July delivery, and was due to month-end covering by shorts.

Oats eased down mainly in sympathy with corn. Both cereals continued to be depressed in some degree by the race riots and car strike here. Provisions were dull and irregular. Renewal of strength in the hog market counterbalanced somewhat the weakness of grain.

ASHBURN TOBACCO BRINGS HIGH PRICE

Ashburn, Ga., July 30.—(Special.)—The Ashburn tobacco market set a fast pace today when 48,438 pounds of tobacco brought $11,557.80, an average price of $23.80 per hundred pounds. This is a record price for tobacco this season and is higher than any market in South Carolina or Georgia so far.

This high average is especially surprising when taken in connection that several thousand pounds of damaged tobacco were in this lot, and brought 1 to 2 cents per pound. The greater part of this tobacco was in fine condition and brought from 43 to 50 cents per pound.

Sugar.

New York, July 30.—There was no change in raw sugar prices, which are quoted at 7.25 for centrifugal to the refiner. The board reported no purchases.

In refined practically all the refiners are out of the market for the time being, so that new business is light, although there is a very good inquiry. Receipts at the Atlantic ports during the past week were much smaller than the previous week, due to the marine strike, while meltings were also much smaller, with total stocks now only 58,309 tons. Prices were unchanged at 9 cents for fine granulated.

SWIFT MAKES ANSWER TO TRADE COMMISSION

Chicago, Ill., July 30.—(Special.)—Louis F. Swift, president of Swift & Co., referring to the report of the federal trade commission, said:

"The Federal trade commission is issuing its report piecemeal, apparently with the idea of keeping up a continuous agitation against the packing industry. This latest broadside, according to such report as I have seen, repeats the same old charges, contains the same misrepresentation and does our industry the same injustice as in previous reports.

"In the ownership of stock yards we are proud of the fact that we have improved marketing methods and thereby encouraged greater live stock production. As every impartial student of the problem knows, ownership of yards gives a packer no control of prices or trading methods. The whole contention of the commission that we control and manipulate prices is simply not based on facts. Our fluctuating profits, averaging only a fraction of a cent per pound on meat, and often becoming losses for weeks at a time, alone refute this contention.

"We have proved conclusively in congressional hearings at Washington that the trade commission can support its conclusions only by stooping to the distortion of fact and suppression of vital evidence. It is a shame that we should have to submit to this sort of indignity from a department of the government."

COTTON ABANDONMENT IN 1919 SETS RECORD

This Is Statement of Head of American Cotton Association.

St. Matthews, S. C., July 30.—J. Skottowe Wanamaker, president of the American Cotton association, has just issued a statement to the effect that abandonment in cotton acreage this year is the largest on record.

Mr. Wanamaker said in part:

"The expert representative of the American Cotton association estimates from a personal investigation and also from reports from correspondents and representatives of the association throughout the entire cotton belt that the abandonment in cotton acreage, that is, cotton acreage which has been abandoned which was previously shown as planted, is 9½ per cent.

"This abandonment is the largest on record and is due to shortage of labor and adverse seasons. It will be absolutely impossible to reclaim any of this abandoned cotton as the season is now too late. No reduction has been made for abandonment of acreage by the government, as it does not show this until the end of the season.

"The condition of the growing crop on July 27 was 67 per cent of a normal condition, as compared with 70 per cent on June 25, 1919; 85.8 per cent on June 25, 1918, and 80.3 per cent, the average condition for the past ten years, on June 25. June marked the crest of the growth of cotton and this year will be no exception to this rule."

SATURDAY HOLIDAY ON EXCHANGE VOTED.

New York, July 30.—For the second time this summer the governors of the New York stock exchange, acting today on a petition of its members, voted to declare a Saturday recess. The consolidated exchange is expected to take similar action.

Although the volume of trading in the stock market has diminished visibly in the past fortnight, the many details connected with the purchase and sale of securities continues to tax the machinery of the banks as well as brokerage houses.

COTTON IN GEORGIA OVERGROWN AND SAPPY

Weather Bureau Reports Growth at Expense of Fruit.

Washington, July 30.—Seasonable temperatures prevailed in the cotton belt, but rainfall continued heavy in many localities, according to the weekly report issued today by the weather bureau.

Cotton made good growth in most sections of the belt, but at many places at the expense of fruit. Shedding is reported in many localities, particularly where rainfall has been heaviest.

Heavy rains destroyed some cotton on lowlands in North Carolina, but elsewhere in that state it made rapid growth; it grew rapidly also in South Carolina and Georgia, but at the expense of fruit, and is overgrown and sappy in the latter state. Progress during the week was poor in Florida, and poor to fairly good in Alabama; it was satisfactory in the delta counties of Mississippi, and poor to good elsewhere.

Conditions of the crop ranges from very poor in the southern portions of Georgia, Alabama and Florida to fairly good in northern Alabama and very good in northern Georgia. In Texas the condition ranges from mostly poor in the east and near the coast to satisfactory elsewhere.

The weather continued favorable for weevil activity in most infested sections.

LAND-CLEARING TRAIN PLANS ARE COMPLETED

Conference Is Held Here Wednesday—Schedule Announced.

Final details of the plan for the operation of the land clearing demonstration train through approximately nineteen south Georgia counties were completed today at a conference held in the office of W. W. Croxton, general passenger agent, Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railroad, at which were represented, in addition to the United States railroad administration, the State College of Agriculture, Georgia Land Owners association, DuPont deNemours & Co., Hercules Stump Puller company, Williamson Stump Puller company, the International Harvester company, the Fordson Tractor company, Cleveland Tractor company, and Delco Light company.

A veritable circus in agriculture will be the demonstration train planned at this conference and to be conducted under the direction of the State College of Agriculture. Nine cars will be hauled for the tractors, farm machinery, stump pulling machines, powder and dynamite, motion picture equipment, educational literature, and other things going to make up this impressive first-hand demonstration in land clearing that is to be taken to the homes of thousands of progressive farmers in south Georgia counties.

The train will carry about twenty persons interested in this big educational drive, including representatives of all the institutions, corporations, and associations mentioned. A Pullman and dining car will be carried for the accommodation of those in charge and one of the cars will be fitted up for lectures and motion picture purposes.

Schedule of Meetings.

Two days will be given for demonstrations in each county visited and already the pace has been set in Crisp county for making these meetings record-breaking in character, by providing for an immense barbecue that will be designed to attract farmers from every section.

The schedules of meetings starts at Cordele on September 1 and 2 and, in the order named, the following places will be visited, the last meeting to be held on October 10th and 11th:

Camilla, Moultrie, Sparks, Tifton, Fitzgerald, Douglas, Waycross, Blackshear, Jesup, Baxley, Helena, Vidalia, Claxton, Savannah, Statesboro, Stillmore, Dublin.

Those Attending.

The land-clearing demonstration idea has been worked out to meet a rapidly growing interest in live stock farming in the coastal plain section of Georgia. The need of the cheapest possible methods of clearing land, in order to raise products for the increased number of live stock, has led to this attempt to work out these methods at the very doors of the farmers of the section from which the demand comes.

Those who attended the conference today were:

W. E. Broach, State College of Agriculture, Athens, Ga.; H. T. Maddux, State College of Agriculture, Athens, Ga.; W. B. Alford, DuPont deNemours & Co., Macon, Ga.; J. C. Williamson, Williamson Stump Puller, company, Cordele, Ga.; F. H. Abbott, Georgia Land Owners' association, Waycross, Ga.; Roland Turner, Southern railroad, Atlanta, Ga.; G. W. Humphrey, Southern railroad, Atlanta, Ga.; W. W. Croxton, A., B. & A., A. & W. P., Georgia, C. & W. C. railroads, Atlanta, Ga.; W. R. Tucker, supervisor of agriculture, A., B. & A., A. & W. P., Georgia, C. & W. C. railroads, Atlanta, Ga.

Tours State Lodges.

Savannah, Ga., July 30.—(Special.) The recently elected grand chancellor, Jacob Gazan, of the grand domain of the Knights of Pythias in Georgia, is planning a tour of the state for September, October, November and a part of December, to visit officially practically every Pythian lodge in the state.

HEAVY SESSION IN STOCK MARKET

Widely Conflicting Influences Created Irregularity and Occasional Weakness on Exchange Wednesday—Rally Began Late.

New York, July 30.—Stocks were subjected to widely conflicting influences today, creating heaviness and occasional weakness in many of the shares which usually govern the course of the market.

Prices were 1 to 2 points higher at the outset, the steel division leading on the excellent quarterly statement issued by the United States Steel corporation after the close of yesterday's session.

Heavy selling, which immediately followed and had its basis mainly in widely circulated rumors that the federal reserve board at Washington would hold another conference to consider certain phases of the local speculative situation gave the market a setback of 2 to 5 points before noon.

Denial later of these rumors resulted in substantial recoveries, but only in a few important instances was the reversal of the morning entirely overcome.

Another restraining development was the evident purpose of the banks and other financial institutions to exercise greater discrimination in the making of loans on all industrial collateral and the increasing scarcity of time money.

Aside from the strength of a few specialties in which the maneuvers of pools and cliques were again more or less effective, notably tobacco, paper and leather issues, moderate losses prevailed at the close.

Unsettlement in exchange on Paris, which approximated its minimum quotation caused variable reactions in sterling, lires and the Swiss rate, but Scandinavian remittances were comparatively steady.

Weakness of local tractions and a slight setback in internationals featured the irregular bond market. Total sales, par value, aggregated $13,650,000. Old U. S. bonds were unchanged on call.

Ottawa, July 30.—The Dominion government late today decided to buy and market the Canadian wheat crop of 1919. The crop will be sold at "prevailing world prices" and the surplus proceeds will be divided among the original sellers of the wheat. Speculation and profiteering will be prohibited.

COMING PRIMARY INTERESTS WOMEN

Many Candidates for City Offices for First Primary in Which Women Will Cast Ballots.

That the first primary in which women will take part will be an interesting and important one, became known Wednesday, when George A. Morris, secretary and treasurer of the city executive committee, announced that there are sixty vacancies to be filled—12 councilmen, 5 aldermen, 40 members of the city executive committee, a member of the board of education and head of the waterworks.

Corparatively few of the candidates who will run have paid their registration fee, although this will have to be done by Monday noon. There is certain to be a last-minute rush for this registration, as there is for the women's books.

Many women have failed to register up to the present on account of negligence or lack of information on the offices which are to be fillled, offices some of which are of vital importance in municipal affairs. During the last two days, however, there has been a noticeable increase in registrants.

116 on Tuesday.

On Tuesday the total reached 116, this being Tenth Ward day at the booths. Wednesday was the day set aside for the fourth ward, and there were between 50 and 75 to go to the courthouse. A reception committee from the third ward will be in charge Thursday, and the women of this section of the city not yet registered are urged to come, if possible, during the day. Mrs. C. P. Ozburn is chairman of the committee.

The following is the list of offices to be voted on in the primary, as given out by Mr. Morris, with the names of candidates who have announced, or are expected to:

First Ward: Councilmen: Tandy Conger, already in council, will probably be a candidate to succeed himself. Howard Parham has also been named as a possibility.

Second Ward—Councilmen: Al Martin, present councilman, is expected to run.

Third Ward—Councilman: Probably two candidates, one of them George W. Cooper, has qualified to enter the race. Aldermen: Councilman C. L. Chosewood has said he will run, though he has not registered for the race.

Fourth Ward—Councilman: C. L. Ashley, present representative in council, has entered his name with the secretary of the executive committee. Alderman: D. R. Miller is talked of as a candidate, although he has not announced.

Fifth Ward—Councilman: Dr. J. B. Golden, now in council, expected to run.

Sixth Ward—Councilman: Charles Austen has paid his registration fee. It is thought that his opponent will be Alvin Richards.

Seventh Ward—Councilman: W. C. Davis and C. C. Baggs have announced. W. M. Brandt has said that he will run, though he has not entered the lists. Alderman: W. S. Richardson, present alderman, expected to run.

Eighth Ward—Councilman: Probably W. D. Hoffman, now in council. Alderman: E. H. Goodhart, announced; J. M. Hollowell, spoken of as a candidate.

Ninth Ward—Councilman: Claude Barnwell, announced; R. H. Jones has declared his intention of making the race.

Tenth Ward—Councilman: F. E. Maffett, present representative, paid his registration fee Wednesday. Opposition is expected but no other announcement has been made.

Eleventh Ward—for the creation of which a bill is now pending in the legislature—Councilman: J. C. Murphy, registered for the short term; John Faith, for the long term. Alderman: J. L. Carpenter, who has paid his fee.

Executive Committee.

There will be, it is understood, beeetwn 65 and 75 candidates for the city executive committee, which has 40 members. A large number of those now serving will announce to succeed themselves. There are a great many yet to qualify for the race, Mr. Morris stated Wednesday.

Paul Fleming, who drew the one-year term on the board of education, has said that he will again be a candidate for the place. Mr. Fleming was elected last fall to serve as a member of the board from the district made up of the fourth and ninth wards. He was the choice of the Parent-Teacher associations of that ward, and was indorsed at a mass meeting of parents of that section.

Many have expressed the opinion that when women are voting, their first interest will be in the educational problems of the city, and it is thought that many interested in the schools have qualified to vote principally to participate in the decision on school matters.

As chief of the waterworks, W. Zode Smith will be a candidate to succeed himself, and there seems to be little probability that he will have any opposition.

Would Educate Women.

Several women expressed the opinion Wednesday that the money which has been collected in fees for women's registration should be used in educational work preparing the women of the city and state for the ballot, and in furthering the extension of suffrage in Georgia. Among advocates of this disposition of the funds were Mrs. A. G. Helmer, president of the Fulton County Equal Suffrage party, and Mrs. A. T. Spalding, chairman for the fourth ward from the central committee of women citizens.

"I am constantly coming in contact with women who say that they have not registered because they do not see why they should," Mrs. Helmer said. "Others tell me that they do not care anything about taking part in the city's affairs.

"These women simply do not realize how many problems, which belong peculiarly to women, have to be dealt with by the municipal authorities. Probably very few of them know of the work that is done among the young girls of the city, who have to be placed on probation or looked after in some other way.

"A woman who says she is not interested simply does not realize the extent of her responsibility as a woman, the responsibility she has for other children and other homes as well as her own.

Little Work Done.

"There has been very little educational work along suffrage lines done in Georgia to prepare women for citizenship and its duties. It is not surprising, therefore, that some of our young and old women have been slow to see the importance of their availing themselves of the opportunity to help in the building up of the city.

"Many women have worked in clubs for civic betterment and then when the chance come to do constructive work in the most effective way, to exert a definite influence in civic progress, they have said they didn't think it was their place to go to the polls. It is not that they were not sincere when they were discussing what they would like to see done in Atlanta in their clubs, but that the foundation for active participation of women in municipal affairs has not been strongly enough laid."

Mrs. Helmer said that it is her intention to vote for the use of the registration funds in the way that will create the widest interest in citizenship, at the mass meeting to be held at the Auditorium Tuesday evening, when all women who have registered will be given opportunity to suggest the proper disposition of the money to the committee who will decide upon it.

The success of the street meeting at Flatiron corner Tuesday evening has prejudiced the committee in favor of having another downtown rally before registration closes and Thursday evening has been suggested as a date for this.

Thursday's committee at the courthouse is as follows:

Mrs. Charles P. Ozburn, chairman; Mrs. T. C. Jerome, Mrs. Virgil Estes, Mrs. H. W. Cline, Mrs. J. B. Morgan, Mrs. A. A. Allen and Mrs. E. Cline

WOULD WITHDRAW PLEA FOR CHARTER CHANGE

Councilman Mincey Requests Tabling Resolution on Public Welfare Board.

Councilman Ed T. Mincey, ex-officio member of the board of welfare, requested the charter revision committee of council at its meeting Wednesday afternoon to take no action on a proposed charter amendment referred to the committee at the last meeting of council to give the board of public welfare broader powers, and will withdraw the resolution next Monday when the body meets in regular session.

No action was taken on a proposed charter amendment to elect the chief of construction by council instead of by the people as at present, and it is understood that this resolution will also be withdrawn or that council will be asked to table it.

The board of welfare sought in an amendment to the city charter to enlarge their powers to include the issuing of permits and the right to institute investigation of charitable institutions and to compel the attendance of witnesses.

Lack of time in which to obtain action by the legislature on the measures, even should they pass council, is taken as an explanaation of the move on the part of those sponsoring the amendments not to press them.

RAIL MEN ARE CUT IN COST OF LIVING

present wages and income of the people will meet.

The union officials called on Walker D. Hines, director general of the railroads, earlier in the day and presented the same case to him. Although only the engineers were represented at the conference here today it was intimated that any request on the part of the engineers for increased wages to meet the increased cost of living will be accompanied by similar requests from the other three brotherhoods, the firemen, trainmen and conductors.

Full Statement.

The statement presented to the president in full follows:

"Mr. President and Gentlemen of the Cabinet:

"The gentlemen accompanying me, with myself, constitute the advisory board of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. They are the officers of that organization who are charged with the responsibility of safeguarding the interests of its membership and directing its policy. They come from practically every section of the United States and Canada. They are in constant close touch with the rank and file of the locomotive engineers, and also have a general knowledge of the conditions of all toiling classes.

"At a meeting of this board, held in Cleveland, the matter of an increase in compensation commensurate with the conditions we find because of the constantly increasing cost of living commodities was thoroughly and studiously considered. We know that a widespread spirit of unrest exists among all classes, especially among wage-earners whose wages will no longer provide adequate food, shelter and raiment for themselves and families.

"We believe this situation is brought about mainly by conscienceless profiteering by the great interests who have secured control of all the necessaries of life.

Increase Only Temporary.

"At this time we find ourselves obliged to again request an increase in wages to meet the mounting cost of living; but we feel that, should this request be granted, the relief would be but temporary should prices continue to soar.

"We believe the true remedy for the situation, and one that will result in lifting the burden under which the whole people are struggling, is for the government to take some adequate measures to reduce the cost of the necessaries of life to a figure that the present wages and income of the people will meet. Should this not be considered feasible, we will be forced to urge that those whom we represent be granted an increase in wages to meet the deterioration of the purchase price of the dollar, be that what it may, which can be easily determined by competent authority.

"This action may be unique and it may be properly termed a pioneer movement in the history of labor organization in seeking an audience with the chief executive of our country and, in a manner, suggesting to him the convening of the members of his cabinet, or that portion that may be quickly assembled. However, the result sought seems to us to justify the means, and should our efforts in this direction completely fail, then we will be forced to request for those whom we represent the granting of an increase in wages to enable them to live according to the American standard.

Dollar Decreased.

"We invite your attention to the fact that approximately 77 per cent of the locomotive engineers are American-born citizens and it may be safely stated that the remaining per cent are naturalized citizens, and they have, of course, a great interest in not only their own welfare but in the welfare of all the people, and they are not unmindful of your past efforts in behalf of the people, and they believe that they should exert every effort not only for themselves but for the country in general, as well as the administration. Yet we find ourselves today earning less money than we did prior to the war. This can be demonstrated by simply taking, as an illustration, a daily wage of $5.00 prior to the war, which at that time was worth 500 cents, and today it is worth approximately, judging from competent authority, only $2.15.

"So, while it may be stated that we have had a substantial increase in compensation, when considering the dollar only as a medium of exchange our income has been substantially decreased when compared with pre-war prices.

"The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers appreciates the fact that all wages are being increased, and that constant demands are flowing to the employer and we must, of necessity, be mindful of the interests of our craft; but we do not believe that increasing the compensation, accompanied by a greater increase in the cost of commodities of life, will produce lasting benefits to our craft or to the American citizen in general.

"The unanimous opinion of the advisory board, our duty to the locomotive engineers and to our country as American citizens, impelled us to seek an audience with you and your cabinet for the purpose of laying this situation before you and we trust that you can find a way to immediately inaugurate executive action to remedy it.

"We trust that you may find it consistent to give us, in the near future, something definite as to what we may expect that will aid in guiding us as to our future actions, hoping that you appreciate the spirit that has prompted this action on our part."

WILL BE ILLEGAL TO DRINK "DOPES"

who claimed that the bottlers desired a hearing on the bill, final action of the committee was postponed until Friday afternoon.

The bill makes it unlawful for any person, firm or corporation in the state to sell or offer for sale any beverage made from a patent formula as in imitation of intoxicating drinks or any beverage containing any quantity of caffeine whatever. Coffee and tea are not included in the provisions of the bill, although they contain caffeine, on account of the fact that they are not made from a patent formula.

Against Caffeine

Senator Kea, in opening the hearing, stated "My bill is aimed at any patent formula that carries any quantity of caffeine. Caffeine is a narcotic and drinks containing it are narcotic and should be prohibited as such.

"A more damnable drink has never been made than this victim-claiming drug. It has more victims than any drink this side of eternity."

Mr. Hirsh convincingly denied Senator Kea's charges.

He brought out the fact that caffeine in far greater quantities is contained in coffee and tea than in Coca-Cola, showing that a cup of coffee contains 2.2 grains of caffeine while Coca-Cola has only .50 grains in a glass. "If caffeine is injurious it should be put out of business, but experiments by government experts have proven that this is not so."

To Protect Trade-Mark

When asked by members of the committee what effect the removing of the caffeine from Coca-Cola would have he declared "None in the least on the drink, but it would affect the use of our trade-mark, on which we have spent millions in advertising."

He pointed out to the committee that the government had repeatedly examined the drink, but never had they found anything wrong with it. He declared that no person had ever been injured by drinking it.

Representative Hollis declared the bill "is simply an attempt to hinder prosperous business enterprises and is unjust."

Senator Kea declared that he has up his sleeve much more vital evidence against the drinks which he will bring out at the committee meeting next Friday.

GERMAN LABOR UNIONS STATE WAR ATTITUDE

Amsterdam, July 30.—The work of the International Trades Unions congress was hindered by a protracted discussion in committee of the old international organization regarding the German declaration of the stand of German trades unionists during the war.

The Germans generally maintained an unrepentant attitude until Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, told them plainly that if it were continued it would be impossible for workers of other countries to retain relations with them in the future. The German delegates thereupon somewhat relaxed.

The committee, on its return, reported as follows:

"That the statement of Herr Sassenbach (German socialist) be incorporated in full; that the regrets expressed therein be registered; that the German delegation confirm frankly and openly the spirit of Sassenbach's declaration; that if the avowal be frank, open and satisfactory, the conference will proceed to the order of the day; that if unsatisfactory, freedom of action be reserved."

Against all expectations, the congress adopted the report without debate, after Sassenbach, in a few words, confirmed the German delegation. Sassenbach, who was a member of the committee, refrained from voting. The other members included W. A. Appleton, of England; Samuel Gompers, of America, and Leon Jouhaux, of France.

The congress then proceeded to form a new internationale.

The position of the various nations in the voting places the British and Americans in an unfair situation. They represent together more than 8,000,000 workers among the 17,000,000 represented at the congress, but have only nine votes of the total of twenty-seven, which may be cast on motions.

The main points of the resolution presented by M. Sassenbach are as follows:

The trades unions always recognized that Germany acted wrongly in Belgium, and always condemned atrocities committed; German occupation of Belgium and deportation of Belgians was done without the consent of the German workers; the attitude of the German workers at the outbreak and during the war was dictated by the position of Germany; it was their conviction that Germany was fighting a defensive war.

The German workers always had been opponents of war and armaments, and never gave consent to the government's imperialism.

The German workers recognize that the workers of other countries cannot appreciate or understand the several actions of the German workers during the war, but these actions were forced on them by the severe struggle waged by the German nation.

Macon, Ga., July 30.—(Special.)—The Homosassa, Fla., fishing fleet has been purchased by Macon capital and will supply the Macon market with salt and fresh-water fish and oysters direct from that point. C. L. Yeomans, a business partner with John George in the Macon Fish company, has been named general manager of the fishing plant and is now at Homosassa.

Interested in the purchase of the fishing plant are four local fish and oyster companies and they will receive between 150 and 200 barrels of fish weekly. The fishing grounds at Homosassa are 90 miles from the Georgia-Florida coast and shipments from the fisheries to Macon can be made in 18 hours.

The Need of Glasses

It is a very prevalent idea that glasses should be avoided as long as possible. This idea is a sadly mistaken one. Serious consequences sometimes result from delay. So long as the eyes experience no discomfort, well and good; but with the first sign of strain, headache, blurring or an inclination to move your reading further off, the matter should have immediate attention.

The proper glasses will keep the eyes from failing rapidly and permit you to do close, continuous work with ease and comfort.

Our knowledge, experience and skill are at your service.

Bulletin No. 1.

REVIVIFY THE OLD RETAIL SECTION.

Dear Sirs or Madam:

Atlanta must grow along normal lines to be a truly great City and we need a larger retail district.

We were stationed in New York when the Fifth Ave. Property Owners' Association was formed, and know what it accomplished in the way of restriction of objectionable businesses and improvement of general conditions.

Many of these things cost little more than an effort.

As President of the Atlanta Real Estate Board for five years the writer had an opportunity to learn of the inner workings of similar organizations in Cleveland, Pittsburg, etc.

WE ARE AGENTS FOR THE RENTAL OR SALE OF SEVERAL HUNDRED FEET OF PROPERTY IN THIS DISTRICT.

WE KNOW ITS POSSIBILITIES.

Tomorrow we will write you of a few things that can be done on these streets that will greatly improve them and cost little.

Co-operation of owners through some central organization is the chief factor.

Will you co-operate?

Yours truly,

Otis & Holliday,

by R R Otis.

N. B. -- Mr. C. W. McClure, who has purchased three properties in this section lately, notifies us he will call a meeting of owners shortly. Time and place announced later.

This meeting has since been called for FRIDAY, August 8, at 11 o'clock, in Room 249 Arcade Building

MARCH TO FACE BITTER ATTACKS

Before He Gains Permanent Rank of General. No Opposition to Honoring Pershing—Favorable Report on Pershing-March Bill.

(The Constitution—Philadelphia Public Ledger Service, Copyright, 1919.)

Washington, July 30.—The house military affairs committee today unanimously reported out a bill making permanent the rank of General Pershing, and by an 8-to-7 vote reported favorably the proposal to make permanent also the rank of General March, chief of staff. The bill is so framed that Pershing will take precedence over March, as indicated in the presidential message on the subject sent recently to both house and senate. There was no fight in committee on General March.

No indication of opposition was shown to General March personally in the split vote, and the vote division was not made on political lines. Committeemen who opposed giving General March the permanent rank of full general were quite willing that he should have the permanent rank of lieutenant general. The minority group explained their opposition in the matter by saying they did not believe there should be two permanent full generals in the army. Three republicans, Kahn, Green and Crago, and five democrats, Dent of Alabama, Quinn of Mississippi, Wise of Georgia, Fisher of Tennessee, and Harrison of Virginia, voted to support March as permanent full general.

It is difficult to predict when the bill will appear on the floor of the house, certainly not until after the recess and not before the middle of September.

Opposition to honoring General Pershing with permanent rank is extremely unlikely. But there is no doubt General March will be the object of bitter attack from both sides of the house. As chief of the general staff he has appeared frequently before house committees making various and sundry investigations and his manner of giving testimony and making replies to questioning representatives has engendered among many sharp personal dislike for him.

SUFFRAGE AMENDMENT RATIFIED BY MONTANA

Helena, Mont., July 30.—The Montana state senate today ratified the federal suffrage amendment to the constitution by a vote of 38 to 1. The house unanimously ratified the amendment yesterday.

Washington, July 30.—Mrs. Ello F. Gibbs has been appointed fourth class postmistress at Charlotte, Montgomery county, Georgia, vice William F. Glosson. Postmasters commissioned: Jesse T. Avret, Farmdale (late Kitson, Ga.) Hattie H. Dooley, Tallulah Lodge, Ga.

COUNTRY FOR LEAGUE, WILSON IS ASSURED

Washington, July 30.—Homer S. Cummings, chairman of the democratic national committee, discussed with President Wilson today the political outlook for 1920 and the attitude of the country toward the peace treaty and the league of nations, describing his observations during his recent two months' trip through fourteen western states.

The conference, which lasted more than an hour, was the first the national chairman had had with the president since last December. Mr. Cummings refused to discuss the possibility of Mr. Wilson again leading his party in the 1920 election, and would not affirm or deny that this subject was broached during the conferences.

Chairman Cummins said he told the president the country was overwhelmingly in favor of immediate ratification of the treaty and its league of nations covenant without changes or reservations. As to the political situation, Mr. Cummings was understood to have been emphatically confident.

Many matters of party interest were understood to have been taken up, and policies and legislation considered from every conceivable angle.

The president was said to have outlined to Mr. Cummins the tentative itinerary of the trip he will take through the country to give the people an account of his stewardship at Paris. The proposed trip was understood to have received the chairman's approbation.

In no state he visited, Mr. Cummings informed the president, did he find a majority of the people opposed to the league of nations. On the contrary, he said, if the people had an opportunity to vote on the question today, a ten to one majority would be given in favor of immediate ratification of the league and covenant without change or reservation.

California, the home of Senator Johnson, one of the leading opponents of the league, Mr. Cummings said he found the sentiment four to one in favor of the league.

CHANGES PROPOSED IN ARTICLES OF WAR

Washington, July 30.—One new article of war and changes in thirty others have been recommended by the special board of officers appointed early in the war to investigate the army court-martial system. In making this announcement today, Secretary Baker said he soon would transmit the board's report to congress.

"It may be said," Mr. Baker's announcement said, "that the board, upon the whole, finds no radical defects in the system and it attributes the greater part of the just criticism, not to inherent faults of the system itself, but rather the inexperienced personnel called upon to administer it at a time of stress when the great thing was to get four million men quickly in shape for the fighting line."

The board was composed of Major General F. J. Kernan, who organized the service of supply in France; Major General John F. O'Ryan, who commanded the 27th national guard division, and Lieutenant Colonel Hugh W. Ogden, judge advocate, who served with the Rainbow division.

Secretary Baker said these officers were selected after the controversy over the existing court-martial system began, because it was desired to have every class of American opinion represented. The board invited expressions of opinion on the army legal system "from all officers who had exercised general court-martial jurisdiction during the war and from all judge advocates who had been commissioned and functioned as such during the same period." It received and analyzed some 225 letters and formulated its own views as a result of its study of these statements.

"The board has submitted recommendations for changes in some thirty of the articles of war and has proposed one new article," said Mr. Baker. "The general trend of the work had been in the direction of a development of the present system and does not constitute a radical departure from the old one, which had been growing and developing for centuries precisely as other systems of law have been so growing and so developing in the same period."

C. G. EDWARDS FIGHTS POTASH BILL PASSAGE

Savannah, Ga., July 30.—(Special.) Charles G. Edwards, of the Savannah Board of Trade, is active in his work in the interest of the farmers of Georgia for the defeat of the potash bill now in congress.

"Every cotton planter should protest against its passage," said the former congressman today. The measure is the Fordney measure before the ways and means committee, now levying a heavy tax on the importation of potash. Mr. Edwards has asked the governor to send to Washington a message on the subject, and in his report said:

"This matter is of such great importance to the cotton farmers of the country and to the cotton-consuming public, that I think it merits your immediate and earnest attention. The Georgia legislature is now in session and if it meets with your approval, unquestionably it would have great weight if you would send a special message to the Georgia legislature urging that body to pass a resolution of protest immediately and send same to the ways and means committee of the national house of representatives."

Monster Pumpkin.

Moultrie, Ga., July 30.—(Special.) The biggest pumpkin ever grown in this section was brought to Moultrie yesterday by Enoch Hiers, a farmer of the Berlin district. It was placed on the scales, which had to be set at ninety-two pounds before they balanced. It was estimated that the pumpkin would make more than a hundred pies. It will not be converted into pies, however, as it will be saved for exhibit at the Colquitt county fair this fall.

W. B. Medlin, of Macon, Convicted Murderer, Is Refused New Trial

Macon, Ga., July 30.—(Special.)—An extraordinary motion for a new trial in the case of Walter B. Medlin, former hotel man, under life sentence for the murder of W. E. Baker, a barber, was denied here today by Judge H. A. Mathews, of the Bibb superior court. Judge Mathews' order sets out that the "newly discovered evidence," upon which the motion was based, is not would not be material.

Counsel for Medlin announce an appeal from the ruling of the court will be taken to the state supreme court. The newly discovered evidence referred to in the motion involved affidavits made by Leonard Berg and C. A. Herndon as to alleged threats they had heard Baker make a short time before the difficulty which resulted in the murder.

Baker was shot five times by Medlin, after Medlin had induced Baker to accompany him to a room on the third floor of the hotel. Medlin claimed Baker had made statements derogatory to the character of Mrs. Medlin. Since Medlin's conviction, Mrs. Medlin has secured a divorce.

TIGHT EMBARGO URGED ON ARMS FOR MEXICO

Washington, July 30.—Congress would declare itself opposed to exportation into Mexico of any arms or munitions of war under a resolution introduced today by Representative Hudspeth, democrat, of Texas.

The resolution asserts that inasmuch as the existing embargo on shipment of arms into Mexico permits certain exceptions, congress should go on record as opposing any exportation whatever.

President Wilson, through a proclamation made public several days ago, directed that no arms or munitions of any kind should be sent into Mexico except under such limitations as might be prescribed by the secretary of state.

Representative Hudspeth's resolution follows:

"That inasmuch as the president of the United States has found that there exists in Mexico conditions of domestic violence, promoted by the use of arms and munitions of war procured from the United States, as expressed in the embargo proclamation dated July 12, 1919, and inasmuch as he has, in consequence, forbidden the exportation to that country of all arms or munitions of war, except under limitations and exceptions to be prescribed by the secretary of state, it is the sense of congress that this measure shall be administered impartially and without limitation or exception as to any citizens or authorities of the republic of Mexico."

COTTON IN COLUMBUS SECTION IS RUINED

Columbus, Ga., July 30.—(Special.) The excessive heat of the past few days, coming, as it did, after two weeks of rainfall, has, in the opinion of prominent farmers, completely ruined the cotton crop of this immediate section.

Small bolls and squares are dropping from the plants in great quantities, and the leaves at the bottom of the plant are turning yellow and dying. It is reported that the boll weevil is also full of excessive moisture, which will, in all likelihood, seriously damage many of them, further reducing the yield, which is already considerably below normal.

The condition seems to be general in all parts of the Columbus trade district, according to reports coming to the city by farmers from almost every section.

BLEASE FOR CONGRESS AS AN INDEPENDENT

Columbia, S. C., July 30.—Former Governor Cole Blease has formally announced that he will be a candidate for congress in the seventh district to succeed Representative Lever, who has resigned.

Blease announces that he will not be a candidate in the democratic primary, and advises his supporters to refrain from voting in the primary that they may not be bound to support the nominee.

Simultaneously with his announcement he issued a lengthy platform in which he says he is "everlastingly opposed to the league of nations with conditions as presented in the present plan." He is also opposed to woman suffrage and national prohibition.

Were he elected in the primary, he would be cheated out of the election, and would get no relief in an appeal to the state democratic executive committee, he charges. "If I go into the general election," he said, "I can make my fight, if there be one, before the state canvassing board, composed of state officials, and if they deny me my rights, I can appeal to the congress of the United States, where men of both parties, who have no personal or political prejudices against me, can pass on the evidence presented and can give an honest, square deal."
